CANADIAN BRASS IS COMING TO BATHURST

Formed in 1970, the Canadian Brass has rapidly become one of the most popular ensembles in North America. Its unique blending of serious, first-rate musicianship with solid entertainment made the Canadian Brass an accepted model for a new style of performance. They have been featured on numerous radio and television programmes for the CBC, as well as at the Stratford and Shaw Festivals and CBC's Ottawa summer festival at Camp Fortune.

• In addition to their extensive Canadian and USA tours, the Canadian Brass has appeared at the Harrogate Festival in England, at the St. Chapelle Cathedral and on the Baleaux Mouches in Paris, France and at the Lucrene Festival in Switzerland.

While artists-in-residence with the Hamilton Philharmonic Orchestra, the ensemble was frequently featured as soloists and will be returning as guest artists in future years. The Canadian Brass often performs with the Festival Singers of Canada, with whom they also toured Canada and Europe - as well as with the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, representing Canada in the USA Bicentennial Celebrations in Washington, D.C.

Along with the many outstanding live performances, the Canadian Brass is actively involved in the recording medium, having acquired the unique distinction of producing three best-selling Canadian-produced albums. Television specials are predominant in the Brass' activities, appearing in the spectacular "Prince Charles" telecast and now, their first starring show called "Brass-a-Ma-Tazz", among many other appearances as special guest artists.

Canadian Brass repertoire features many original works, commissioned by the Brass and performed with orchestras from coast to coast as well as in concert.

Canadian Brass were featured in Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston as a major part of the 1976 Olympics Cultural programme and served as artists-in-residence at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

This outstanding group combines comedy and high calibre musical talent; these wonderful musicians want to reach different kinds of music lovers, young and older people, from Bach to Joplin (Ragtime). It is surely going to be a great evening. Don't miss this outstanding concert held on March 30, 1977 20:30 at l'Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit auditorium. Admission is $5.00 for adults and $3.00 for students. Tickets are on sale at the Book Village, La Caisse Populaire Ste-Famille, and at the Ecole Secondaire Nepusiguit.

Chaleur Evening Stars Re-Elect s Slate For 1977

The annual meeting of the Chaleur Evening Stars was held in Christ Church Hall, Clifton on Wednesday, Jan. 5 at 2:30 p.m., opening with members singing O Canada and repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The president Mrs. Myron Jennings presided.

Minutes of the Nov. 24 meeting were approved. Reports of Chaleur Evening Stars' activities from March 3 to November 24, 1976 were read by the secretary and depicted a very active and successful year. Annual reports were also submitted by all officers and conveners.

The election for a slate of officers was called, but as there were no offers from the membership, the slate was re-elected.

The officers for 1977 are: Mrs. Myron Jennings, president; Mrs. Margaret Clouston, vice-president; Mrs. Minnie Clouston, recording secretary; Mrs. Mae Payne, corresponding secretary; Miss Lulu Robinson, treasurer.

Mrs. Beatrice Jagoe, furnishings convener; Mrs. Mae Payne, book convener; Mrs. Elda Miller, New Horizons; Mrs. Laura LeBlanc, handicrafts; Mrs. George Hodnett, travel fund.

The president read a letter from the executive director of the Senior Citizens Federation stating that application cards together with membership fees were to be sent in by March 31, 1977, also that any changes in the list of executive were to be reported.

Brochures from Holiday Inn Tourist Travel bureaus were presented, specifying appealing restuarant and room services for planned tours for the 1977 season.

At our meeting, donations were given to the R. Riordon fire loss fund.

Mrs. Gertrude Hodnett reported a substantial balance in the travel fund and it was approved that she take over the administration of this fund, held previously by she and Mr. Hazelwood in joint convernership.

A donation of books were sold at the meeting from which an appreciable amount was realized.

Money amounting to approximately $100 was donated to U.N.I.C.E.F. during the year, it was noted.

Due to weather conditions, it was decided that meetings would be discontinued until the next gathering on Wed., March 2.

The meeting closed on motion of adjournment after which lunch was served by the appointed hostesses: Margaret Clouston, Gertrude Good, Beatrice Jagoe, Margaret Robinson and Minnie Clouston.

Face life's problems honestly - it's the only way to solve them.

Weekend Convention Scheduled For City

Hundreds of Jehovah's Witnesses will be journeying to Bathurst this weekend for their semi-annual convention. The two day event will be held at the Nepisiguit High School commencing Saturday March 26 at 1:25 p.m.

Demonstrations, lectures, interviews and group discussions will be employed to highlight the assembly theme: 'Entering a Large Door Leading to Activity'. Much of the program will be directed at youth.

Arthur Wall, district supervisor of Witnesses living in Eastern Canada, explains why the youths come in for special consideration at the gathering.

He said: "Today many families face serious problems because of not applying the Bible's counsel in their lives. Youths especially are affected by this. Changing standards have created a mixed-up world and today's problems often rub young people of happiness.

"Youths need aids for charting their course in life. Everyone of us builds on what others before us learned. This includes how to get and keep really good friends, helpful guidelines as to dating and courtship, answers to questions about marriage, sex and the use of alcoholic drinks or drugs."

"Since a large portion of our assembly program is devoted to young people, it is hoped that they will be encouraged and assisted to make the transition to adulthood successfully. The only real future for youth is in serving Jehovah God wholeheartedly.

"We will take a close look at recreation, competitive sports, social gatherings and conduct at school during our conference."

Young people are very much in evidence among Jehovah's Witnesses. Over one half of all delegates to the convention will be under 20.

The public is cordially invited to attend all sessions and especially the discourse at 2 p.m. Sunday entitled: "Follow the Way to Life".

Municipal And School Board Election Data

It has been suggested in previous elections that perhaps more information as to election procedure should be made available to persons expressing interest as to candidacy in municipal and school board elections, and since it is The Northern Light's desire and responsibility to be of assistance, we take great pleasure in submitting the following bit of information:

· The tentative election schedule is:

April 1, Friday - Notice of Election;

April 15, Friday - Revision ends;

April 16, Saturday - Nominations close;

April 27, Wednesday - Grant of Poll;

April 20, 30, Friday and Saturday - Advance poll voting;

May 9, Monday - Election day (also Declaration day);

May 19, Thursday - Recount time limit.

Any ten persons who are qualified to vote under the Municipalities Act may nominate a candidate for any office on municipal council or school board.

QUALIFIED TO VOTE

To be qualified to vote, a person must have passed his eighteenth birthday and must have been a resident of the municipality or school district for a period of at least six months immediately preceding the date of the election, and must be a Canadian citizen or other British subject.

Any person who is qualified to vote is eligible to be a candidate for municipal council or school board, provided, however, that such person has been a resident of the municipality or school district for a period of at least one year immediately preceding the date of the election.

MUST BE RESIDENT

School districts, for the purpose of the election of school trustees are divided into sub-districts or zones equal to the number of trustees to be elected. Thus, to be eligible for nominations as a candidate for school trustee in a sub-district or zone, a person must be a resident of that sub-district or zone.

No person who is employed by the provincial department of education is eligible to be a candidate for school trustee.

LA FETE AU VILLAGE JUMELEE AUX 14 MILLES DE PASPEBIAC

Les dates officielles de "La Fête au Village" Grande-Anse seront les 4, 5, 6 et 7 août avec la Pré-Fête débutante le 31 juillet.

Les nouveaux directeurs de "La Fête au Village" ont été nommés récemment. Ils sont Madame Lorraine Thériault, Messieurs Gilbert E. Landry, Richard Caron, Omer Boudreau, Albert Saint-Pierre et Fidèle Cormier. Mademoiselle Rollande Cormier agit comme secrétaire. Madame Thérèse Haché est l'agent de liaison avec le Conseil Municipal de Grande-Anse de qui dépend le comité des Fêtes. Denise De-Grâce est nommée pour la deuxième année consécutive Présidente de la Fête. Monsieur Omer Boudreau, directeur, agira comme Vice-Président.

La Fête de cette année coincidera avec "Le 14 Milles de Paspebiac". D'ailleurs, les deux municipalités de Grande-Anse et Paspebiac sont jumelées depuis l'an dernier.

Si "La Fête au Village" de l'an dernier a amené à Grand-Anse des milles personnes, on attend doubler ce nombre cette année.

Comme l'an dernier, la Pré-Fête prendra une grande importance et débutera samedi, le 31 juillet, par un "Pageant" où l'on élira une Mademoiselle Personnalité, un événement nouvelle cette année. Suivront toutes sortes d'activités, les plus intéressantes les unes que les autres. Rien n'est moins que grandiose, mais toujours fait dans une simplicité qui caractérise nos festivités afin d'être toujours accessibles à tous les âges, tous les goûts et toutes les bourses.

"S'Unir pour Fraterniser" reste toujours notre thème et c'est pourquoi l'on voit tant d'enthousiasme dans notre "Fête au Village".

Le concours de la chanson-thème sera annoncé plus tôt et nous attendons de nombreux participants.

"La Fête au Village" c'est l'événement à voir dans le Nord-Est à l'été. Nous aurons d'ailleurs le grand honneur d'avoir des auteurs internationaux qui participent de Grand-Anse pour les "14 Milles de Paspébiac".

Le Conseil Municipal et la Présidente des Fêtes, Madame Denise DeGrâce, avaient déjà rencontré les responsables des "14 Milles" à Paspébiac il y a quelque temps et maintenant les directeurs recevront les organisateurs des "14 Milles" à Grande-Anse pour finaliser les accords.

Le Programme de "La Fête au Village" sera annoncé ultérieurement, mais sachons bien qu'il y aura de tout: sports nul, danses, beer garden, cave à vin, fanfares, etc et une foule de nouvelles activités. Une chose très importante, les jeunes ne seront pas oubliés.

L'air de Fête règne déjà à Grande-Anse et si l'on considère le grand potentiel des directeurs on peut s'attendre à une "Fête au Village" comme on en a rarement vue en Acadie.

Unissons-nous pour Fraterniser

Ladies Curling Club News

By JOYCE CONLEY

The cold spell last week helped keep the ice in excellent condition despite temporary ice-making problems caused by a burned motor. Repairs should be completed this week.

The afternoon curlers have joined the morning section for the second stone series draw, the final draw and bonspiel of the year.

Since the supper conveners are catering to private groups who have rented the club for bonspiels, the remaining Saturday evening suppers will be closed.

The annual City Mixed bonspiel begins Wed. evening, March 30. All members are asked to enter their names for this final club 'spiel on the poster placed in the main lobby.

Plan Protest Of Assessments

Property owners in at least two residential areas of the city, Doucet Subdivision and Parkwood Heights, are in the process of preparing presentations in protest of this year's tax assessments.

Spearheading the project is a committee comprising Joe MacNeil, Roger DeGrace, Yvon Vinet and Hubert Gagnon, who held a first meeting last week and a second Thursday night. At the latter session, an agenda was prepared for a city-wide meeting tentatively set for March 30 in the basement of Our Lady of the Rosary Church, St. Peter Ave. There will be a further announcement in this regard.

The committee also attended a recent meeting of the Parkwood Heights Homeowners' Association where they presented a bilingual brief which received favorable reaction.

A variety of circumstances has motivated the citizens' group to proceed. These include the fact that the assessments on a number of houses of the same size and material built the same year in either subdivision fluctuate considerably.

Other reasons include the drastic difference between urban and rural assessments and the fact that there are indications the School Board will have full authority to institute a tax rate to cope with global budgeting policy.

It is also contended that assessments based on local contractors is not in keeping with solid government procedure. In addition, the committee will push for more equitable distribution of the tax load through revival of a poll tax. In this way non-property owners in the high salary bracket and young people in a similar category will both pay their just share.

Budget Focuses On Employment, Economy

A budget designed to encourage job creation, strengthen the province's financial position, control the rate of government spending, and improve the tax system was introduced in the Legislature Mar. 15 by Finance Minister Lawrence Garvie.

Mr. Garvie described his first budget as one "right for the times" and "appropriate for an economy in transition from recession to renewed expansion."

The budget provides for record expenditures of $1,317.6 million, inclusive of capital expenditures and gross loans and advances.

Ordinary account expenditures will rise by 11.9 per cent to a record of $1,100.4 million. Combined with record revenue of $1,151.1 million dollars the surplus on ordinary account will be $50.7 million.

Total financial requirements of the province are estimated at $147.1 million.

The overall deficit is forecast at $88.2 with the net debt expected to increase by $71.2 million.

Mr. Garvie indicated that a careful review had been made of various taxes and fees and as a result a number of tax reductions are in the offing.

The provincial income tax, he noted, would be further reduced in three stages.

The first reduction, effective Jan. 1, 1977 will yield $500,000 to N.B. taxpayers. "This reduction arises as a consequence of the recently concluded negotiations which involve a transfer of personal income tax points from the federal government to the provinces. In setting the new provincial tax rate of 55.5 per cent of the federal basic tax, technical adjustments were made which results in the additional tax benefit."

The second stage will see the tax reduced the equivalent of two per cent Jan. 1, 1978 with the third stage a further three per cent reduction Jan. 1, 1979.

"At the conclusion of all personal income tax reductions, the benefit to New Brunswick taxpayers will be in the order of $11.6 million, measured in current dollars. This exceeds the estimated benefit of a seven per cent tax cut under the old system which would have yielded approximately $11.4 million, the minister said.

The rate of provincial corporation tax for small businesses will be reduced to nine per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1977. On the other hand," said Mr. Garvie. "the government believes that large and often externally controlled companies can well afford to pay the same tax rates in New Brunswick that they would have to pay in other provinces. As a result the tax on large corporations will be raised to 12 per cent, the national average, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1977.

Business tax on real property will be reduced from $3 to $2.75 per $100 assessment for the first $60,000 effective Jan. 1, 1978.

Basic sales tax exemption will be increased from 11 cents to 25 cents, effective midnight Mar. 15, 1977.

Changes in resource taxation are also forthcoming for both the mining and forestry sectors.

The property tax base is also being broadened to include telegraph, telephone, cable television and electric power transmission systems.

Said Mr. Garvie: "I want to remind Honourable Members that in the course of the last seven years this government has introduced tax measures which currently benefit New Brunswickers in the order of $3 million dollars per year. The cumulative value of these measures is now estimated at $35 million dollars. The additional changes I have announced today follow a long established principle of this government — namely, that it will not increase direct taxes on people. In fact, we have consistently followed a policy of cutting taxes year after year."

To stimulate jobs and economic development Mr. Garvie said the province will be providing $40.5 million for DREE cost shared programs, excluding transportation.

A further $41.8 million will be spent on provincial highways and another $28 million will be spent on highway programs financed under the General Development Agreement.

A total of $7.2 million has been budgeted for the development of serviced industrial land in the province while $2.7 million has been earmarked for extension of the Agricultural sub-agreement.

Provision for monitoring implementation of the remainder of the Official Languages Act has been made and $15 million will be placed in the teachers and public service superannuation funds, to provide full matching contributions for present and future contributors.

For the second year in a row, Mr. Garvie pointed out, there will be no growth in man-years of employment in the civil service of existing programs. There will be an increase of less than one per cent or 82 than years for new programs.

Mr. Garvie said the estimated net debt increase of $71 million is in line with the growth of the Gross Provincial Product, thus maintaining stability in the ratio between the two.

"Financial requirements are planned to be substantially down from the current year level, largely because we believe the economy will pick up in 1977, resulting in greater buoyancy in our revenues," the minister added.

Community Concert Drive Opens Mar. 28

The annual membership campaign of the Bathurst Community Concert Association will be officially launched at the kick-off dinner to be held March 28 at Danny's Colonial Room at 7:30 p.m.

The yearly dinner, under the expert planning and supervision of Mrs. Florine Rutledge will gather together the Association's Board of Directors, campaign officers and workers, media people and Mrs. Gertrude Silver, international field representative for Community Concerts Inc.

It looks as if this year's pre-campaign drive is going extremely well. Already workers are in the field contacting the nearly 500 current members to inform them of the highlights of the coming season and to invite them to up-date their membership for 1977-78.

New members who join the Association before April 2 will be treated to a bonus concert. Besides the regular attractions of the coming season, they will be entitled to attend the performance of Rico Saccani, virtuoso pianist, on April 19 at 8:30 p.m. in the auditorium of l'Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit. This is the closing concert of the current and highly appreciated season which featured The World of Gilbert and Sullivan and Ransom Wilson, flutist.

The next season will feature the Franz Liszt Orchestra of Budapest and the New York Vocal Arts Ensemble among others.

The Franz Liszt Orchestra is in the best company when it is compared with such ensembles as the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra or I Virtuosi di Roma.

Each of these world renowned formations has its own style and quality of excellence, and the Franz Liszt Orchestra has a very special musical mystique based on the rich artistic traditions of Hungary, and the standard of artistry of its namesake, Franz Liszt.

The New York Vocal Arts Ensemble is made up of five young, vivacious and thoroughly schooled musicians. Only a few years in existence, this group has achieved considerable success with a judicious blend of musical scholarship and flawless execution. They feature vocal chamber music of the great composers, together with folk music from many lands.

Headquarters for the current membership campaign in the Bathurst Community Concert Association will be located at Lounsbury Auto Division on King Avenue, where Mrs. Kumari Sundaram, campaign director, and her energetic membership committee will be on hand, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. every day of the campaign, to coordinate activities, supply information and receive renewals and new memberships.

The committee may also be reached by phone within the indicated hours by dialing 548-2589.

Music lovers, students, patrons of the arts and the general public are all invited to join and treat themselves to the best of music.

A special attraction this year is the family package, whereby under one subscription, all the members of one family may attend all the concerts of the coming season.

Stick to the facts always — and on principle, not on opinion.

Fire Tragedy Occurs At Lorne

Tragedy struck in the upshore community of Lorne, March 18 when fire consumed a wood-frame two storey dwelling, claiming the life of one child and sending three family members to hospital with extensive injuries.

Joseph Colin Bradley LaPointe, about 18 months old, died in the blaze that was discovered by his parents at about 5 a.m. His brother Rickie, 16 and both parents, Hubert and Barbara LaPointe, are in Dalhousie's St. Joseph Hospital in critical condition.

A Jacquet River RCMP spokesman said that the parents and baby slept in a ground floor bedroom while Rickie and three other children slept upstairs. An overheated oil stove on the ground floor was the probable cause of the fire, but the extent of damage it made is difficult to determine.

RCMP received the call for assistance about 5 a.m., but for more than five hours weather conditions isolated the family from any source of help.

"The snow plow was not able to reach the scene until about 7:30", the RCMP spokesman said. "And the firemen couldn't get through, either. They came about 10:30 but it was just to put out the embers.

The RCMP were on the scene at about 8 a.m., the spokesman said, but the building was totally destroyed. The Fire department was called about 10 a.m. to assist in recovering the child's body.

We got through with the pumper at about 10 a.m., but we just barely made it", a spokesman for the Jacquet River Fire Department said. "The RCMP had trouble getting out. They got struck on the way back and had to be pulled out with the plow."

"We arrived about five hours after the fire started. It was a very small house and with the extreme wind we had, it was devoured pretty quick."

"We may possibly have arrived sooner if we had been called sooner", the fire department said, "but personally I don't think it would have helped the family in any way. They barely escaped themselves, by the time the fire was discovered it was too far advanced. It was just smouldering when we arrived. Just ruins".

There was little snowfall in the area Thursday night, but between eight and ten inches fell the night before and winds were extremely heavy overnight.

A weather office spokesman in Fredericton explained that a particularly dangerous situation for drifting snow exists at this time of year. A few days of warm weather crusts the surface snow. A subsequent snowfall, resting on top of the smooth crust, is particularly susceptible to heavy drifting.

Fortunately, the fire department spokesman said, this combination of circumstances has not been encountered in the past.

Mining Exploration Activity Continues

(By R.R. Potter, director, Mineral Resources Branch, N.B. Department of Natural Resources.)

New Brunswick is looking forward to another busy year of exploration activity. Undoubtedly there will be a great deal of follow-up work in the Bathurst-Newcastle area which, until recently, had not experienced its second phase of exploration. Several regional programs are planned, and the search for uranium should intensify. Interest in potash is also expected to increase, as work progresses on known occurrences in the vicinity of Sussex.

Last year was the busiest in the province's exploration history since 1957. Claims staked and in effect by year-end exceeded the 1975 total by 40 percent. Although base metals received considerable attention, interest was also focused on potash, uranium, industrial minerals, and bituminous shale.

In 1976, metals produced included antimony, bismuth, copper, cadmium, gold, lead silver and zinc. These were valued at $217,945,000. Non-metallics, including gypsum, peat moss and sulphur, totalled $6,758,000, and fuels, including coal, natural gas and petroleum, were valued at $6,383,000. Structural materials, which include clay products, cement, lime, sand and gravel, amounted to $23,971,000.

In Canada, New Brunswick ranks first in the production of antimony and bismuth, second in zinc and lead, and third in silver. Tonnages proven at known deposits in the Bathurst-Newcastle area definitely put New Brunswick in first place in Canada with respect to zinc and lead reserves. Total direct employment exceeds 4,000 and this could increase to 8,000 within the next decade.

Mines currently in production include: Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp., Heath Steele Mines, Nigadoo River Mines, and Consolidated Durham Mines and Resources. Limestone is produced at Havelock and Saint John, and gypsum from the Hillsborough quarries of Canadian Gypsum. Twelve peat bogs are in production in the northeastern part of the province.

At development stage

Several other deposits are in the final stages of exploration and development. Included here are: Restigouche, Murray, Anaconda, Stratmat 61, Halfmile Lake (Mattagami Lake Mines) Halfmile Lake (Texasgulf-Conwest Exploration Co. and Chester Mines. To the south, Brunswick Tin Mines has completed development work and feasibility studies. Near Sussex, Potash Co. of America and International Minerals and Chemical Corp. are evaluating the potash and salt potential of their reservation areas. Both companies have obtained encouraging results.

Exploration activity in the northern part of the province continued at a high level. J.L. Davies, regional geologist at Bathurst, reports that most of the work was concentrated within the Ordovician volcanics of the Bathurst-Newcastle area, with only minor activity in areas to the north, west and east. Increased interest in the area was sparked by base metal discoveries made in 1975 by C.A. Willett, Sabina Industries, Boliden-Preussag Exploration, and the McDonough Syndicate. A large number of claims was staked late in 1975 and 1976.

Sabina Industries and Essex Minerals Co. continued drilling their Flat Landing Brook base metal prospect. Essex has assumed management of the property which, according to P. Gummer of Sabina, contains many interesting targets. Newmont Mining Corp. of Canada and Price (Newfoundland) Pulp and Paper completed geophysical surveys and drilled their Nine Mile Brook property optioned previously from C.A. Willett. Drilling failed to outline significant concentrations of base metal sulphides. The McDonough Syndicate, jointly financed by Noranda Mines, Mattagami, Granges Exploration (Canada) AB and North American Rare Metals, drilled 18 holes on their Halfmile Lake property adjoining the Texasgulf-Conwest sulphide deposit. Several holes intersected encouraging thicknesses of good grade sulphides. Price, a newcomer to the Bathurst area, explored properties west and north of the Brunswick No. 12 mine.

New sulphide discovery

Noranda, which has been established in the province for many years, carried out exploration on many properties within, and on the western boundary of the camp. Canex Placer has a large property that includes the Restigouche and Murray deposits. Extensive geological and geophysical surveys were completed and followed up by drilling and metallurgical tests. A new sulphide discovery has been reported two miles south of the Restigouche deposit.

Boliden-Preussag continued exploration on its properties, some of which are held by Serem. In 1975 interesting sulphide concentrations were intersected on the California Lake block, optioned from Northumberland Mines. Asarco returned to the area in 1976 and explored several properties during the year, including parts of its Stratmat 61 deposit, north of Heath Steele. Union Miniere Explorations and Mining Corp. (UMEX), which has been working in the area for a number of years, explored and drilled five properties, and Newmont drilled a base metal prospect found previously by the Findathoran Syndicate. Work is in progress on other areas of interest within the camp. Key Anacon Mines completed geological and geophysical surveys on their deposit south of Bathurst. This was followed up by drilling. Metallgesellschaft Canada acquired an interest in the Captain deposit, and initiated and extensive evaluation of the property.

Other companies working in the area inlclude: Dungannon Exploration, Heath Steele, Texasgulf, Clearwater Mines, Conwest, Monore Metals Corp., Sullivan Mining Group, Amoco Canada Petroleum Co., Silver Leader Mines, Worldwide Exploration, Shell Canada Resources, Consolidated Morrison Explorations, Kerr Addison Mines and McIntyre Mines.

Lorne Residents Aided In Planning For Future

At the end everybody sang "this place is your place, this place is my place...from the Louison River to the Great Creek waters, this place was made for you and me".

They were singing about Lorne, singing about their community after meeting all day in a Community Forum Canada planning for their future.

The program is a new type of community development, the second of its nature initiated inthe province. More than 100 residents of Lorne attended.

Community Forum Canada is sponsored by the Institute of CulturalAffairs of Canada and enables local citizens to participate in the development and planning of their own community.

The first weekend in February the first such forum was held in New Brunswick in Tracadie. The one in Lorne was number two, but, according to ICA workers, it will not be the last.

ICA has similar programmes across Canada and just recently decided to come into the Maritime region.

After speaking with people and groups concerned with the development of different areas they chose Tracadie as their first stop.

About three months ago they made their first contact with Rev. Fernand Albert in Lorne. After meeting with him and some people of the community it was decided to hold a Community Forum Canada in Lorne.

Three workers with ICA, Don Raschke, Marguirette LePage and Tom Greyshock, met with a group of people several times to train them to supervise the workshops on Forum day. The ICA workers were present to see everything ran smoothly, but the people of Lorne were really in charge.

LOCAL LEVEL

The ICA believes that effective human development must be initiated on the local community level. With this in mind, the day began with people discussing their community. What it was like in the past and what they hope it will become.

In workshops they decided what new developments they would like to see in their community and these items were divided into groups according to cultural, economic or political standing.

The most pressing needs for Lorne as seen by its people are better roads, street lights, post office, incorporation as a village and better fire and police protection.

In a second workshop the ways in which to obtain these needs were established.

In a plenary session, once again with everyone together, the decisions of the workshops were read out.

Most of the groups agreed by people would have to be interested in working and the best way to do this was to form committees and get people working together.

They proposed night classes to better the education of adults and a home and school association to involve the parents with their children's education. They also proposed to organize a senior citizens group.

The fact they had no elected representatives of any kind led many to believe was the reason the community was disorganized. Some residents said they were large enough to be a village and suggested they work towards that aim.

HISTORY

While three groups were discussing Lorne's problems and the solutions to them, a fourth group was making up a brief history of their community, along with two songs, one French and one English, and came up with a symbol.

The English song is sung to the tune of "This Land is Your Land." The French song is sung to the tune of Frere Jacques and tells the people of Lorne to wait, wake up and to work together.

The outcome of the Community Forum Canada is not known yet-it depends on what action, if any, the people of Lorne will take. It is up to them whether or not they act on the proposals.

Some of the people were optimistic as they left, others were not. Father Albert was one of the optimistic ones. He had praise for the program and what it had done in Tracadie. He expressed the hope it would be successful in Lorne.

Mr. Raschke described the three ICA workers as community development workers.

The Institute of Cultural Affairs is a research, training and demonstration group concerned with the human factor in world development. It is a non-profit corporation chartered in the Province of Ontario.

The ICA of Canada is affiliated with more than 100 ICA offices in 24 nations. Their programs range from management seminars for business executives to comprehensive community development projects in many locations.

AT BELLEDUNE

The three ICA workers have set up a temporary office at the second townsite in Belledune. They are presently talking with representatives in several communities in the area in which such Canadian forum Community Forum Canada Projects could be held. The projects can be held in both rural and urban communities.

SNOW TIME LIKE THE PRESENT

Just a quick walk on Harborview Blvd. March 6, indicates that the City has received more than a generous blanket of snow this winter. In top photo, all that is visible of the Tourist Bureau at the corner of Douglas Ave. and the Boulevard is the roof. In second photo, the SMT bus is partially seen behind piles of snow at Maritime Products, (Bus Terminal). The third photo indicates Free Parking on the Blvd. but it must be meant for snowmobiles only at this time. Photo number four, still on the Blvd., is the sidewalk which is a bit narrow and parking meters are knee deep in the white stuff.

Bathurst Students Are Among Those Recognized

Two young Bathurst writers have received honourable mention in the 10th Annual Creative Writing Contest sponsored by Canada Permanent Trust Company.

Andrea Doucet, a Grade 12 student at Bathurst High School and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence (Bobo) Doucet, 410 Main St., received recognition for the second consecutive year with her entry entitled "Her Father's House."

An entry by Nicole Boudreau, entitled "Estrella", was also given honourable mention. Nicole, a Grade 11 student at Nepisiguit High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fernand A. Boudreau, Box 9, Site 1, Petit Rocher South.

Provincial first, second and third place winners respectively in the competition were Michaela Miller, Saint John; Colin Smith, Saint John; and Margaret Matthews, Sackville.

The grand prize winner in the Canada-wide contest and recipient of the $1,000 award was Susan Campbell of Summerside, P.E.I.

According to Den Sinclair, public relations manager for the Permanent, the purpose of the contest is to search out young writers across Canada and encourage them to develop their creative talents. Many schools now use the contest in the English curriculum and a book published by the company containing the first prize stories from each province is used for classroom instruction. More than $10,000 in prize money is distributed to winning students.

Errors Delay Tax Refunds

Taxpayers made close to two million errors in arithmetic when completing their tax returns last year. Fortunately for the majority of them, computers at Revenue Canada, Taxation caught and corrected the errors, automatically adjusting the amount of tax payable, usually in favour of the taxpayer.

The single most common cause of errors last year was the calculation of the Canada Quebec Pension Plan payment. Of the nearly one million adjustments to returns in this area the majority resulted from taxpayers either neglecting to claim their CPP or QPP overpayment or neglecting to include their contribution as an eligible deduction. Other common errors included miscalculations or claims for contributions unsupported by information contained in T4 information slips. Unemployment insurance premium calculations caused an additional 44,190 errors.

Taxpayers' claims for the interest and dividend income deduction resulted in 350,000 errors and calculations concerning medical expenses and charitable donations caused 200,000.

A total of 188,000 taxpayers neglected to claim their employment expense deduction of $150 and another 160,000 reported income that did not agree with information supplied by employers on T4 and T4A information slips.

The pension income deduction caused 117,000 errors while errors in claims for personal exemptions such as the age, married exemption and claim for wholly dependent children accounted for 110,000 errors. The equivalent-to-married exemption and exemptions for other dependents accounted for 82,000 errors.

Many errors are picked up by computers at the Taxation Data Centres and last year resulted in savings to taxpayers of $150 million. In addition, many taxpayers benefitted as a result of general averaging which is applied automatically to all tax returns and averages a taxpayer's income over a five-year period. This meant an average saving of $78 in taxes for 2,750,000 taxpayers.

Last year a total of 9.5 million taxpayers received average refunds of $268.36, up from $244.30 the year before. Refunds are delayed when a taxpayer's return is rejected because of insufficient information, arithmetic and other errors.

Canada Manpower Job Information

BY G. J. FRENETTE

This is the third in a series of articles obtained from G.J. Frenette, manager of the Canada Manpower Centre in Bathurst.

JOB TALK

It's time to think summer, says Canada Manpower.

While high school and university students are slipping into their skis and skates, summer is slipping up on them. And so is the prospect of summer employment.

I know it's rather early but if you are going to be looking for a summer job, start thinking about it now.

Last year more than 1,500 students were enrolled with Manpower for summer jobs.

To assist these students in finding employment Manpower's own student employees made more than 500 visits to employers throughout the county.

Manpower's student employment program started on March 1st in the Bathurst CMC with the appointment of Roger Robichaud of Caraquet, who will be responsible to coordinate the efforts of the student summer employment office.

Mr. Robichaud is presently undergoing training and contacts with various community organizations will soon get underway.

During the month of April, three students will be hired to help co-students find jobs. One of these three students will spend the majority of his time working in the Caraquet and Tracadie Branch offices.

We don't think we will find all the jobs. We find as many as we can and we try to create a healthy environment and attitude toward hiring students and in students toward sensibly looking for jobs then being willing to work hard when they get them.

It's not only students and Manpower who should be looking for summer employment. Employers should be looking too.

The employer should be assessing his situation in terms of the needs of the student and what he needs as an employer. And he should remember that he's going to be able to hire a willing, enthusiastic and knowledgeable young worker, a youngster who is coming to adulthood and is willing to work.

An added benefit is that while summer work lets a student try a job that might later become a career, it also lets employers see students who may become full time employees after graduation.

Students by and large will do anything they can earn a dollar doing. And usually, they will do it enthusiastically and with good results.

The federal government will have a $65 million program to provide jobs within government departments and military reserves.

Another $30 million will be spent on projects similar to the Opportunities for Youth program and Local Initiatives Program.

Called Young Canada Works, it will provide funds for established organizations and companies to develop projects which will employ students and be a benefit to the community.

It differs from OFY and LIP in that the grants will be given to organizations rather than directly to students to start projects.

We do not know how much of the money will be spent in this area but most of it will likely be used in regions of high unemployment.

Turn Of The Century Convulsions Studied

By KILDARE DOBBS

In an age when knowledge of all kinds is becoming fragmented among myriads of specialists, one is more than ever grateful to the scholar who refused to rend the seamless garment of truth.

Such a scholar is Edward R. Tannenbaum, a New York University historian who has written an encyclopedic study of the social convulsions and their causes that overtook Europeans in the period around the turn of our century.

The book is 1900, The Generation Before the Great War (Doubleday; 446 pages; $11.50), and it brings together in a readable and intelligible way all sorts of information about politics, culture and social change, along with the history of ideas.

The controlling idea of the book is that of modernization, the process that occurs when masses of people are uprooted from their traditional lifestyles and are thrown together in new societies that live, or try to live, by the light of reason.

Modernization is a continuing process, with no clear starting point (one Canadian scholar considers the Middle Ages a modernizing period) and no end.

It brings secularization, rationalization, bureaucratization, industrialization, urbanization, structural differentiation, consolidation of policy-making and the elimination of political and social inequalities.

TO THE CITIES

In Tannenbaum's period, Europeans were leaving villages and farms for cities, where immemorial traditions were replaced by compulsory schooling, newspapers, automobiles, public transportation, movies, telephones, and all sorts of agitations for personal and political liberty.

The most important change was cultural. "Culture," says Tannenbaum, "gives people their view of reality. It includes what they know and how they know and express it, as well as their values and standards of behavior."

One of the results of modernization was to make people both more nationalistic and more international-minded than ever before. Another result was to release both revolutionary and reactionary forces, as social classes responded to social change either with rising expectations or with resistance.

All this is familiar ground, though expressed with more clarity than in most studies of the kind. What is less familiar is the way in which Tannenbaum draws on an enormous mass of evidence not only from scholarship but from popular art to show in detail what was happening.

A POINT OF VIEW

One may question some of the details. For instance, when he's discussing population shifts, he suggests that the Irish began their habit of marrying late after the famines of the 1840s. According to a study by G.R.C. Keeper (admittedly unpublished) late marriages had become the rule much earlier than this.

Again, in his use of popular art as evidence, he sometimes expects too much of it, as when he cites the french film Grand Illusion (1937) as authority on how European aristocrats viewed nationalism.

But these are quibbles; small mistakes are forgiveable in a book that covers so much ground. Tannenbaum can illuminate anything from the ideas of Nietzsche, Freud, Weber and Durckheim to the school stories on which British working-class boys were brought up, from the precise ranking of British peers to the poetry of Mallarme and the paintings of cubists and futurists.

Nor does he merely describe these things; he has a point of view and thus, in the end, is what makes his book profoundly interesting as well as informative.

ART AND CULTURE

Many recent studies in the history of culture get bogged down in the attempt to differentiate "high art" from popular culture.

Some of them cut the knot by pretending that there is, in fact, no difference, there is only art that you happen to like and art that other people like.

Tannenbaum concentrates on the way people use art.

The new mass media, "he says, "encouraged a consumer mentality that began to regard all cultural products in terms of 'I like it' and 'what it means to me.'

"An individual with this mentality personalized, domesticated and sentimentalized great works of art ('We Fell in Love at the Parthenon') while completely missing their meaning as symbolics forms created to help people experience something beyond themselves."

Modernization, in Tannenbaum's view, is an irreversible process. People who see their lives and work as a series of problems to be solved do not return to a magical way of thinking.

Nor does modernization increase the sum of human happiness (or virtue, which is more important).

It is like the three wishes in fairy tales—the third wish has to be used to undo the damage done by the first two—except that in our post-modern world there is no third wish.

Tannenbaum's 1900 is a book that can be useful to many sorts of reader. Those that want a quick survey course on modern thought will find it as useful as those who want to make sense of the times we live in.

Warning To Radio Buffs

Department of Communications officials in the Atlantic Region wish to remind the general public that possession, installation and operation of radio receivers equipped solely for the interception of communications not intended for the public in general, is illegal. Police transmission is an example of such communications.

This constitutes a violation of Section 3.1 of the Radio Act. The Radio Act provides for a fine not exceeding $2,500 or imprisonment not exceeding 12 months upon summary conviction. The radio apparatus to which the offence relates may also be forfeited.

The illegal use of the radio receivers also violates the Protection of Privacy Act.

A report of a conviction under the Protection of Privacy Act appeared recently in the Montreal Star. It stated: "Michel Francois Desormiers has been sentenced to a day in jail and fined $1,000 for illegal possession of a radio receiver adjusted to monitor MUC police and Quebec Police Force calls.

"Desormiers was found guilty by Sessions Judge Raymond Bernier for having the FM receiver in his Sherbrooke Street East apartment on Nov. 4, 1974, knowing it to be mainly useful for the clandestine interception of private communication."

"The set had ten special crystals that enabled it to pick up all MUC bands as well as QPF calls in Lachute-Vaudreuil, Marieville-Joliette and St. Jean d'Iberville.

"Judge Bernier noted the law stipulates that no one is allowed to possess such a set without a permit from government authorities. The maximum penalty is two years in jail.

"Such transmissions were destined particularly for police and not for the public in general, said the judge, and the simple fact that special wavelengths were used confirmed this.

"Thus, private communications were involved."

Leigh Neille needed a nursery.

Niagara said: Pink or blue?

Last month, Leigh Neille received an eight pound, three ounce baby boy, dozens of best wishes and a husband with a non-stop smile. What she needed was a nursery. Niagara thought so too. That's because Niagara knows a lot about people's needs. We also know a lot about money. That's our business at Niagara. Mortgage money, money for a new car, money for home improvements, for your child's education, or, if you're like Leigh Neille, money to welcome the newest member of your family. If what stands between you and what you really need is a thing called money, come in and sit down with the people you've come to know at Niagara. We know that one way to fulfill a need is to put money into action.

POLITICAL SCENE

Durham Report Foresaw Strife

By STEWART MacLEOD
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

Some time ago, an outsider went into Quebec, took a look at the controversial educational system and wrote this: "In Montreal and Quebec there are English schools and French schools; the children in these are accustomed to fight nation against nation, and the quarrels that arise among boys in the streets usually exhibit a division into English on one side, and French on the other."

We have all heard this before in the last few years.

Then this particular outsider took a careful look at the media in Quebec. "Those who are familiar with the literature of France, know that the same opinion will be expressed by an English and French writer of the present day, not merely in different words, but in a style so different as to mark utterly different habits of thought.

"The articles in the newspapers of each race, are written in a style as widely different as those of France and England at present, and the arguments which convince the one, are calculated to appear utterly unintelligible to the other.

"This difference of language produces misconceptions yet more fatal even than those which it occasions with respect to opinions; it aggravates the national animosities, by representing all the events of the day in utterly different lights."

WONDERING WHY?

Just about now, you must be wondering why I am repeating these observations at such length. After all, we have been hearing exactly this type of explanation ever since bilingualism and biculturalism became such a big issue 15 years ago. And with the current focus on separatism and national animosities - not to mention educational rights and separatists in the media - there is nothing new in any of these quotations.

Right. But it happens that these views were expressed exactly 137 years ago by John George Durham who was sent from England to study the present and future governments of Upper and Lower Canada. The Durham Report is a fascinating document in light of present day developments.

Some of it could have been written by our current politicians.

"It is difficult to conceive the perversity with which misrepresentations are habitually made, and the gross delusions which find currency among the people; they thus live in a world of misconceptions, in which each party is set against the other not only by diversity of feelings and opinions, but by an actual belief in an utterly different set of facts."

We have heard that many times since Lord Durham went home.

And back in 1840, this British observer was voting that "never again will the present generation of French Canadians yield a loyal submission to a British government."

SOUNDS FAMILIAR

About the English in Quebec, the good Lord had this observation: "They find themselves still a minority in the midst of a hostile and organized people; apprehensions of secret conspiracies and sanguinary designs haunt them unceasingly, and their only hope of safety is supposed to rest on systematically terrifying and disabling the French.

As so far as the French-dominated National Assembly was concerned, "it cannot be denied that they looked with considerable jealousy and dislike on the increase and prosperity of what they regarded as a foreign and hostile race... and instead of legislating in the American spirit and first providing for the future population of the Province, their primary care was, in the spirit of legislation which prevails in the old world, to guard the interests and feelings of the present race of inhabitants."

Company Holds First Meeting After Merger

The first annual general meeting of shareholders of Central and Eastern Trust Company was held in Moncton, March 8, and a successful year was reported.

The newly formed company resulted from the merger of Central and Nova Scotia Trust Company and The Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company on July 2, 1976.

In his address H. B. Rhude, Q.C., President, emphasized the achievements which were catalogued during the year. He noted that the integration of the staffs of the two predecessor companies and the development of the new organizational structure had been marked by co-operation, good will and harmony.

He also stated that in 1976 the expenses related to amalgamation had been charged to earnings and with a strong financial base, an excellent branch system and a strong organization he was optimistic for the company's earnings in 1977. He also noted that since the end of 1976 interest rates have been falling and the net spread on the company's intermediary operation have improved. Mr. Rhude told the meeting that demand for mortgage loans is currently weak and that it will be difficult to maintain the rapid rate of asset growth which was experienced in 1976.

However, Mr. Rhude advised the meeting that several positive factors would favourably affect the company in the coming year. He referred to the fact that amalgamation costs had been largely absorbed in 1976, the impact of lower interest rates on demand deposits and also the fact that with $100 million dollar increase in mortgages and other advances in 1976, the full impact of the increased volume would be reflected in 1977 profits.

D. R. Munroe, Executive vice-president of Central and Eastern Trust Company reported to the shareholders that the principal objectives established at the time of the amalgamation had been met by the end of the year. For the first time, assets exceeded $1 billion dollars and the company now ranks seventh among Canadian trust companies in terms of company and guaranteed assets. Total income exceeded $100 million dollars for the first time and net income of $7 million dollars provided a return on equity in the year of 16.34 per cent. All of these figures represent record achievements for the amalgamated company.

Mr. Munroe also pointed out that the percentage rate of growth of assets will be difficult to maintain in 1977 and that to offset this, Central and Eastern Trust has retained an agency relationship with Standard Management and Appraisals in Kitchener, Ontario and is currently considering investment opportunities in the Province of Alberta.

Mr. Munroe reported that 87 per cent of the company assets are invested in mortgages, of which 60 per cent are single family dwellings and 21 per cent in multiple residential properties. He advised the meeting that the real estate operations had experienced a very good year and forecast that real estate transactions would exceed $100 million dollars in Atlantic Canada throughout 1977.

Central and Eastern Trust Company now has 32 offices in Atlantic Canada and a thirty-third will be opened in the Truro Shopping Mall in May of 1977. The continued expansion of the branch network reflects a continuation of the company's policy of providing a fully integrated trust service to every major population area in Atlantic Canada.

Both Mr. Rhude and Mr. Munroe forecast a satisfactory increase in profit in 1977 and noted that the improvement will result principally from an increase in the interest spread in the guaranteed account rather than in profit resulting from the larger increase in 1977 volumes.

Blood Pressure Test Questions

True or False:

1) High blood pressure and hypertension are two different conditions.

2) You can almost always tell when your blood pressure is "up".

3) High blood pressure can very often be controlled simply by "staying calm" and slowing your pace of life.

4) High blood pressure is one of the primary causes of stroke, heart failure, and kidney failure.

5) High blood pressure may reduce life expectancy.

6) High blood pressure can usually be cured.

Answers:

1) FALSE. High blood pressure and hypertension are one and the same, hypertension simply being the medical term for high blood pressure.

2) FALSE. High blood pressure is usually a "silent" disease, that is, there are generally no symptoms to alert one to the fact that the blood pressure is elevated. Only your physician or the nurse, with a completely painless and simple procedure, can determine definitely whether you have high blood pressure.

3) FALSE. Stressful situations can and often do elevate blood pressure; however, they are not the cause of high blood pressure.

4) TRUE. High blood pressure, over a period of time, may damage the heart, kidneys, or brain. The higher the pressure, the more likely it is that damage will be done. Unless high blood pressure is reduced, there is an increased risk of stroke, heart failure, or kidney failure.

5) TRUE. High blood pressure is a significant factor in reducing life expectancy, the higher the blood pressure, the greater the risk.

6) FALSE. Perhaps 3 to 4 per cent of all hypertensive patients (who have what is called "secondary hypertension") may be cured by surgery. In most cases high blood pressure cannot be cured, but can nearly always be controlled, usually by a comprehensive lifetime program developed by your physician. Your co-operation is essential. Effective control of high blood pressure significantly reduces the risk of stroke, heart failure, and kidney failure.

'YOUR BUSINESS

Learning To Live Within Our Means

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Most people can't live beyond their means, even if they want to. The bill collectors make sure they don't.

Nations can and do live beyond their means, partly because bill-collecting isn't the same for them as for individuals.

As Canadians, we live beyond our collective means by importing more goods and services than we export.

But instead of talking about the bills we owe, we talk about a balance-of-payments deficit, and try to cover it by "importing capital."

That, in over-simplified form perhaps, is the story of the Canadian economy for the past couple of decades.

It's almost 20 years since James Coyne began warning us that we were living beyond our means, and his reward for doing so was eventually to be fired from his post as governor of the Bank of Canada.

Today the trend remains uncorrected. Politicians sincerely wish that we might correct our trade deficits by importing less and exporting more, but they show an even greater preference for short-term measures that are more popular even though the effect is the opposite.

Now, however, the Canadian dollar has weakened sharply—an indication, perhaps, that the international bill collector is growing tired of waiting for Canada to square its accounts.

ECONOMIST'S VIEW

One economist--Judith Maxwell of the C.D. Howe Research Institute in Montreal --notes that there has been a marked deterioration in Canada's trade in energy, trade in manufactured products, payments for travel and interest payments.

Recession may be one reason but "the fact that the current account is not recovering with its usual resilience confirms the suspicion that some fundamental shifts are taking place in the country's international payments," she says.

(Other economists have argued that Canada is catching "the British disease.")

"The adjustments required to make a country live within its means are painful ones," says economist Maxwell.

"It must import less, export more, or borrow less. In each case, this implies some cutback in current consumption."

The economy has a built-in lever designed to achieve those changes. It's called foreign-exchange depreciation, and it makes exports cheaper and imports more expensive.

But the risk, as Ms Maxwell points out, is that people will resist the changes in relative prices by seeking higher wages or prices to help cover their higher costs.

Her conclusion: There's no simple, efficient policy instrument that will solve the balance-of-payments problem.

CROSS-PURPOSES

Some co-ordination of government trade policies would certainly help, however in the opinion of Rod Bilodeau, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

He wonders why export marketing drives should be launched by governments when many Canadian companies' costs are too high to allow them to quote competitive prices on the world market.

And, he asks, "What's the point of seeking new markets abroad when many of our industries are witnessing the erosion of their own domestic base by imports--which in turn weakens their ability to export?"

Governments do offer tax credits as an incentive to exporters. But, Mr. Bilodeau contends, a whole range of other taxes and charges of all kinds help to price Canadian products out of the market.

The chances that the government will start paying attention now, to either economists or manufacturers, is remote.

Figures on the balance-of-payments deficits don't arouse people in the way—for example—that pictures of big-eyed baby seals do.

And the resolution of the problem can be postponed, from one decade to another, by borrowing from some foreigners to pay off others.

One day, however, our credit may run out—and then we may discover what it is to live within our means.

Studies On Zinc Mine Won't Be Made Public

The Opposition has been denied its request for the tabling of all reports and studies on the feasibility of establishing a zinc refinery at Belledune.

But although the Opposition's motion was defeated by voice vote in the Legislature March 11, Natural Resource Minister, Roland Boudreau outlined the government's plans by delivering a prepared statement on the matter.

Mr. Boudreau said discussions are continuing between the Noranda Group and federal government on the possibility of putting a refinery in place, adding that a study group is to make recommendations to the government sometime in May.

Noranda is the major company involved in the mining operations at Belledune, in Mr. Boudreau's Northeastern New Brunswick riding of Nigadoo-Chaleur. The zinc now mined is exported to be refined.

The minister said the provincial government has stepped up its interest in the possibility of establishing a refinery because there is a chance other countries will soon be planning such a facility.

He said the expansion of mining operations at Belledune by 1979 "would be sufficient to feed a moderate-sized refinery."

"Later," he added, "when we might decide to establish refining capacity it might mean withdrawing concentrate supplies from the world market, thus incurring tariff increases on refined zinc by the countries dependent on our supply of concentrate."

Mr. Boudreau also said market projections indicate a worldwide zinc shortage by the early 1980's which will have the effect of driving up the price of zinc. "Thus, I consider this to be the opportune time for planning an investment in a zinc refinery."

He said Noranda has undertaken a feasibility study on the proposed refinery but has indicated it is not prepared to invest money in the project at this time.

Mr. Boudreau concluded that the government's objective is to establish a zinc plant specifically to handle "the increase in output planned after 1979 before this output must be committed to other refineries."

Speaking in support of the Opposition motion, Liberals Rayburn Doucett (Restigouche East), Frank Branch (Nepisiguit)Chaleur) and Norbert Theriault (Bay du Vin) accused the government of dragging its feet.

Mr. Doucett wondered why the government had asked Noranda to conduct the feasibility study, and said he was concerned that any delay in establishing the refinery would result in losing it to another country.

Mr. Branch said people of the northeast have been "studied to death" and demanded immediate action to provide jobs for the unemployed in the region.

Mr. Theriault said that is was time for the government "to show some ability to make decisions" and suggested that the government take an "either-or" position in his negotiations with Noranda.

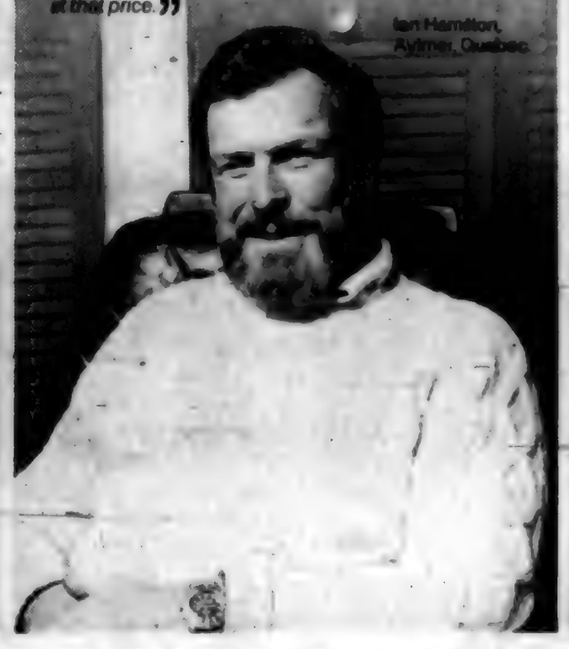
"I went to the dealer many, many times. And looked at the cars many, many times before I finally bought one. I was very impressed with the car. It's design, the price, independent suspension, vacuum-assist disc brakes. You don't get those things usually in a car at that price."

Ian Hamilton, Aylmer, Quebec.



"I never buy anything on a whim. I spend a great deal of time, ultimately trying to get super value for my money. What I do is, I go into every possible facet of anything I buy. As far as the Honda's concerned, it was the best money we've spent."

Richard Arthur, Ottawa, Ontario.

"It's like a sports car in many ways. Handling. Being relatively low to the ground. The seating configuration. Very direct steering. It's as responsive as a sports car. It's never dull."

Mike Froislie, Ottawa, Ontario.

"Our 17-year-old daughter was starting to drive and we felt for 3 people, it was an ideal car. And most of the time just one of us was driving it. So we don't need a large car."

Teoria Andrichuk, Burnaby, British Columbia.

"One of the reasons I would consider buying another one would be I can get a real good price for my '75 because it didn't depreciate in value too much as compared to other cars. And I can afford to buy a new one in another year or so and not really loose that much money on it."

Bill Andrichuk, Burnaby, British Columbia.

POETRY CORNER

Something To Think About

(Taken from a book on Criminology)

ARE THE CHILDREN REALLY TO BLAME?

We read in the paper, we hear on the air
Of killing and stealing and crime everywhere.
We sigh and we say, as we notice the trend,
This younger generation... where will it end?
But can we be sure it's their fault alone?
Too much money to spend... too much idle time,
Too many movies of passion and crime.
Too many books not fit to be read,
Too much evil in what they hear said.
Too many kids encouraged to roam,
Too many parents who don't stay at home
Youth don't make the movies; they don't write the books,
That paint the gay pictures of gangsters and crooks
They don't make the liquor, they don't run the bars,
They don't make the laws and don't build the cars
They don't make the drugs that idle the brain,
It's all done by older folks, greedy for gain.
How many cases we find that it's true...
The label, "Delinquency"... fits older folks, too!!!!

Molasses Chippers

Molasses Chippers are tender, spicy cookies that boast extra flavor from the chocolate chips and nuts in them, and the velvetized evaporated milk keeps them moist, too.

These are delicious and make an excellent lunch for children when served with steaming mugs of Carnation Instant Hot Chocolate.

Make a batch today, and have them ready for your youngsters for an after-school or after-sports activities snack.

2/3 cup softened butter,
1/2 cup sugar,
1 egg,
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour,
1 teaspoon baking soda,
1/4 teaspoon salt,
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon,
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg,
2 teaspoons lemon juice,
1/2 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk,
1/2 cup table molasses,
1 cup (6 ounce package) semi-sweet chocolate chips,
1/2 cup chopped walnuts,

Method: Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add egg and mix well. Sift flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg together. Stir lemon juice into evaporated milk.

Combine evaporated milk and molasses. Add alternately with dry ingredients to creamed mixture. Stir in chocolate chips and walnuts.

Drop by heaping teaspoonfuls about 1 inch apart on buttered cookie sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 12 - 15 minutes. Frost with favorite vanilla icing, if desired.

(Makes three dozen 2¾ inch cookies.)

Two visitors were present. The report of the treasurer Mrs. Emma Jennings was adopted. It was decided that all bills be paid.

A donation of $25 towards new drapes for the church hall was received.

Plans to hold a rummage sale in the church hall on April 23 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. were made and Sandra Daley is in charge of publicity for this project.

The guild decided to hold a chicken salad tea on Nov. 5.

Mrs. H. Ronalds and Mrs. Wesenberg were appointed on the lunch committee for April.

Following adjournment, members attended the weekly ecumenical service at St. George's Anglican Church.

Blind Hams At The Mike A Real Public Service

It is six o'clock in the morning and a retired widower in Cardiff, Ontario has already begun his day. Ed Dunham makes his own breakfast and turns on his Amateur Radio Set to warm it up. Before seven a.m. Ed's dishes are washed and at seven precisely he turns on his transmitter at 3755 kilohertz and begins talking into his microphone.

"This is ONTARS - the Ontario Amateur Radio Service Net sponsored by the Radio Society of Ontario. ONTARS operates everyday from 7:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on a frequency of about 3755 kilohertz. Your net Controller for the hour is Victor Echo 3 Alpha X-ray Romeo. My name is Ed and my location is Cardiff near Bancroft. ONTARS is now standing by for check-ins with or without traffic".

This formula is repeated everyday of the year and has been since January 8, 1972 when ONTARS first went on the air.

ONTARS is primarily a "phone" or voice network which makes it ideal for whitecaners and other operators who may have a problem with their code speed.

The Network serves as an information source but has other purposes as well. Through it Hams can check-in with friends across the province and arrange for private conversations, check on information on the weather, upcoming events and geographic details from mobile units. Not infrequently emergency situations are rectified through the help of Ham operators.

One snowy November a lone driver skidded over a highway embankment and across a twenty foot ditch landing against a fence. A mobile amateur who was behind the car pulled over and called the Peterborough Police who were at the scene of the accident in twenty minutes.

HUGE PARTYLINE

The Net is almost like a huge partyline - an operator can hear hundreds of Hams calling in everyday, can talk to them as he or she chooses and develop close personal friendships with other hams across the province.

The ONTARS net since its inception has grown to be one of the most active ham networks on this continent.

In Quebec "the Happy Gang" is operated for a couple of hours each day by whitecaners and in the maritimes a "White Cane Network" operates regularly.

In terms of numbers each weekday about 350 hams call into ONTARS net, increasing by about 50 per cent on weekdays or holidays. The highest count to date has been 678 in eleven hours and 3188 in the 77 hours of operation during one week.

Shortly after ONTARS Net started, several blind hams volunteered as controllers and proved to be excellent.

More and more blind operators have volunteered to be controllers until now over 60 per cent of the 77 one-hour time slots each week are looked after by whitecaners. This past summer one whitecaner even continued to fill his slots during his holidays by using the VE3 LJC station at the CNIB Lake Joseph Holiday Center.

It is not accidental that whitecaners take such an interest in amateur radio. Ham radio for blind people has grown to become an integral part of CNIB services now offered across Canada. Over 400 sighted hams have spent over 40,000 hours helping blind hams in the assembly of equipment alone.

In addition, these volunteers install these sets and antennae in the homes of blind hams. The degree to which the ham fraternity appreciate the help of whitecaners is clearly indicated by the outstanding success of the ONTARS net.

The overall management of ONTARS including finding controllers for the 77 time spots each week is a continuing job. VE3BC Bruce Carveth is the Manager of ONTARS Net. He has two assistant managers, VE3 AXR Ed Dunham and VE3 GVF Bob Galloway of Hamilton who is himself a whitecaner.

Bruce Carveth, Manager, when speaking of the blind hams involvement with ONTARS said, "This is the nicest way that whitecane hams can show appreciation of the help that their sponsors have given them over the years. They took the initiative on their own and have developed into some of the best ham operators in the country.

The high standards of ONTARS Net pays credit to Managers and Net Controllers and serves as an example to both blind and sighted hams everywhere."

H-S Association Seeks To Improve Conditions

The Mary Gosnell Home and School Association regular monthly meeting was held February 28 in the school auditorium with approximately 30 persons in attendance.

Among the important topics discussed were the application for a Canada Works Grant to initiate a hot lunch program at the school.

A list of items required to improve school conditions were presented by the School Improvement Committee. These will be submitted to the District School Board at its next regular meeting.

Blake Mullin, a member of the school board, was present and brought the association up to date on what the board has approved and will be doing in the near future.

It was decided to send a "letter of support" to the school board, supporting the New Bandon Home and School Association's attempt to obtain a new school.

G. Grant from the Department of Social Service, gave an interesting talk on "child welfare."

Following adjournment, a lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Ritual Held For Members

A ritual of jewels and candelight ceremony took place for Sue Burns, Susan McTavish and Ann Rendell at the Feb. 9 meeting of Kappa Chapter Beta Sigma Phi, held at the home of Karen Estey. Thirteen members were present.

Correspondence from Saint John concerning the convention there set for Oct. 14 - 16 was received. The meeting will be held at the Admiral Beatty Hotel. The entertainment part of the program will circle around the 1920s era such as the Charleston, jitterbug and "razz-ma-tazz" in general. More information including entry deadline will be received at a later date.

A sleigh ride was planned for March 12, followed by a party and lunch of chicken bouillon and an assortment of pies, to be held at the home of Jean and Harry Nelson.

A pot-luck supper will be on the agenda for the next regular meeting at which time officers for the coming year will be elected.

The "girl of the year" votes will be taken at the March 23 meeting and these will be given to Mrs. E. J. Leger, the chapter's social sponsor, for counting. The girl-of-the-year vote is a secret-sister vote and is revealed by the social sponsor at the annual Founder's Day banquet on April 30.

Surprise boxes were won by Diane Knowles and Aurore Despres.

The evening's program was given by Karen Esty on philosophy, an interesting topic, was well presented and covered a wide field. A discussion followed and interesting questions were put forward to the group by Mrs. Estey.

A special lunch was served by Betty Lou Matchett and her membership committee in honor of the three ladies concerned in the jewels' ritual.

DUE BACK FROM CUBAN TRIP SATURDAY

A group of students from Bathurst High School are in Cuba this week during the annual March break on an educational tour of the island combined with, hopefully, sunshine and swimming. Accompanied by Ronald MacMillan of the school's teaching staff, and Mrs. MacMillan as chaperones, the group left early Friday afternoon for Mirabel airport in Montreal where they had arranged overnight accommodations. Their flight Sat. morning took them to Havana where they spent a day before travelling to Veradaro Beach for four days. It is from there that various sidetours have begun to various points of interest including industrial area, communes, museums, etc. Then it's back to Havana for two more days which will include side trips and tours again before returning to Canada this Saturday, and back to Bathurst on Sunday. Arranged through Canadian Educational Travel Association (CETA), fares for the trip and accommodations for the seven days in Cuba are paid for by the students themselves, along with travel to and overnight at Montreal and payment to the bus driver, Bud Jamieson of Charlo. The students shown just before departure time in front of BHS include: Lawny Babin, Byron Boucher, Bronwyn Davies, Elizabeth Dodge, Allyson Doull, Dale Gould, Brian Grebenc, Beverly Hains, James Hatheway, Chris Hill, Jackie Jenkins, Sheena Jennings, Ann LeBlanc, Gary Levert, David Lindsay, Paul Leger, Valerie McLean, Karen Petrie, Wendy Petrie, Patty Salter, Peter Shirley, Gayle Stothart, Elizabeth Veniot, William Veniot, Wendy Walls, Stephen White and Tommy Young.

Music Topic At Meeting

Ninety per cent work and ten per cent talent is what makes a good music student better, said Sister Bernice Cormier who was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of Xi Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi.

The meeting was held at the home of Margo Greenough on Feb. 23.

Speaking on communication with music, Sister Cormier said "a good method of work is the proper foundation." Serious students develop concentration, memory and discipline.

Bathurst, noted Sister Cormier, is a real centre for music, with the highest results in the province. There is a demand for teachers since only a chosen few can advance to further training in a university where the program is intense and expensive.

Referring to the local music festival, sister Cormier felt "we are really fortunate" in having this event every year. A number of dedicated workers put in a whole year's work directly or indirectly. Such a program motivates the students, giving them an incentive to work and present themselves.

In conclusion, Sister Cormier urged everyone to do their part in the upgrading of music via radio and television.

Speaker From Local NB-Tel

Cindy Popp hosted the Mar. 9 meeting of Xi Delta Chapter Beta Sigma Phi.

A letter of appreciation for the chapter's work with the Red Cross was read.

Plans for the next presentation of TNB's Taming Of The Shrew, were drawn up.

The first word you utter or hear after the phone is picked up can make or break the conversation, said the chapter's guest speaker, Mrs. Madonna Boudreau, communications consultant at NB-Tel for the past 10 years.

Mrs. Boudreau said the company trains the staff to answer calls in the proper and polite way. Courses are given and afterwards, evaluation is made.

The speaker emphasized the importance of the telephone in today's world, the proper use of this instrument, and how people can make it work for them and to their advantage.

There is never a dull moment in her work, said Mrs. Boudreau who enjoys her job immensely.

The meeting concluded with lunch served by Judy Losier and Mrs. Popp.

The meeting ended with a luncheon served by Mary Gavin, Carol Knowles and Margo Greenough.

CWL Plans Mini-Retreat

After attending mass at 7 p.m. on Mar. 7, members of Little Flower Council Catholic Women's League held their monthly meeting in their meeting room.

The president, Mrs. Sylvia Lavigne welcomed the members and council director, Rev. Yvon Boudreau. She also mentioned the well-attended World Day of Prayer services which were held this year in St. Theresa Church, and spoke words of appreciation to Mrs. William G. Smith who had delivered the address for the service.

Father Boudreau opened the meeting with the League prayer and gave the Scripture reading.

Plans were discussed for a mini-retreat organized by council members on Holy Thursday after mass, at which time the Blessed Sacrament will be exposed.

One of the members, Mrs. W.G. Smith is participating in organizing a tag day on pro-life to be held in May.

April being election month, it was noted the membership list had been posted and nomination forms were distributed among the members.

Every member was reminded to bring in their annual reports to the April meeting.

March being Red Cross month, members volunteered to canvas in the annual fund-raising campaign.

It was decided to donate towards flowers for the alter at Easter.

Celia Glendenning and Joan Blanchard will visit sick and shut-in persons of the parish during March.

Winners At Card Party

Mrs. Albert Pitre was winner of the ladies' prize at the Mar. 17 card party held by the Maple Leaf Club at the Denis S. Fournier Senior Citizens Home, Demeresque Street.

The men's prize was won by Gervais Boucher.

A donation towards the prizes was made by Mrs. Aloysius Lavigne and 11 tables were in play.

In charge of lunch were Mrs. P. Paquette, Mrs. Edmee Melanson and Miss Minnie Melanson.

The previous week, lunch was served by Mrs. Paquette and Mrs. Melanson. For the occasion, the small cakes were made by Mrs. Dorina Cormier while the sandwiches were prepared by Mrs. Louise Best, Mrs. Ida Lavigne and Miss M. Melanson.

ANN LANDERS

Hurt, Bewildered On Being Jilted

DEAR ANN: I am 30, never married, love my work and have travelled all over the world. Life is good. I live with my parents and believe it or not I'm still a virgin.

Last year I went on a package tour and met a men no one liked because of his appearance. I believe in being nice to everyone and we became good friends.

After the tour he phoned long-distance several times, flew in to see me, his appearance improved and we fell in love. We agreed, however, no sex until marriage. I couldn't believe I had finally met a man who had taken me out dozens of times, asked me to marry him and didn't try to get me into bed. It was wonderful.

Two weeks ago he told me his "secret". He is impotent. I was shocked and disappointed but decided to marry him anyway and try to help him overcome the problem. The next week I told MY secrets. One: I had a hysterectomy when I was 26. Two: I am three years older than I said I was. (I look younger then he does by at least five years.)

Yesterday he wrote me a letter saying it was all over between us. The reason: He couldn't forgive me for lying about my age. I was hurt and bewildered. Do you think the real reason was my operation?

I feel like a silly school kid writing to Ann Landers but I need an answer. – Why Me?

DEAR FRIEND: Why not? Anything can happen to anybody. The man is afraid of marriage (as well as sex). He glommed on to the age misrepresentation as an excuse to fold out. Consider yourself lucky.

DEAR MISS LANDERS: I don't know how old you are but my mom says she read you when she was in high school and that was 20 years ago. If you've been around that long you should be able to answer this question.

Do you remember a song called, "Does Your Chewing Gum Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight"?

I can't believe anyone would write such a dumb song. Please answer. I bet a friend two bits that I am right. -Doubter in Richmond

DEAR RICH: You lose. There was such a song. In fact, I remember the first few lines. Here they are:

"If you chew it in the morning it will be too hard to bite.

"Can't you see I'm going crazy, won't someone set me right?

"Does your chewing gum lose its flavor on the bedpost overnight?"

Have you heard one of the latest hits, "Dropkick Me Jesus Through the Goal Posts of Life"? Just between us kids, I'll take chewing gum.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been reading with interest your letters from bus-riding females complaining that men have become boorish. They believe Women's Lib has done in chivalry. Well, here's my story:

When I offered my seat on the bus to a young woman she looked at me and said, "Thanks a lot, but I think you need it more than I do."

I decided from then on that I'd just sit. Am I right? - E. D., Chicago.

DEAR E.D.: No. You happen to be a friend of mine, so I'm aware of your recent back operation. The woman meant well. Now that you're O.K., dear, remember those manners you learned in Nebraska.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Lander's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

District Workshop Held For W.I. Members

Approximately 45 members attended a workshop for the Upper Gloucester District Women's Institute held at the Orange Lodge Hall, St. George Street, Bathurst on Feb. 22.

Members present were from the five individual area W. I. branches which combine together to make up the district level.

The objectives of such workshops are to enlighten members of Women's Institute work and discuss together the correct procedures followed for conducting meetings as well as the duties of the various officers involved.

Activities began with registrations in charge of the evening's hostess, Mrs. Walter Robertson, beginning at seven o'clock. A "get to know your fellow member" skit prepared by Miss Huberte Leger, home economist at the Department of Agriculture District office in Bathurst, and Mrs. Doran Melansqn, secretary of the Big River W. I. branch, started off the program.

Welcome and an outline of the evening's program was given by the district president, Mrs. Willard Payne. She expressed the hope that the evening would be well spent in getting better acquainted with each other and the aims and objective for all members, and not just officers in the field of W. I. work. In this way, said Mrs. Payne, everyone would have a part to play in the workshop program.

Mrs. Frederick G. Comeau, area director for the north zone which comprises the district Institutes of Restigouche, Northumberland and Gloucester Counties; Mrs. Marcelle Mersereau, home economists at the Bathurst District office; and Mrs. Harper Smith, a past provincial president of the Women's Institute, directed a mock meeting, after which a discussion followed on the errors contained therein. Parliamentary procedure was reviewed which enlightened the group on many phases encountered in institute work and fellowship.

Officers of the Upper Gloucester District Branch outlined the responsibilities associated with their duties, after which the floor was open for discussion on any phase of work in the institute.

The branch officers are: Mrs. Willard Payne, president; Mrs. Sterne Glendenning, vice-president; Mrs. Kenneth Ward, secretary; and Mrs. Alton Smith, treasurer.

Following closing exercises, a buffet lunch, prepared by the W. I. branch executive, was served.

Monday Prayer Meeting Report

The Peace, Love and Joy Prayer Community held its regular weekly meeting at the House of Prayer Monday evening. Those interested are asked to please note the time of the meeting has been changed from 8:00 p.m. to 7:45 p.m.

Five newcomers were introduced and welcomed by the community. Newcomers are urged to arrive early to receive the introductory session so that they may more fully understand and participate in the proceedings.

The teaching was a strong call to all Christians to bind themselves together with love. "We must get our relationships, our families and our lives in order, with God as Lord and Master.

Theme of the readings told of the love and mercy of the Lord. Both the teaching and the readings seemed to bring out the call to unity and love, of preparing ourselves for the future by building a strong foundations of faith in God.

The Eucharist was con-celebrated by Rev. G. Culligan and Rev. G. Sampson. Appropriate hymns were sung by the music ministry and the entire community.

Coffee, tea and fellowship followed at the close of the evening.

Ref: As Jesus was speaking to his disciples before his crucifixion and death, he told them: "I am the way, the truth and the life; no one goes to the Father except by me. John 14:6

Winter Activities At House Of Prayer

Winter activities are continuing in the House of Prayer, both for the young and not-so-young, with varied events taking place during the past two months.

On Sunday, Jan. 16, Douglas Williamson brought his Catechism class to the House of Prayer for different prayer experiences from 6 - 9:00 p.m.

The theme was "Darkness and Light". Rev. Noel Cormier celebrated mass for the group of 25 and encouraged them to let "their light shine before others" as true Christians in our world of today.

During the weekend of Jan. 7 - 9, Sister Lorraine attended the Atlantic Service Committee gathering at Pre-d'en-Haut in Moncton where plans were discussed for a bi-lingual Charismatic conference to be held in Charlottetown Aug. 19 - 29.

A group of about 35 persons met at the House of Prayer Jan. 23 from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. for prayer. Those responsible for different ministries and service to the larger prayer group that meets regularly each Monday evening, met, prayer, shared and discussed ways of improving their service, etc.

The day of Spirtual Renewal on Jan. 30 began with a teaching at 10 a.m. and concluded with a talk by Rev. Gregory Culligan who had just returned from an enriching experience at Bethany House of Intercession for priests at Warwick, R.I.

All enjoyed hearing about this powerful apostolate that is being developed for priests. Mass concluded with a prayer-filled and enlightening day.

The feast of Our Lady of Lourdes was on Feb. 11. The 35th anniversary of Frank and Ardith Russell was observed the same day when about 40 friends and well-wishers gathered at the House of Prayer for a beautiful mass at 7:00 p.m.

Father Culligan, as celebrant, began by offering mass and best wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Russell. He wished them many more happy years.

After about 15 minutes of "thanksgiving" after the mass, all gathered in the Sisters' living room for a lunch to celebrate the jubilarians.

On Sunday, Feb. 27, the monthly Day of Renewal, the theme was Reconciliation.

Father Culligan gave a splended teaching on the theme and explained how this sacrament has changed and could be more helpful. The day ended with the celebration of mass, followed by the serving of coffee and lunch.

Ann Whelton brought a group of 20 teenagers from Dalhousie to spend a weekend at the House of Prayer. Rev. Yvon Boudreau celebrated mass during which the students took an active part in singing. All were deeply impressed with, and enjoyed their "weekend of prayer."

BIBLE-DIGEST: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." Romans 12:21

We have good news and bad news..

You win some and you lose some — and that's about where the average consumer stands in relation to Canada's falling dollar rate.

Those imported fruit and vegetables — which had already increased in price because of the Florida frosts — are going to cost even more because the Canadian dollar is worth less now than it was a few months ago. This represents only a small proportion of the average food budget and homegrown items can be substituted.

On the other hand, Canadian export products are going to look much more attractive to other countries since the devaluation of the dollar means that Canadian goods now cost less abroad — and that means that Canadian export firms may get busier, and have to employ more people.

Imported wines and clothing will be costing more because of the devalued dollar — but that may mean that more people will try the Canadian variety and find they've been missing something worthwhile. And that certainly would be good for the Canadian economy.

A holiday abroad is going to cost more — but if you decide to stay in Canada for your summer holiday, that means more money in the Canadian economy, and perhaps more summer jobs for those students who have been worrying about next year's tuition. Besides that, Americans will find it more attractive to visit Canada since they will receive a premium on each US dollar spent.

And while all this is going on, goods and services that are produced in Canada will cost the same as they would have if the dollar had stayed at 100 cents — — depending on where your you won't feel the crunch of devaluation. The pound of hamburger is still the same price in terms of the time you have to work to be able to buy it.

So the fluctuation of the falling dollar can be good news and bad news — depending on where your priorities lie.

. . .is this any consolation?

Alexander the Great suffered from it. Julius Caesar too. Then there were dozens of Chinese emperors who handed it down from generation to generation. Kings and Queens of Europe were rotted it to their countries and George Washington complained of it constantly to Martha.

A rare disease? Headaches? The plague? Nope to all three. The main thing that linked all these historic figures is inflation. All found out that the dollar, gem, talent or whatever did not go as far as it used to.

Although we tend to think of inflation as a modern economic ailment, brought about by a combination of greedy unions, gouging capitalists, incompetent governments and international wheeling and dealing, it just isn't so.

In ancient times homeowners were hit just as hard by soaring prices and declining currency as today's harrowed shoppers. Take the example of Alexander the Great. When he captured vast hoards of Persian gold and dumped it onto Greek marketplaces the money supply expanded so rapidly that individual coins quickly dropped in value.

The same with the economies of Spain and Portugal when gold began pouring into these two countries from the conquests of Peru and Mexico. Suddenly there was a mountain of gold pursuing a limited supply of goods and services. The result: spiralling prices.

Then there were other cases of self-induced inflation. The Ancient Chinese, Greeks and Romans thought on bouts of raising prices by debasing coinage. The trick there was to clip pieces of precious metal from existing coins, melt it down and re-mint it into new coins or simply debase the gold and silver used for metal money.

A neat trick and one that was used to finance wars and, at least a couple of crusades. The problem was people quickly caught on to the fact that the coinages were not heralding their worth but were instead chopping them to pieces. As the value of the coins went down, prices went up.

MPs Oppose Legislation

Gloucester MP Herb Breau said in Ottawa over the weekend that his concern about proposed changes in Unemployment Insurance Commission payments is shared by some of his colleagues from the Atlantic Provinces.

Mr. Breau said the group has asked the cabinet to reconsider the bill in view of worsening unemployment in the country, especially in the Maritimes.

Statistics Canada reported that the number of jobless soared to a new high of 932,000 in February for a seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate of 7.9 per cent, equalling the worst monthly level on record back in June 1958.

The Atlantic Provinces were the hardest hit, with unemployment rates of 15.1 per cent in Newfoundland, 13 per cent in New Brunswick, 11 per cent in Nova Scotia and nine per cent in Prince Edward Island.

"We may or may not vote against it, but we have communicated our serious concerns to Prime Minister Trudeau, Manpower Minister Bud Cullen and the four Maritime ministers", he said.

There are 15 Liberal MPs from the Atlantic Provinces, including Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson, Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald and Environment Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

Mr. Breau declined to name other MPs unhappy with the bill.

"GRAYBEARD! I AM ONE THAT LOVES BIANCA MORE!" Baptista, father of Bianca and Kate the Shrew (played by Jack Northmore) listens to the ravings of two hot-tempered suitors for his younger daughter's hand: aging Gremio (Colin Miller) on the left is challenged by Lucentio (David Ferry), right. But this Lucentio is in reality Tranio, Lucentio's servant, assigned to distract other suitors while the true Lucentio, disguised as a schoolmaster, courts Bianca at close range in the schoolroom. The scene is from the comic farce, The Taming of the Shrew, which Theatre New Brunswick brings to Nepisiguit High School on Thursday, March 24, at 8 p.m.

Monument In Memory Of Scottish Settlers

On May 9, at Lamlash, Isle of Arran, Scotland, the descendents of Scottish emigrants who came from the Isle of Arran to the Bay of Chaleur district of New Brunswick and Quebec and Megantic County, Quebec, will dedicate a memorial to these early settlers of Canada. The descendents of these Highland Gaelic-speaking people are now living in every province of Canada and in every state of the United States. Outside the Maritive Provinces, the largest groups are in the western provinces and the states of Wisconsin and California.

The memorial was planned by the Arran Memorial Committee, comprising Miss Vera Hamilton, Charlo; George Cook, Saint John; Harvie McMillan, Nash Creek; Arthur McNeish, Point la Nim; Earl McNeish, secretary, Campbellton - all in New Brunswick working with the Caledonian Society of Restigouche and also with their representative James Scott of Brodick, Arran.

The land for the monument and gardens was donated through the generosity of Lady Jean Fford, daughter of the late Duke and Duchess of Montrose. The installation of the monument and general arrangement of the memorial is under the supervision of Dr. David White, Chairman of the Cunninghame District Council the governing body for Arran, and other interested individuals of Arran. Funds for the monument have been donated by Arran descendents across North America, whose names will be listed in the books.

The memorial consists of a monument erected near the site of "the mound" with an appropriate inscription. This "mound" was formed by small stones placed there by the emigrants as they boarded the ships for Canada. Memorial books will contain the known names of about 300 of those who left Arran for Bay of Chaleur and about 200 for Megantic during the period from 1829 to 1840. One copy of the Memorial Book is to be presented to the people of Arran and one copy will be brought to New Brunswick and one to Quebec.

Special events are being planned for the second week in May by those in Arran. This will include a church service at Sannox on Sunday, May 8, pageants by the school children, and the memorial dedication on Monday, May 9. The Sannox Church has been in use since 1822 and was the place of worship for those who left Arran for Canada in 1829. The monument will be unveiled by Mrs. Myrtle Cook Maxwell of Blackland, Restigouche County, N.B., whose grandparents were born in Arran and came to the Bay of Chaleur area before 1830.

Many descendents from Canada and the United States are planning to attend the Arran events. Those wishing to obtain further information or wish to contribute to the memorial may do so by contacting James S. Adam, Organizer, International Gathering of the Clans, Edinburgh, Scotland, or any member of the Arran Memorial Committee in New Brunswick or by contacting their local travel agent.

and organizations throughout the province related to cultural affairs.

Death Occurs At Moncton

ST. LEOLIN—The death of Antime Downing occurred Mar. 9 at Dr. Georges Dumont Hospital in Moncton at the age of 79.

Surviving are his wife, the former Marie-Anne LeGresley; three sons, Simon of Montreal, Benny of Caraquet and Albert of St. Leolin; two daughters, Mrs. Luc Godin (Jeannette) of Bertrand and Mrs. Martin Theriault (Anne-May) of Grand Anse; three brothers, Benoit and Francis, both of Montreal and Alphonse of St. Leolin.

Mr. Downing rested at LeGresley's Funeral Home, Grand Anse.

The funeral was held at Saint-Simon and Saint-Jude Church, Grand Anse, Saturday at 4 p.m. followed by entombment. Burial in the adjoining parish cemetery will take place later this spring.

Company Executive Alarmed By Decision

The vice-president of finance for The New Brunswick Telephone Company, Limited says he is "alarmed" with the rates decision handed down March 7 by the New Brunswick Board of Commissioners of Public Utilities.

J.A. Coombs said the company will continue to do the best it can to provide service to existing customers, provide service to new customers and provide service improvements in rural areas of the province.

"However, substantial expense cuts will have to be made which will affect payroll costs more than anything else," said Mr Coombs. "We can make no committment to maintain present levels of employment."

In its decision, the Public Utilities Board said NBTel could increase its 1977 revenues by approximately $4.5 million. The company had asked for an $8.7 million increase in its application of October 28, 1976.

"The Public Utilities Board recognized in its decision that inflation was creating a serious problem for the company," said Mr. Coombs. "It also re-affirmed that the company should be permitted a minimum rate of return on common equity of 13 per cent. As well, the Board said the company should embark on its full capital construction program of $55.5 million in 1977.

"These are all re-assuring words. But, what is missing in the decision is an adequate amount of money to make these words a reality."

Mr. Coombs said it appears the company will not be able to achieve its minimum financial goals without seriously affecting service levels.

"On the basis of current budgets, our return on common equity will be down substantially from the 13.5 per cent achieved in 1976. Significant expense cuts will be necessary even to earn the minimum rate of return of 13 per cent allowed by the Board.

"The company has already started a very detailed and painstaking exercise to identify necessary expense cuts and associated service consequences. We will have to develop a plan that will best balance service and financial objectives for 1977 and beyond."

LIGHT LOAD

Carry only today's burden - don't add to it the burden of yesterday and the day before.

Old Age Pension Payments Rising

Increases in the Old Age Security pension, Guaranteed Income Supplement and Spouse's Allowance, effective in April, 1977, were announced recently by Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde.

Increases in Old Age Security pension and Guaranteed Income Supplement payments represent the fourteenth quarterly escalation based on the cost of living, as provided for in the Old Age Security Act.

The new monthly total at the single rate for persons receiving both the basic Old Age Security pension and maximum Guaranteed Income Supplement will be $244.06.

For a married couple, both pensioners, the combination of the basic pension and maximum supplement will provide a payment of $465.62 for the couple monthly.

The basic Old Age Security pension will rise in April to $143.46 from the present $141.34.

The Quaranteed Income Supplement is paid to pensioners whose income, apart from the Old Age Security pension, is limited. The amount of the supplement varies in relation to the amount of income.

The maximum Guaranteed Income Supplement for a single person, or a married person whose spouse is not a pensioner and is not receiving a Spouse's Allowance, will go up in April to $100.62 form its current $99.13. The maximum supplement for a married couple, both pensioners, will increase to $89.35 each from $88.03. Added to the basic pension, this will give each married pensioner $232.81 monthly, or a total of $465.62 for the couple.

The Spouse's Allowance is paid to persons between 60 and 65 years of age who are married to Old Age Security pensioners and meet residence requirements. Entitlement to a Spouse's Allowance, and amount paid, is based on yearly income.

The maximum Spouse's Allowance is made up of an amount equivalent to the basic Old Age Security pension and the maximum Guaranteed Income Supplement at the married rate.

Caraquet Man Named To Post

René Robichaud has been appointed Cultural Development Officer for the Department of Youth, Recreation and Cultural Resources, it was announced March 2 by the minister, Jean-Pierre Ouellet.

A native of Caraquet, Mr. Robichaud attended Collège de Bathurst and Université de Moncton where he was active in cultural affairs. He is a former director of programming and an announcer at Université de Moncton's student radio station (CKUM) and coordinated social and cultural events at the university.

TRY OUR HILLS FOR SIZE

We think the best Alpine skiing in the Maritimes is in New Brunswick. Where? Try these hills for size:

Sugarloaf: A mile south of Campbellton, (route 270), with a 507-foot vertical, three tows, including two t-bars, ski school, rentals, lodge and canteen, day and night skiing;

Poley Mt.: Seven miles east of Sussex, (route 111), 800-foot vertical, two t-bars, ski school, lodge, day-care center;

Crabbe Mt.: 33 miles north of Fredericton, (route 104), 800-foot vertical, two t-bars, rentals and ski school, lodge and day-care;

Mt. Farlagne: Three miles north of Edmundston, (Trans Canada Highway), 595-foot vertical, t-bar, day and night skiing, lodge and canteen, ski school, day-care.

If cross-country's your game, we've miles and miles of perfect trails; and there are also hundreds of miles of groomed, and patrolled, snowmobile trails all over the province.

Best of all, our motels, hotels and lodges feature very reasonable winter rates.

Winter in New Brunswick: you'll find a warm welcome everywhere.

School Board Status Remains Unchanged

A formal proposal from a citizens' action committee for the formation of two distinct and autonomous school districts was officially rejected Thursday, March 24 at the regular monthly meeting of District No. 4 School Board.

The matter had been thoroughly discussed earlier in the week at a committee-of-the-whole meeting of the board.

Speaking on the proposed restructuring, which would be based on language, Trustee Theophile Boudreau of Petit Rocher noted the board's first obligation was to the best interests of all young people in the district, regardless of their backgrounds.

"It (the board) fulfills its mandate in good faith, with justice and to the best of its ability", said Mr. Boudreau. "It constantly strives to provide the best educational services to the youth of this district with the sums of money provided by the minister in the budget of the district for the operation of the schools."

Introducing the actual motion to maintain the present one - district system, Mr. Boudreau said the board did not see the necessity of supporting the formation of two distinct and autonomous school districts. The motion was seconded by South Teteagouche Trustee Ian Oliver.

On the motion, Trustee Adrien Frenette of Robertville said he did not think the board was answering the action committee and the reasons given were not good ones.

He said he had participated in the activities of the action committee which had made the restructuring proposal and had studied both sides of the question when he had experienced doubts. He said he was convinced separate districts were the answer and he intended to continue to work in this direction.

Taken to a vote, trustees showed their preference of one school district by a 11 - 1 count, with Mr. Frenette in sole opposition.

Board Chairman Real Boudreau of Beresford said he wanted it understood that while he was not required to vote, he favored the present structure.

Later in the meeting, Mr. Frenette commented he was in favor of French and English districts because he felt a better job could be done through separate operations.

He pointed to the action committee's argument that a precedent had been set when separate districts were created in the Moncton area, the province declared two official languages and the department of education assumed a dual set up.

In other business, trustees supported a recommendation from the N. B. School Superintendents Association that school boards should have the freedom to meet staff requirements at the district office level for all positions below that of school supervisor.

A letter from D. A. Bone, assistant deputy minister of education, asked for the board's opinion on the subject by April 15.

The board opposed a proposal by the education department that the school budget year be changed to coincide with the province's fiscal year. It was noted that salary negotiations and hirings are carried out according to the school year and September, being "an unpredictable month" was not a good time to prepare for the next school year's requirements.

Annual Cub Parade Colorful And Impressive

The second annual Bathurst District Wolf Cub parade and ecumenical service at Sacred Heart Cathedral Sunday afternoon was attended by about 200 cubs, their leaders, and approximately 400 parents and friends.

The youngsters represented Sacred Heart Pack, First United Packs A and B, Holy Family Packs A and B, Our Lady of the Rosary, New Bandon, South Bathurst, East Bathurst, Jacquet River and Dalhousie.

Upon invitation, there was also a large representation from the Beavers, Scouts, Venturers and Rovers; Brownies, Girl Guides and Rangers, as well as officials from Bathurst District Council.

As guest speaker, Rev. Charles Picot of Dalhousie and formerly of Bathurst talked about Lord Baden Powell, founder of Scouting. Father Picot reminded the boys of what the movement offers to all ages and the way to take advantage of it.

Also at the altar and taking part were Rev. Gregory Culligan of Sacred Heart Cathedral, Rev. Yvon Boudreau of St. Theresa's Church, South Bathurst; and Dr. E.R. Woodside of First United Church.

Invitations to attend were extended by the organizers to Msgr. Edgar Godin, Bishop of Bathurst; Roland Boudreau, Minister of Natural Resources, Herb Breau, MP for Gloucester; Frank Branch, MLA Nepisiguit-Chaleur; Eugene McGinley, MLA for Bathurst; Mayor John A. Duffy; Ian Tower, Doug McMaster, assistant district cubmaster, the Bathurst District staff; members of the provincial staff and all group committee chairmen in the area.

The organizing committee, headed by Roland Beaudoin of the Sacred Heart Pack, was grateful to those who did attend.

The special collection was directed towards Operation Amigo, a project to help Scouting in the underdeveloped countries.

Singing was under the direction of Miss Claire Cyr and Mrs. Linda Cripps was organist.

NOT RECOMMENDED AS OLYMPIC SPORT

Spring break-up on the bay has finally begun, and with it comes a very hazardous situation as far as young boys and girls and a practice commonly referred to as "jumping icebergs" is concerned. As can be seen here, youngsters are already out hopping from ice floe to ice floe, little realizing how truly dangerous such a pastime can be. Even if "the water isn't deep" in certain places, the same can't be said about all sections of the harbour. And it doesn't take long to become numb with cold after an unexpected dip, or to become stranded on an ocean-bound ice chunk. All adventuresome youngsters, beware.

JIGSAW PUZZLE

The annual report of the Provincial Auditor-General, Wm. McNichol recently filed in the N.B. Legislature is an interesting if annoying document as usual.

By the same token, the statistics listed, denoting loss and waste of public funds, do not salve the wounds of those called upon to pay additional taxes to underwrite some of these lost causes.

It's the same thing every year, however. The problems are revealed but nothing concrete ever seems to be done about them. A like situation has existed under both present and past governments, federal as well as provincial. It would seem, then, that the auditors-general mandates on both levels are nothing more than jokes.

Quoted facts and figures like "total provincial taxes outstanding increased by $34.1 million between 1972 and 1976, but no efforts were made to collect arrears" are certainly galling to those people who always pay up and shut up.

NEW TO CITY

Bathurst welcomes a new organization and one which should prove beneficial to the community and its citizens. It's a branch of the Consumers' Assn. of Canada.

Heading the group as president is William Luff, while Jane Richard is secretary, and Annette Tremblay, treasurer. Other officers and committees remain to be appointed.

A first regular meeting of Consumers is scheduled for April 4, at 7:30 p.m. It is to be held at the home of the president, Mr. Luff, 1120 Daniel Dr. Subsequent sessions will be held also on the first Monday of each month.

Additional information is available to interested persons by phoning 548-9311.

Board Hears Details Of Belledune Blaze

District Superintendent R. A. Ouellette told No. 4 school trustees March 24 that 201 students in Grades 1 - 9 at Belledune have returned to classes in temporary quarters while an investigation into the cause of a blaze at the five-year-old Belledune School continues.

Speaking at the regular School Board session Thursday night, Mr. Ouellette stated students were now receiving instruction in the Belledune Recreation Centre, the former Belledune School. Six classrooms and three mobile units are available at the centre as well as auditorium and washroom facilities. The Belledune Recreation Council will receive $550 per month in rent as compensation for loss of revenue.

A blaze at the newly-constructed Belledune School March 12 forced an early March break closure of the building. Extensive damage in the administration area resulted, as did some damage in the library and extensive smoke damage throughout the stone structure.

Trustees decided to ask the provincial education department to post a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the outbreak as arson has been indicated. In the meantime, watchmen are being maintained around the clock at the school until the responsibility is taken over by the contractor making repairs.

The education department has assured that every effort would be made to have repairs completed by the end of June or early July.

In other business, Sunday, April 3 at 2 p.m. was set as the time for the official opening of the new junior high school at Beresford, Carrefour Etudiant. Education Minister Charles Gallagher and Natural Resources Minister Roland Boudreau will attend.

Construction Committee Chairman Edward Blanchard recommended and received board approval for the revised preliminary plans for the Bathurst High School extension. Tenders were accepted for heating improvements at Mary Gosnell School and Assumption Academy amounting in total to more than $25,000. Other major repair contracts were awarded for painting and floor covering at the Petit Rocher Intermediate and Sacred Heart Schools respectively.

The board will recommend to the department of supply and services that a 20 x 50 foot piece of land embankment at Superior School be sold to Allan White to provide him with a lot of the required size.

A letter from the Mary Gosnell Home and School Association supported the New Bandon area request for a new elementary school.

Board support was given to Nepisiguit High School in its attempt to have social studies volumes transferred from the Community College Library to the library at the school.

Permission was given for 35 Nepisiguit High School students to go to the Louis J. Robichaud School in Shediac on March 31 as part of a school exchange. Also okayed were educational trips to Fredericton by Superior School on June 9 and by Pointe Verte School students on June 17.

It was agreed a special meeting of the board would be held on April 19 to review the 1977-78 budget. It is expected an assessment report and recommendation on the partial French immersion program will be given at that time.

Local Newsman Merits Award

RAY DOUCET

Ray Doucet, originally from Bathurst, and a prolific byline writer with The Montreal Star, has been given an "outstanding reporting" award by the Canadian Modern Pentathlon Association for his work during the 1976 Summer Olympics.

The award was presented March 25 by George Gate, the newly-elected president of the CMPA.

Mr. Doucet was among the Star's 34-member Olympic coverage team which received numerous tributes for its work prior to and during the Olympics.

In presenting the award, Mr. Gate emphasized that the main target of the association would be the formation of a championship team for the 1980 Summer Games in Moscow.

Mr. Gate, known as a builder of champions for his great success with the Pointe Claire Swimming Club, says the CMPA badly needs funds from both government and private sources.

Competitors for the pentathlon - a series of five gruelling competitions in swimming, riding, shooting and running - have few adequate facilities in Canada, despite a crop of "super" athletes now becoming interested in the sport.

"We have some super athletes in the competition," says Mr. Gate, "and there is no reason why private business, for instance, shouldn't get involved financially".

Mr. Doucet is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. (Lug) Doucet, 156 St. Patrick St., Bathurst.

Community Theatre Goes To The Public

Members of Bathurst's drama-minded Community Theatre Inc. will be looking for the moral and financial support and encouragement of citizens this Friday and Saturday as they hold their first tag day.

From 6 p.m. Friday, April 1 to 6 p.m. April 2, the young people will be out in full force at both malls as well as in the downtown area in an effort to raise funds for future productions.

In conjunction with the drive, Community Theatre will stage two puppet shows in the Bathurst Shopping Mall on Saturday at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Dracula and the Muffin Man will be on hand to greet the kiddies as will YoYo the Clown who will emcee the puppet presentations.

As stated, all proceeds will go into the preparation of the talented group's newest undertaking, a three-act comedy called Harvey. Funds are needed for building sets, costume materials, theatrical make-up, warehouse rental fees, etc., and the enthusiastic actors are totally dependent upon the generosity of local citizens.

The support of the public is essential if the group is to continue turning out presentations of the same calibre as the much-acclaimed Jesus Christ Superstar staged last summer during Hospitality Days.

Assumes Command At CFB Valcartier

National Defence Headquarters has announced the promotion of Col. J. J. Alyre Doucet, 47, to the rank of brigadier-general, effective March 25. Simultaneously he is appointed commanding officer of No. 5 Canadian Brigade Group and of Canadian Forces Base Valcartier, P.Q.

In his new post, Brig.-Gen. Doucet succeeds Brig.-Gen. Ronald Michaud, who has been transferred to National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, as of April 1.

Born in Robertville, near Bathurst, in 1929, Brig.-Gen. Doucet was educated at Sacred Heart College. Following his training as an artillery officer, he became attached to the 2nd Field Regiment RCHA in October, 1950.

Following three years of service in Shilo, Ford Lewis, Korea and finally in Winnipeg, he commenced an artillery instructor's course at the Royal Canadian School of Artillery and joined the faculty of this same training centre a year later.

In 1955, Brig.-Gen. Doucet completed an advance course for artillery officers at the United States Army Artillery School and returned to Shilo with the rank of captain for a 3-year posting.

Following qualification as a pilot in 1959, Brig.-General Doucet was transferred to No. 1 Air Observation Post Divisional Flight, Petawawa, for a two-year period. Following this he moved to general staff headquarters in Ottawa.

In 1963, Brig.-Gen. Doucet was chosen as a general staff course at Kingston, during which he was promoted to the rank of major. Two years later he returned to the artillery school as senior gunnery instructor and Canadian representative on the International Committee for the Standardization of Artillery Procedures.

From 1967 to 1968, Brig.-Gen. Doucet attended the U.S. General Headquarters College at Leavenworth, Texas, and was then appointed Canadian liaison officer at the U.S. Army Artillery School in Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in July 1969, Brig.-Gen. Doucet was simultaneously named senior staff officer for the Quebec Region, based at Montreal. From June 1970 to July 1972, he commanded the 5th Canadian Light Artillery Regiment at Valcartier and then became assistant commander of the Combat Arms School at Canadian Forces Base Gagetown. This was followed by a year at National Defence College, Kingston, Ont.

In July 1974, Brig.-General Doucet was promoted to the rank of colonel and transferred to Mobile Command Headquarters, St. Hubert, P.Q. as Deputy Chief of Staff Operations and co-ordinator of the support troops for the Olympic Games.

BRIG.-GEN. J.J.A. DOUCET

National Defence Headquarters in August 1976, assigned Brig.-General Doucet to the Central Army Group (CENTAG) in Seckenheim, Germany, as assistant to the Senior Staff Officer in charge of Logistics and head of the Logistical Planning Section.

Brig.-General Doucet is married to the former Doris Hachey, daughter of Mrs. Seraphin Hachey and the late Mr. Hachey of Bathurst, and they have three daughters, Lynn, Lise and Denise. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Doucet of Robertville. His father was a First World War veteran and a well-known forest ranger in this part of the province.

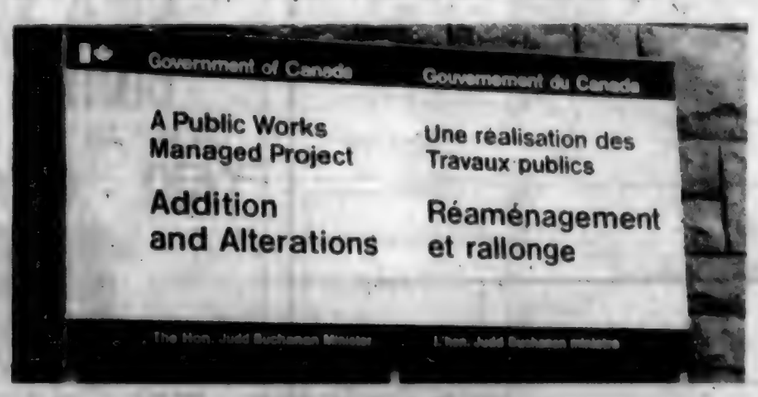
Ticket Sales Are Booming

Atlantic Loto ticket sales are continuing to be brisk in the Bathurst area according to Peter LeBlanc, distributor for the city as well as the downshore area to Shippegan and as far south as Newcastle and Chatham.

"Per capita, we are doing very well," Mr. LeBlanc told The Northern Light Monday, "and keeping my 90 retailers supplied with enough tickets is truly a full-time job."

He noted that the supply of the much sought-after tickets has finally caught up with the demand, and leftovers are few and far between. Retailers include some high-traffic corner stores, although the heaviest volume of sales comes from drugstores and bookstores in the region.

"We are getting our share of the winnings too", said Mr. LeBlanc, pointing to a recent $25,000. winner in Chatham and, of course, the big $100,000. grand prize which found its way to a Bathurst family in the final February draw.



SIGN OF THE TIMES

Indicating that renovations and repairs are underway at the local federal building due to the "benevolence" of Hon. Judd Buchanan, minister of Public Works, this sign made its appearance on the facade of the King Ave. structure during the past week. Today Postmaster General Jean-Jacques Blais is in Saint John to launch a 12-cent commemorative stamp depicting the Western Cougar, one of Canada's endangered wildlife species, his hosts including N.B. Natural Resources Minister Roland Boudreau. Too bad the Nigadoo-Chaleur MLA doesn't bring Mr. Blais to Bathurst to see at first hand the makeshift postal accommodations the people and personnel have to contend with for an indefinite period. Even if only temporary, it's still an inconvenient and retrogressive step for the province's action centre.

TWENTY COUPLES PREPARE FOR MARRIAGE

A marriage preparation weekend was held at Maison St-Joseph for 20 couples March 25-27. The main topics discussed were communication between couples and sexuality. Local Lawyer Pierre Tremblay gave a presentation on "Marriage and the Law", while a dissertation by Dr. D.A. Wade dealt with childbirth. Bernard Boudreau led a discussion on family budgeting. First row from the left are: Rejean Frenette, Simonne Frenette, Etienne Roy, Linda Vienneau, Jeanette Roy, Jacques Roy, Hubert Arseneau, Lise Arseneau, Bernadette Legace and Claude Daigle; second row: Freddy Kenny, Jeannine Kenny, Alyre Gionet, Lorraine Gionet, Rev. J. Robert, Irene Halley and Gilles Halley, coordinators; third row: Jacques Hache, Cyrilla Hache, Marc Hachey, Noella Boudreau, Laurent Gagnon, Florence Robichaud, Rodrigue Comeau, Carmella Doucet, Jocelyne Losier, Stephane Losier, Adeline Boudreau and Florent Cormier; Gervais Doucet, Christine Godin, Donald Gauvin, Jeanita LeBlanc, Rejeanne Allain, Michel Roy, Paul Morrison, Alma-Jeanne Guignard, Claire Chiasson and Harmel Mazerolle.

MILESTONE MARKED BY BANK OF MONTREAL

The Bank of Montreal observed the 75th anniversary of the opening of its Bathurst branch last week March 21 - 25. Mayor John A. Duffy officially cut the birthday cake (while the staff looked on), and it was served to the public who joined in the celebration along with coffee and doughnuts during regular banking hours. Attending from Fredericton, was Dan Moore (extreme left), district manager for New Brunswick.

Some Predictions Already Borne Out

(CONTRIBUTED)

Last December, Dr. Alex Tanous, a noted parapsychologist whose mother came from Campbellton, made a few predictions regarding the coming year (1977)

About New Brunswick, he said: "For the spruce budworm; by spring a breakthrough will be quietly discussed other than a spray as now done. It may take a few years to fully materialize but the answer will be known."

"Premier Hatfield will have a trying year and will be called upon to participate in a major decision affecting the future role of all of canada in some way. He will make the right decision."

"Your next legislature session will be lively. Premier Hatfield hasn't seen anything yet."

"A very bad time for both your provincial and nation leaders is due in the year ahead."

"Scandal - yes, you are going to have a home-grown one there but I can't put my finger on it. It will involve a lot of people and a female will be foremost in it. People will talk a lot about it because it is unusual and quite unique."

"New Brunswick will get a surprise probably before the year end. The move means a new face which will move rapidly forward in the provincial scene. Look for a new idea that will gain wide support."

"Weatherwise, look for a very cold winter ('76-'77) with major snowstorms. the unusual fact is the cold will cause heating system problems and many home fires. By spring, fire deaths from malfunctioning heating units will be high."

"Spring will come early with a lot of rain. There will be some flooding but localized, and more due to rain than ice and snow. The summer will be beautiful but again, some severe rainstorms will cause damage. The fall will linger and late in the year, dry weather will worry homeowners about their water systems."

Moving on to the national scene Dr. Tanous predicted:

"Quebec will not leave Canada. There will be a lot of talk a lot of smoke but no fire - and no referendum will come about of any significance."

"Prime Minister Trudeau has his family completed now and will be happy in that. For him, however his political family isn't happy and his political life is coming to a close now. He is at the zenith of power for the last time. Quebec will prove his nemisis and be the key to a swing away from him."

"Whoever - and remember I said whoever - heads the Canadian government will settle the issue of Quebec and a stronger, more viable Canada will emerge. Economics will dictate reason."

"A prominent politician in Canada who is apparently in good health will die suddenly. He will be widely mourned."

"Several prominent people will be in trouble of one kind or another and a scandal over illegally gained money will ruin several people and a career."

"Watch the west coast of Canada. An earthquake will shake it as it will all the western part of the continent. I see an unusual disaster in Alberta of the natural variety."

"A natural resource discovery will prove Canada is a leader. It will be a major, proved find of significance and high value."

Going on to international forecasts, Dr. Tanous prophesies:

"Richard Nixon will hit prominence in a way other than his explanation of Watergate."

"Prince Chales will make headlines with an involvement with a female and the Queen will have no choice but to stay on for a year amid rumors she plans to step aside."

"A severe illness for the Queen Mother will cause grave concern."

"An archaeological discovery will make world news and change our concept of pre-historical times."

"Earthquakes, tornados and volcanos will all be active and violent. Some will be the largest natural disasters recorded by man. Southern Europe, South America, mid and western United States and western Canada as Hawaii, are all to experience 'nature's wrath'."

And women take note - Dr. Tanous predicts that "a new Supreme Court appointee will be different - a woman is a front-runner for the post - a milestone for the U.S."

Parapsychology, by the way, is not associated with spiritualism or superstition. It's the study of mental phenomenon not explainable by accepted principles of science.

So serious a subject do scientists consider it that fellowships in physical research have been established in Harvard and Cambridge Universities.

New Brunswickers with their usual wisdom, have always taken people with "the gift" seriously.

No Effective Bird Control

A Bathurst farmer who has experienced a loss of as much as $2,000 because of problems with the bird population in the area has been directed to express his concern to the Canadian Wildlife Service and the federal and provincial resource agencies for information on control methods.

In a letter to W. G. Smith of R.R. 5, Bathurst, S. R. Colpitts, head of the pesticide division of the N. B. Department of Agriculture and Rural Development, noted that damage to corn crops by birds is a province-wide problem and little concrete evidence on effective control methods exists.

Mr. Smith had earlier suggested a closer look by the provincial government as the problem was too much for the individual farmer to cope with.

"My own loss this past year, with a very limited operation," Mr. Smith pointed out, "would be at least $2,000, and other lost their complete corn crop. The birds have been increasing rapidly in this area, and I would guess that within a very short time, it will be impossible to grow grain and-or fruit of any kind. And if there comes a shortage of feed of this kind, they will surely attack other crops."

Mr. Colpitts noted that the problem of blackbird damage is receiving considerable review by a federal committee, and various agencies are involved in methods to effect an abatement program.

In the meantime, Mr. Colpitts suggested Mr. Smith enlist the aid of the wildlife service and the federal environment and provincial fish and wildlife branch for more information on control.

He added, however, that all types of existing controls have been disappointing to date.

Not All Bacteria Harmful Some Beneficial To Man

Bacteria implies to the majority of people, mainly harmful germs which infect food, the air and the bodies of living plants and animals and humans, causing illness and death.

It is doubtful if people are aware of the many important, beneficial contributions that bacteria provide for man's well being.

Bacteria decompose dead animals and plants, thus providing nutrients to make the soil fertile.

Bacteria and sewage disposal units purify domestic wastes by oxidizing and digesting organic materials.

Bacteria may render industrial and domestic wastes innocuous to fish by oxidizing these wastes.

Certain bacteria can decompose phenolic wastes from petroleum refineries, while others - eg. Ferrobacillus Ferrooxidans) can remove pollutants, such as oxides of sulphur from fuel as it is burnt.

Industrial production food supplements, enzymes, organic acids and medicinal agents often depend on bacterial action.

Common foods such as cheese, butter, milk, pickles, olives, sauerkraut, cocoa and tea depend on bacterial action. Bacteria (and other microorganisms) are also used in the production of tobacco, linen and alcoholic beverages – wine, beer, rum, whiskey, etc.

Bacteria also assists in the digestion of food, not only for ruminants such as cattle and sheep, but also for man.

On the other hand, as has been noted, there are some bacteria which cause illness.

The food illness bacteria include Salmonellae, Streptococci, Staphylococci and Clostridia.

Food illness bacteria, like any other microorganisms, can be transferred by anyone or anything that harbours bacteria and comes directly or indirectly in contact with food.

Although it is important to avoid the bacterial infection of food, it is equally important to avoid the favorable conditions which could permit the growth of food illness bacteria.

Consumers should recognize that due to ubiquitous (existing everywhere) nature of bacteria, their presence on food cannot be avoided.

To keep bacteria on foods at a minimum, consumers should take every precaution to prevent its increase.

Preventive measures include immediate storage of all fruit, vegetables, fish and meats including poultry.

The sooner food from the market and store are brought or delivered to the home of the consumer, fruit and vegetables should be stored in cooler or refrigerator.

Meat, fish and poultry should be properly wrapped in freezer, with the exceptions of portions to be used the same day which should be kept in a non-freezing section of the refrigerator until it is to be prepared.

All fruit and vegetables to be consumed without cooking should be washed before using.

Purchase only fresh fruit and vegetables and plan to use those which perish most quickly as soon as possible, leaving, oranges, carrots, turnip, etc. to be used up last.

Once any food has been thawed, never refreeze. It is best to cook it, then store in seal-tight containers in refrigerator or freezer. The majority of perishable foods such as vegetables, meat, fish and many of the fruit can be cooked and stored if one is unable to use it up between shopping trips.

Beresford Mayor Won't Reoffer

Beresford Mayor Cleo Murrison told the regular meeting of Village Council Monday that he would not be a candidate in the municipal elections set for May. Mr. Morrison was a councillor before assuming the mayoralty for two consecutive terms, serving a total of seven years on council.

In the meantime, Deputy Mayor Donald Arseneau has declared he will be seeking the position of mayor in the upcoming elections. A director for the Chaleur Regional Industrial Commission and former president of the Belledune Planning Commission, Mr. Arseneau is a mathematics teacher at Assumption Academy in Bathurst.

Board Of Trade Plans Underway

TRACADIE — Approximately 50 interested Tracadie residents were on hand last week at a public meeting at W. A. Losier High School to discuss plans for the formation of a board of trade for the town.

The 1½ hour meeting, chaired by Everard Losier, was the second step toward the setting up of the board. An organizational meeting was held in February, and a five-man investigative committee was named at that time.

At the March 22 meeting, fifteen local citizens were nominated as directors, and an executive will be chosen at a later date.

Mr. Losier said one of the first actions of the new board will be to change from a board of trade set up to that of a chamber of commerce.

DAMPER RUSTED OUT

Q. The damper in the chimney of our 30-year-old vacation log cabin has rusted out. So its not unusual for rain to come in quite heavily at times. Do you think if we had a chimeny cap put on that it would affect the good draft of the fireplace:

A. Certainly not, provided that it's done by a chimney mason who knows his business. Mine is about eight inches above the top of the flue and it works perfectly.

He was previously Sales Development Representative at Campbellton.

TNB Stages Highly Successful "Shrew"

Theatre New Brunswick's The Taming of the Shrew, which played to a surprising number of theatre-goers at Nepisiguit High School March 24 despite the inclement weather, was a robust, visual play very much in the Elizabethan spirit. Director William Davis slyly made it a New Brunswick play, a new twist that worked. It was a fresh, vigorous production that revived the bard's reputation for comedy and action.

From the startling opening scene to the final rounding vignette, Davis had firm control. All the comic business, the visual jokes, the subtle interplay of glances between characters, had been given the attention a Shakespearean play demands if it's going to be fully shown.

Shakespeare intended the Shrew to be a play within a play. Most directors ignore the frame play about the drunkard Christopher Sly who has a trick played on him by a wealthy lord. Sly is made to question reality and self-knowledge when he awakens from his drunken stupor to find himself in bed, treated as a nobleman. The servants, urged on by the genuine Lord in disguise, tell Sly he has slept for 15 years and dreamt the other alehouse-poverty reality he talks of. The Shrew play is performed for his amusement.

Davis added to the philosophical puzzle about reality in TNB's production by making Sly, before he reaches the stage, a drunken Maritime woodsman. Once on stage, he reverts to the Shakespearean lines, falls asleep, and moves back in time to the 17th century.

From the nobleman's bed, Sly not only observes the players begin the Shrew, but decides to participate. Director Davis visually made this addition to the usual performance work very well.

Dan MacDonald let Sly grow visibly in spirit into the brawling Petruchio. Sly escaped from the bed and reappeared with the players. It was a nice touch to have him re-enter reading an ancient script haltingly. Sly didn't doff his woodsman's hat and boots for 17th century ones until he was well into the part, ready to court Kate. By this time, the audience's sense of reality had slipped back with Sly to 17th century Padua.

Petruchio, in Dan MacDonald's characterization, was a roaring, rough man, able to dominate any Kate or any situation. The sensuous side of Petruchio, the flashes of genuine admiration for Kate in his speeches at the pair's first meeting was glossed over. That same sensuousness was missing in his post-marriage taming scenes. There should have been some incentive, besides brute force, to make Kate want to change. Her decision to take Petruchio was a physical shock. Petruchio's tenderness with Kate in this production came only after her change. It would have been more credible if he had given some indication of it earlier.

Lally Cadeau made a handsome, choleric Kate. With the physical level of the play was set at, there was little else she could do. Her energy and endurance were admirable. The final "lecture" to women which concludes the play caused a few "boos" but she brought it off surprisingly well for feminist-conscious 1977.

The servants were extremely good. Familiar faces kept reappearing above new liveries in true Elizabethan fashion. Each servant, even the one-liners, became an individual. Their comic luminess was excellent.

Tranio, the servant who takes Lucentio's name while Lucentio courts Bianca, let the audience share his nervousness at assuming a nobleman's role. David Ferry made Tranio more interesting, more significant, by his pantomimed tensions. The audience sympathized with his youthful, bounding confidence. As he grew more lordly, he was expected to overreach himself. All the "two-fathers" scene was a splendid comic climax.

Stan Lesk's Grumio endured more physical abuse and tumbles than any servant should have to survive in fine comic style. He came through grinning like a genuine rogue. He made Shakespeare's crude jokes very plain. William Dunlop's Biondello, more simple than scamp, took his lumps cheerfully. The audience was kept roaring by the pair.

Suitors for the lovely Bianca (Anna MacKay-Smith) were good comedy too. Colin Miller as neighbor Gremio was a sly old Italian fox, a constant visual joke with his grimaces and poses. His prose was a Shakespearean delight. Every item in his dowry list came vividly before us as he verbally caressed the items.

William Samples played Hortensio as the intelligent, elegant fop. Both characters had a neat leg and a fine wrist for flourishes and comic turns. They looked funny just standing.

John Peters' Lucentio was the true lover to the gentle Bianca, and had to be serious most of the time. He did manage some amusing interplay with the servant Biondello, and some approving winks to Tranio to liven the deception scene.

Baptista, the girls' father, presided over all the lovers with appropriate grace and comic concern. Jack Northmore's timing for the sight gags was excellent. All the visual tricks played on Baptista lasted just long enough to be funny.

George Dawson in the cameo role of pedant was another expert at making sight gags work. His rolling eyes and flying limbs were a great success.

Ed Kotanen designed a set that solved Shakespeare's endless scenes changes effectively. Sly's iron bedstead, a huge rolling affair, became a revolving stage, a procession of different places by a twist of position and a rapid twist of position and a rapid rearrangements of curtains. Shakespear's language and the characters' actions dressed the stage for us.

TNB had a comic success with the Shrew, no matter how the audience felt about Shakespear. If you had children who hadn't met Shakespearean drama yet, it was a great show for a first encounter. No one could protest Shakespeare was boring or full in this TNB production. The language and characterization, the two Shakespearean strenghts, were admirably handled. William Davis made this Shrew a memorable production.

Tricks Of The Trade

The aim of the tourism industry in New Brunswick should be to make this province a "destination" for tourists rather than a "throughway" to the other two Maritime Provinces, delegates to a tourism conference in Fredericton last weekend were told by Dalton Camp.

His words recall a huge highway billboard sign not too long ago near the K mart on St. Peter Ave. Ironically, it urged visiting motorists not to stop here but to continue on to greener pastures, as it were, in neighbouring Nova Scotia.

This may have been smart salesmanship on the part of someone who should have been charged with alienation of affections. The incident was also indicative of the apparent ignorance or lack of concern on the part of the people in our own N.B. Department of Tourism.

Besides dominating the Progressive-Conservative Party ranks controversially and otherwise, Mr. Camp, a native New Brunswicker, heads a Toronto-based firm, Camp Associates Advertising, which is involved in tourism advertising for the provincial government. He is also a widely-read newspaper columnist and erstwhile television personality.

Mr. Camp, delivering the keynote address which kicked off the conference, stressed that if tourism in New Brunswick is to grow, it must be helped by the private sector as well as the government.

The people of New Brunswick should be out cleaning up roadsides, planting flowers instead of weeds, talking to tourists and working with government in order to attract more visitors to the province.

Tourism is already the third largest industry in New Brunswick, Mr. Camp said, but it is still "structured as an overnight, eat-and-run, transient business."

New Brunswick could one day become a major tourist destination for Canada and the Eastern United States, Mr. Camp said, but it won't yet "because there are not enough people who want it that way."

Meanwhile, he said, "There are a hell of a lot of people in the US who don't know where New Brunswick is."

The image this province has in the tourist trade is "the one we've earned and the one we deserve, and it won't change until we work to change it," Mr. Camp said.

The tourism industry in New Brunswick has only begun to develop in the past two decades, the speaker added. Before the early 1960s, the tourist trade in the province was concentrated on the "bullet and bait business."

Appealing mainly to American "sports", the province was seen as a good hunting area, and little more, Mr. Camp inferred.

With the 1960s, however, the N.B. Travel Bureau began asking what New Brunswick is, and a different image started emerging.

Still, Mr. Camp said, more work must be done to let tourists know there is more in the province than the traditional tourist attractions like Magnetic Hill and the Tidal Bore – "the most aptly named natural phenomenon I've seen." He must have meant such newer attractions, like Acadian Village right here in Gloucester County, which although not actually opening until May, is already commanding considerable attention.

Mr. Camp did, however, have encouraging words for this North Shore which he termed "the largest undiscovered resort in Eastern Canada."

Arbor Day 'Revived'

From time immemorial people in various lands have celebrated holidays by planting trees.

In North America, the custom of beautifying the surroundings of towns and villages in this manner in the spring of the year originated in Nebraska. Thus Arbor Day was born.

From there the custom spread throughout the United States and into Canada. At one time it was a special day of cleanup and planting, especially among school children.

In late years, however, little is heard about this fine, old practice. And from the volumes of unsightly litter around some school premises, it would be a good idea if the observance were renewed at full strength and speed.

Furthermore, the thought occurs that the government would not be remiss in taking action to make Arbor Day an annual occurrence again. Many of our good traditions have slipped from the calendar. It is never too late to do good.

In the meantime, for the citizens of Bathurst, the revival of Arbor Day is to become a reality in a sense this year. City Council has approved a Saturday date in May, yet to be determined, for its observance.

Plans include the purchase of 250 hardwood trees of a fast-growing, 6-foot variety, bagged in peat moss, which will be available to residents at wholesale cost. Planting instructions will also be provided.

The project was promoted by the Bathurst Tree Commission in conjunction with City Councillor Jean-Paul Lavoie, and is sponsored by Bathurst Junior Chamber of Commerce. Also participating, in addition to the City, is the N.B. Department of Natural Resources. Advance sales may be arranged by contacting any member of the Jaycees.

Instant reaction to the plan is positive. Those responsible should receive the complete cooperation of all.

Weekend Courses In Safe Driving

Sponsored conjointly by the RCMP Police Auxiliary, Bathurst Detachment, the City Police Department and the local Lions Club, a defensive driving course is being held at Bathurst Trade School Youghal Drive, this coming weekend.

Dates and time are Saturday and Sunday, April 2 and 3 at 10:00 a.m.

Registration forms are available at the City Police Station, St. Andrew St., and the RCMP Barracks, Johnson Ave.

"Drive with the assurance you are prepared for the unexpected." "Be a Defensive Driver" and "Strive To Drive To Arrive Alive" are only two of the apt slogans used by the New Brunswick Highway Safety Council, promoters of the course.

Travel Source Of Many Jobs

The word "travel" can bring memories of carefree times or exotic surroundings. It can mean horrendous waits at airports or that jet-lag fatigue that drags on and on and on. It can mean fun on a bus, sick stomachs in hotel rooms, a stiff climb up a Thai monastery just to take in a breathtaking view, sudden glimpses of our Canada.

To those in government who track our critical international balance of payments position, travel is also a giant-sized worry. Canada's deficit on the international travel account is growing at an alarming rate. It tripled in 1975 and doubled again in 1976.

January figures show a continuing deterioration. U.S. visits to Canada decreased more than 14 per cent while Canadians going to the U.S. increased 4.5 per cent. Travel by Canadians to other countries increased nearly 17 per cent - but there was little change in the number of other foreign (non-U.S.) visitors to this country.

However, the worriers can take comfort in the fact that receipts in Canada's tourism industry last year amounted to an estimated $9.2 billion, writes Jean Durward in The Financial Post. Of this, Canadians travelling at home contributed $7.3 billion; outsiders brought in another $1.9 billion.

It's big business in more ways than just dollars or international hotel chains and airlines. Most of it is centered in small enterprises - an estimated 30,000 businesses. Big and small together, they create direct and indirect jobs for 400,000 Canadians.

Hometown News A While Coming

Otterville, Ont.
March 21, 1977

Time to renew our subscription to your weekly paper which we enjoy reading very much every week. But this is sometimes impossible, what with the good mail service we are supposed to be receiving in our country. The issue of February 23rd never reached our mailbox til March 18th. The news was stale and the paper battered, but better late than never. We still read it page for page.

Just cannot understand why it would take almost one month for a newspaper to come a distance of 1200 miles. Get a lot of first class mail from your city and am never surprised when it takes a letter anywhere from 15 to 17 days to reach us.

We always enjoy receiving letters and your newspaper, as we were all born in or around the city. Even though we have been living in Ontario for quite a number of years, it's still "down home" to us, especially when you have fond memories and friends in your hometown.

Our government wonders why every one is up-in-arms about our mail service, but it leaves a lot to be desired.

In closing, I hope you will have received payment for our subscription before March of 1978 because otherwise we will be out of our paper for a year.

To add fuel to the cottage assessment fire, you may be interested in the attached.

R. J. Shirley

(Copy of letter to the Regional Assessment Office, P.O. Box 5001, Bathurst.)

I would like to strongly protest the revised assessment on my cottage which is listed on the enclosed form.

As you will see from your records, the assessment rose from $6,200 in 1976 and prior years to $12,800 in 1977. I can think of absolutely no vaild reason for such a revision.

In view of the fact that this revision was made without any adjustment in the provincial tax rate and only a minor downward adjustment in the municipal tax rate, it means that the taxing authorities have virtually doubled our taxes without revealing the increase to the public. If this were done in the business world, the Government would be after us for fraud, or at the very least, misleading the public.

I assume that we do receive some services from the provincial government that are paid for from these real estate taxes; however, I am not aware of what these services are nor of any improvement in them that would dictate a doubling of their costs. I am informed that residences receive a tax reduction from the provincial tax rate but for some strange reason because this is a cottage, we are not eligible for such reduction.

From a municipal point of view, the amalgamation of the beach to the town of Bathurst has been of absolutely no benefit to the cottage owners but has cost us a substantial amount. The only beneficial service that we obtain from the municipality is the collection of garbage. Prior to the amalgamation we could obtain this from private sources for something in the order of $20 for the two summer months. The only other service that might be of benefit is the maintenance of the road behind the cottages.

Prior to the amalgamation, this road was of sand (therefore without dust) and was in such condition that speeding was seldom a problem. Once the town took over, the road was retuit. The road was covered with unwashed gravel and through grading seems to get wider each year. At the present time the cottages are constantly inundated with dust as any attempt to control this problem is woefully inadequate. Because the road is straight and wide there is also a speeding problem. We had after-the-fact police protection prior to amalgamation and that is all we have now. All in all municipal services are absolutely minimal.

I recognize that we must pay for services provided, but I am of the opinion that there is absolutely no vaild reason for the increase in taxes as shown in the 1977 tax bill submitted to me. The assessment and the tax rate must be viewed together or else the public is at the very least being misled.

Would you please provide me with your explanation for the increased assessment. Upon receipt of that I would be prepared, if necessary, to appear before you at your convenience.

Chamber Warning Went Unheeded

Bathurst, N.B.
March 25, 1977

In response to "Wondering" letter to the editor of Wednesday, March 23, 1977.

February 1976 saw an article "A Thought For Today" widely distributed by the Bathurst Chamber of Commerce Warning Bathurst citizens and the City Council of the 1977 assessment rate. In addition, your Board of Directors sent extensive information to the City Council on December 16, 1976, expressing its displeasure prior to the approval of City Council's budget for 1977. In addition, I went on television expressing displeasure at government bureaucracies feeding off the taxpayer and the long range effects to the economy of same.

When the Chambers of Moncton, Fredericton and Saint John presented their briefs to the Province on property taxation, your Bathurst Chamber was not aware of this hearing, nor were we invited. However, their briefs were presented after the fact while your Chamber expressed its concern over property taxation long before the official announcement.

Unfortunately public support and interest only becomes apparent when the tax bill arrives in the mail and generally too late to correct the misfortune.

"Neglected" Part Of City Heard From

Bathurst, N.B.
March 26, 1977

Thank you councillors for not entertaining our request for a reduction of our frontal rate and hookup.

Of all sections of the city, it is we who are stuck with the highest frontage fees, so thank you for making us pay through the nose. You do right, save the help for the more affluent sections of our fair city, pay no mind to little peons on Bridge St.

Councillor MacNeil, thank you for interpreting just what we mean. The fact that Mr. Pearce could find no uniformity in the rates is a request for an explanation, although not explicitly stated. If only the implied staggering cost of putting it in layman's language could be overcome, I wonder if such an explanation would be revealing.

I may we wrong, but I seem to remember a council meeting concerning a bit of money for such help. I think it concerned the Basin residents, and although they had already received help, it was voted to them, amidst hand clapping and the objection of one councillor who suggested saving it for East. This latter objection, was stifled by the statement that when the time came other monies would be found to help we Eastern residents. Thank you councillors, for the fierce energy you expended in finding that money.

While I am still in a thankful mood, I wish to throw out a few more bouquets of gratitude, and this by way of comparison with the Western section of the city. Thank you for the pretty street lighting, the ample sidewalks, the lovely large recreational facilities and parks, oh yes and for the kindly way you handled our request for government garage, (now a school bus depot), for use as a sport centre for our kids, and oh yes thank you for our beautiful sturdy bridge.

Yes you are real tigers when you fight for East. But alas I must cut myself short, not for lack of things to be thankful for, but for lack of space.

Do you recall the dismally attended, support-for-the-airport demonstration? Now remember this was a city-side affair. I bet if such a demonstration were to be called by the concerned Bridge Street and appendage residents, a very small fraction of the city, it would put the above demonstration to shame. But who gets the help?

To show that there are no hard feelings, I am sure that we Easterners, will give any mayoralty candidates among you, the same support you gave us. Councillors Hodgins and Saulnier supported us, maybe not too strenuously, at least to my knowledge, but fully. Lavoie, at least to his credit, deemed us worthy of an explanation. Lenihan was absent. Need I say more, except a big final thank-you, thank-you for nothing.

Figures Indicate Staggering Catch

Bathurst, N.B.
March 23, 1977

First of all, let me point out that there could only be an approximation of twelve herring per cubic foot, not as the stated twelve per square foot. Hoping this was a typing error on your part or I might suggest Mr. Basque catch up with his school of herring for an upgrading in math.

However, the answer came to a staggering 160,579,584,000 after quite a bit of multiplication.

The procedure is as follows:
Length - 4 miles - 21,120 ft.
Width - 2 miles - 10,560 ft.
Height - 60 ft. - 60 ft. (or depth)
Volume - length x width x height - 21,120' x 10,560' x 60' - 13,381,632,000 cubic feet.

If there are 12 herring in one cubic foot, 12 times the number of cubic feet would give you the number of herring which is 160,579,584,000.

Sure of my answer, and didn't even blow a fuse.

Answer To Beer Bottle Littering

Bathurst, N.B.
March 22, 1977

Every year around this time when the snow starts to melt, one cannot help but notice the myriads of beer bottles which are not only aesthetically displeasing and a nuisance but also a hazard, especially for pedestrians who after a long winter hit the streets for some exercise. Who is to blame for this?

If you want my opinion, the blame should rest as much on the authorities who make the laws as well as the irresponsible citizen who has little regard for the community he lives in.

The solution to the problem is very simple and does not hurt anyone in terms of cost, and at the same time keeps the city clean. Presently, empty beer bottles can be returned at only two places in the city, and the payback is only a measely three cents per bottle, or 40 cents for a case of twelve.

I wouldn't blame anyone for not returning the bottles for that kind of money. In order to create an incentive to return the bottles, a deposit of 15 or 20 cents per bottle or $1.80 to $2.40 per case of twelve should be charged at the liquor store and the liquor store should also be equipped to accept empties.

A Concerned Citizen.

Consumers Praise Public Intervenor

Fredericton, N.B.
March 7, 1977

(Editor's note: The following is a copy of a letter from the Consumer's Association of Canada to the Hon. Paul S. Creaghan, Minister of Justice for New Brunswick.)

Dear Mr. Creaghan,

The Consumers' Association of Canada (New Brunswick Branch) wishes to commend you on your excellent decision in appointing Mr. Robert Rice as Public Intervenor in the recent rate hearings into an application by NBTel to the Public Utilities Board.

Some of our members were present at all sessions during the hearings held in Saint John, and we were all very impressed by the way in which Mr. Rice handled the assignment. He was as thorough as time and resources could allow, and apparently was very concerned about the quality of his presentation.

Mr. Rice was most adept at grasping the intricacies of NBTel's application, and was meticulous in his cross-examination of the various witnesses. He obviously had the genuine interests of the public in mind throughout the entire hearing. His sympathy for the plight of rural subscribers in New Brunswick was always evident.

We thank you for appointing such a conscientious person as Mr. Rice to the position of Public Intervenor. Perhaps it is time that the position of Public Intervenor becomes permanent (to allow that person to gain the necessary expertise and experience). We hope that, if this position does become permanent, you will consider Mr. Rice for the job.

New Travel Exchange Program Is Announced

OTTAWA - Secretary of State John Roberts today announced that a new federal year-round national youth exchange program is currently being developed by his department.

To be called Open House Canada - Hospitalité Canada, it will be based on the principle of twinning and when fully operational will involve between 20,000 and 30,000 young people per year.

Details of the program will be available in a month and application forms will be ready for the public in June.

Mr. Roberts pointed out that the youth exchange program is one component in a series of federal initiatives, mentioned in last October's Speech from the Throne, designed specifically for youth. He added that further information on the other projects will be available within the coming month.

The Secretary of State's new travel - exchange program will enable young people, both individually and in groups, to participate in exchange visits with others across the country. The age group for those participating as individuals will be from 16 to 22 years, and 14 to 22 years for thos participating in groups. Transporation costs will be paid by the Federal Government but each traveller will be expected to pay a small participation fee.

Young Canadians interested in participating will apply to a central bureau where they will be matched with an individual or group from another province. Once the twinning is established, the participants will be encouraged to have exploratory correspondence and other types of exchange with each other to establish basic rapport, and eventually to visit each other in their homes.

Mr. Roberts referred to "the valuable contributions that have been made for many years in the area of youth exchanges by voluntary organizations. It is our intention," he said, "to continue to work closely with them to achieve our common goals".

Although Open House Canada - Hospitalité Canada will encourage a two-way exchange between participants, the program will make allowances for groups or individuals to participate in only one aspect of the program, e.g. to act as a host, or to make a visit.

"By removing travel barriers," said Mr. Roberts, "we are challenging Canadians to do something for the unity of their country.

"We are hoping, through the program, to encourage better dialogue and understanding between Canadians, particularly between young Francophones and Anglophones, of all provinces by providing opportunities for young people to live within the atmosphere and lifestyle of parts of Canada other than their own.

"We are convinced that Canada's reputation around the world for openess and hospitality is well deserved. We are now offering an opportunity for Canadians to be open and hospitable to each other."

Shippegan Scene Given Evlauation

Shippegan N.B.
March 28, 1977

Shippegan residents are much concerned with the services of the Manpower office in Shippegan just once a week taking the name of job seekers but with no result after. The opening of such an office in Shippegan seems to be of no public need just to give the man a job.

The Manpower office in Caraquet has to be advised by those in charge of projects under government subventions now underway in Shippegan when in need of employees.

The result is that Caraquet is sending strangers, outsiders, to work on projects right in the Town of Shippegan while there is a waiting list of job seekers from Shippegan overlooked by the Caraquet office.

One of the projects now underway in Shippegan at the Real Cormier Arena seems to be a family affair as far as hiring practises are concerned.

For the first time since 1935 the aged persons of Shippegan did not receive their Old Age Security Pension cheques for the month of March. The law respecting Old Age Pension Security is such that all the cheques are put in the mail on the 27th day of every month and ought to be delivered two clear days before the closing of the banks on Friday.

During the month of February the 27th was on Sunday, so cheques were put in the mail earlier during the week and were delivered to the pensioners on Thursday February the 24th last.

Strange that in the month of March the 27th of the month once again was a Sunday. The cheques should have been put in the mail earlier so to reach the pensioners on Thursday, March the 24th as in the month of February but none of them has been received.

This is an illustration of the kind of government we have in New Brunswick, where each and every department has no organization. No wonder that Premier Hatfield, his Cabinet and members are the target of the Liberal Opposition and with good reason. The only alternative is for Premier Richard Hatfield to call an election during the year.

The Mayor of Shippegan and members of municipal council are advised that the streets in the Town of Shippegan have been in a very bad condition all the winter. On May the 9th next will be the time for Shippegan ratepayers and voters to effect a change of conditions and injustices suffered by the population since 1971 under this administration.

Performers Are Maritimers All

Good, Down East, foot stompin', Irish, Scottish, Cape Breton and general good beer drinking songs - that's "Kiltarlity". The boys, John, Donnie and Mike all hail from the Maritimes and bring with them that style of music and hospitality that is known to all Maritimers.

John Ferguson comes from Cape Breton and in particular Caribou Marsh. John plays guitar, mandolin, banjo and does most of the lead singing in the band. John has a flare towards the nice and easy slow ballads and adds that little extra that makes them so popular.

Donnie Webb hails from Halifax, N.S. and carries with him the ability to play just about anything he picks up (mainly girls). Donnie plays banjo, accordian, guitar, tin whistler, mandulin and lots of others. Donnie also does back up singing and has an uncontrollable urge to sing opera style, so look out Ella!

Mike Krawchuk (Ukrainian) and apparently the only hunk playing in an Irish group, was born and raised (we think) in Cape Breton's capital, Sydney, where he learned to play the radio and record player. Mike does most of the colour commentary and also the black and white stuff. He sings and plays the tin whistle and that's about it, except the fact he has a way of telling jokes and playing the horn (look out Herb)!

Well that's Kiltarlity, and if some nite you feel like going out on the town, and having a good time, then stomp on down to the Coachman, sit back, relax and get ready to have that good time!

P.S. Thursday nite - Gong Show - bring your mother!

First Naval Officer Named Chief Of Staff

Defence Minister Barney Danson today announced that Vice-Admiral Robert H. Falls, CMM, CD, 52, of Welland, Ontario will be promoted to the rank of Admiral and appointed chief of the defence staff September 15, 1977.

He will succeed General Jacques A. Dextraze, 57, who has held the appointment since September, 1972, and is retiring after a distinguished military career spanning 37 years which began as an infantry private. Vice-Admiral Falls has served as vice chief of the defence staff since July, 1974.

Admiral Falls will be the first naval officer to become chief of the defence staff.

Also announced was the appointment of Major-General Ramsay M. Withers, CD, 46, of Toronto, commander of Canadian Forces Europe, as vice chief of the defence staff effective September 15. He is being promoted to lieutenant-general.

Succeeding General Withers in Germany is Brigadier-General Charles H. Belzile, CD, 43, of Trois Pistoles, Quebec, new assistant chief of staff of NATO's Central Army Group in West Germany, who will be promoted to major-general.

Gen. Dextraze, of Montreal, enlisted in July, 1940 as an infantry private with Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, and by 1944 was commander of the unit as a lieutenant-colonel. He won the Distinguished Service Order for gallantry in the fighting in Northwest Europe, and a bar to the DSO for persuading a German general to surrender the Dutch city of Groningen.

He subsequently was appointed officer commanding of the 1st Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment for service in the Far East.

In 1950 he led the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22eme Regiment (Van Doos) in Korean operations, and for his service there was made an Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

Gen. Dextraze was chief of staff of the United Nations in the Congo in 1963, and for "outstanding planning and leadership in rescue operations" was made a Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

Prior to his promotion to general and appointment as chief of the defence staff in Sep. 1972, he held top staff and field appointments in Petawawa, Montreal and at Defence headquarters.

In his present appointment he was made Principal Commander of the Order of Military Merit.

Canada's new highest-ranking military officer, Admiral Falls began his military career in December, 1942, at the age of 18, and now is in his 35th year of service in the Armed Forces.

Initially he served with the Royal Canadian Air Force as a pilot, later transferred to the Royal Navy Volunteer Reserve, the Royal Canadian Navy Reserve, and finally to the Royal Canadian Navy.

His active naval and aviation career includes service afloat in three aircraft carriers, command of a destroyer and an aircraft carrier, and command of a naval air squadron.

In his senior appointments, Adm. Falls was deputy director of sea—air warfare, director general of postings and careers, commander of the Canadian Flotilla Atlantic, associate assistant deputy minister (policy), and deputy chief of the defence staff.

His promotion to vice-admiral on July 1, 1974, preceded by two weeks his appointment as vice-chief of the defence staff.

In May, 1976, he was invested in the Order of Military Merit in the grade of Commander, in recognition of conspicuous merit and exceptional military service.

Gen. Withers is a graduate of the Canadian Service College, Royal Roads, Victoria, and Royal Military College, Kingston, and obtained a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering from Queen's University in 1954. He has served in Korea and with 4 Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in Europe.

He was promoted to brigadier-general in 1970 and appointed commander of Northern Region with headquarters at Yellowknife, N.W.T.

Later, Gen. Withers was director-general of management information services, and on promotion to major-general in July, 1975, became associate assistant deputy minister (policy) at Defence headquarters. In August, 1976 he was appointed commander of Canadian Forces Europe with headquarters in Lahr, West Germany.

Sonicguide Enhances Mobility Of Blind

The "sonicguide", a mobility aid and environmental sensor for the blind, is the result of more than a decade of research, development and evaluation. It is designed to enhance and extend the mobility of a blind person who uses a long cane or dog-guide mobility techniques.

The visible apparatus, consisting of a pair of modified eye glass frames and a portable power pack which can be worn under a coat, in no way give a clue to the complexity of the device.

Simply stated, the sonicguide uses pulses of inaudible high frequency sound which are sent ahead of the user, echoed back from objects that are within range and converted to an audible range for interpretation to the user.

Two sonicguide receivers are situated above and to the left and right to the nose bridge so that objects on either side are transmitted as sounds back to the appropriate ear, making for locational differentiation.

The distance of an object from the blind user is conveyed by the pitch of audible sounds produced. The more distant an object, the higher the pitch.

Each object detected gives off a different sound tone which drops in pitch as the user moves closer.

The ultrasonic sound reflected from objects is directed into the user's ears through two small tubes. These tubes have only a minimum interference with external sounds so the trained user is able to integrate audible sounds of the sonicguide with the sounds of the surrounding environment.

The sonicguide will enable the blind traveller to manoeuvre more safely and comfortably in both familiar and strange environments.

Indoors, objects such as wall mounted drinking fountains and doors which open into corridors can be easily avoided.

Outdoors, pedestrians, tree branches and other objects are immediately noted.

During varied demonstrations, the sonicguide gave people an opportunity to see it in use in various situations.

Each surface had its own particular quality. The cement block walls gave off a sharp tone while the pegboard ceiling reflected a muffled sound.

Users report being able to detect the difference between a chain link fence, a board fence, and an ivy covered fence.

A greater appreciation of the blind person's travel environment is an extra benefit that the sonicguide gives.

The sonicguide does have a few limitations. It is, as stated earlier, a supplement to the cane or dog-guide and is not meant to be used alone.

It will not detect a drop-off, descending stairs or holes. Primarily, it is used to detect objects that are above the waist level. Its maximum range is 40 feet but it works best on objects which are 15-20 feet away.

The sonicguide is one of many new aids that are becoming more available to blind people and offering them the opportunity to take their rightful place in society.

Further information on the sonicguide can be received by contacting area CNIB offices, or one can see it displayed in the Demonstration and Training Unit (A.V. Weir Centre) in Toronto.

This room was made possible through a gift of $250,000 from the Canadian Progress Club (Toronto Central) who have been working with the CNIB for three years. This is the first room of its kind in Canada where blind people can try out various aids and appliances at their own pace.

Forest Rangers Seek Dog Owners' Support

An urgent appeal has been issued by forest rangers throughout the province for public assistance in eliminating deer mortality caused by predatory dogs.

The forest rangers' concern is twofold.

Their primary objective is to protect the deer herds, badly harassed by running dogs this time of year, but they are concerned as well with protection of the dogs themselves and their owners.

"Many people are unaware that the Game Act gives department of natural resources personnel the right to kill any dog found chasing deer or moose, or which is known to have done so, and in addition that dog's owner is liable to a maximum fine of $100.", says a department official.

Many people fail to realize the predatory nature of their house pets, say the forest rangers.

Although the dog is the oldest known domesticated animal, any dog allowed to run wild can become an efficient and ruthless killer. The feel of the hunt, the thrill of the chase, combined with the dog's keen sense of hearing, sense of smell, large canine teeth and characteristic stamina, all contribute to its efficiency as a hunter.

The problem reaches its peak during late winter and early spring when snow crust is too light to support deer but strong enough to support dogs. Nature itself seems to make it particularly difficult for the deer at this time of year when the females are carrying their developing young and the reserve fat accumulated for the winter is nearly exhausted. Generally, the deer are now in their poorest physical condition.

The major difference between dogs and wild predators is that the dog is not selective and does not hunt for food. Domestication has changed the dog into an indiscriminate "sport" hunter.

Also, the dog lacks the killing efficiency of wild predators. In many cases where dogs have given up the chase, the deer may succumb to pneumonia or other diseases made more acute by hard pursuit. The animal may also be chased onto thin ice where it may fall through and drown or freeze to death if it gets out.

The exertion of a long chase on a pregnant doe may result in a premature birth or other complications with the fetus. In some cases dogs hamstring their victims, crippling the deer by severing the large tendons in their back legs, and may begin to feed before the animal has died.

In other cases, they may just wear the animal down and attack indiscriminately the flanks, haunches or legs, whichever offers the easiest target. After the kill is made, the dogs may start to feed, or may leave it and continue the chase for other victims.

Each year, substantial numbers of deer are killed or worried to death by dogs. In addition to the known kills, the department of natural resources receives complaints daily of dogs molesting deer and moose, and these are often family pets with whom infants and young children could be left in perfect safety.

The public is asked to cooperate by making sure dogs are kept at home and by notifying the nearest forest ranger in any case where dogs are known to be, or suspected of, chasing deer or moose. All such reports will be kept strictly confidential.

Deer may die from any number of natural causes, say the forest rangers, but death from predatory dogs is one of the few factors which can be controlled, but only with the support of dog owners themselves and the general public.

Sabina Still Active In Bathurst Region

Exploration expenditures on mining properties held by Sabina Industries were in excess of $600,000 last year and it is anticipated that 1977 expenditures will be of similar magnitude. W. W. Cummins, president, states in the annual report.

Significant developments during the year included:

The signing of an option agreement with The Price Co. covering Sabina's Lovalls Lake property in New Brunswick.

Completion of an option and joint venture agreement with Metallgesellschaft — Canada covering a major claims group near Bathurst.

Completion of Phase 2 by United States Steel (Essex Minerals) and its decision to proceed to Phase 3 of an option agreement covering the Nine Mile Brook property in New Brunswick.

Completion of Phase 1 of an option agreement with The Messina (Transvaal) Development Co. covering Sabina's Irish property and the decision by Messina to proceed.

"We will continue to seek exploration ventures of merit and are currently acquiring prospects for uranium and gold", Mr. Cummins says.

Referring in more detail to the Nine Mile Brook claims under option to U. S. Steel, the report discloses that $400,000 was spent under Sabina's management. Most of this was for additional diamond drilling in the area of a 1975 base metal discovery and for magnetometer, electromagnetic and soil geochemical surveys between that zone and a previously known sulphide deposit approximately three miles to the west (the Smyth deposit).

Results of the 1976 drilling in the area of the 1975 base metal discovery (the No. 11 zone) indicated that the geology of the zone is very complex. A substantial amount of additional drilling will be required to explore and evaluate the zone.

In summary, drilling to date on the No. 11 zone had defined two zones of probable continuous mineralization, a North zone 900 ft. in length assaying 6.94 per cent zinc, 1.71 per cent lead, 0.04 per cent copper, 0.89 oz. silver over an average assay width of 28.6 ft., and a South zone 500 ft. in length assaying 3.23 per cent zinc, 0.53 per cent lead, 0.02 per cent copper and 0.31 oz. silver over an average width of 36 ft. Due to the wide spacing of the holes and the fact that drilling has only been carried out to a vertical depth of 300 ft., tonnage calculations are not possible.

The 1977 program by Essex is expected to consist of drill testing of a number of geophysical-geochemical targets situated between the No. 11 and Smyth zone (now under way) and additional field exploration programs during the period June to september.

Lovalls Lake property, Bathurst

The Price Co. can acquire a 75 per cent interest in company's Lovalls Lake group by a cash payment of $10,000, the expenditure of $250,000 in exploration work by Sept. 30, 1979, assumption of certain property payments due to third parties with respect to 16 claims, and the payment of $250,000 cash to Sabina on completion of the exploration program.

Upon exercise of the option Sabina will be required to contribute 25 per cent of further costs or suffer a progressive dilution to a 10 per cent net profit interest before taxes.

Subsequent to the signing of the option agreement a further 48 claims were acquired, bringing the total number of claims in the Lovalls property to 186.

During 1976 an airborne electro magnetic survey was carried out over the property followed by field work, consisting of linecutting and field geophysical and geological surveys over interesting target zones. Work will resume in the spring of 1977.

Forming what is known as the South Bathurst Joint Venture (SBJV), Sabina, Jamex Explorations and McFinley Mines pooled their 467 claims, with work on the joint venture to be financed 75 per cent by Metallgesellschaft Canada, 16.7 per cent by Sabina and 8.3 per cent by Jamex.

THERE'S NO JOB WE'D RATHER DO.

It's a pleasure for us to work after hours or on a weekend.

Almost everywhere we look, we can see the results of the things we do for our communities and their people.

Take Linda. We helped her find a teaching position in a special remedial school. She loves it, you can tell by the look on her face. And the kids love her, too.

Her new job has brought her financial security and added something important to the quality of life in her community.

In our factories and offices, there are more people working and contributing because we were able to help them help themselves to something better.

We're the people at the Canada Manpower Centre.

It is not our job to push paper, fill in forms and mail letters. We work first for you as an individual, then for the community and Canada.

We deal with all the people and groups of people who are concerned with making this community prosper and grow. It takes us everywhere from the downtown office towers to the rural outskirts.

And it takes a lot of dedication.

Room with VAR-ROOM

In today's small car world, it's difficult to find power and performance married to loads of interior room.

The Rabbit has more power than you would expect. It goes 0-50 in 7.7 seconds, and is rated at 100 m.p.h. top speed. But what is more amazing, the Rabbit has more useable room than any other car of its size. It has leg room in front and back that lets people sit naturally and comfortably. Same with head room, six footers don't have to scrunch down in their seats.

And when the Rabbit is loaded with people, it's still not anywhere near loaded. Open the hatchback door, and you see 12.4 cubic feet of space. In fact, if you are not using the rear seat, the whole works folds forward, so you can go into the trucking business.

Room with power—what a refreshing idea!

New Fighter Aircraft Under Consideration

Department of National Defence has been authorized by Cabinet to obtain from industry proposals for the acquisition of new fighter aircraft according to Defence Minister Barney Danson.

He said that the proposals would be based on providing approximately 130 to 150 new high-performance, multi-purpose fighters. This will be the first formal step in obtaining a replacement for the CF-104 and CF-101 aircraft which entered service in the late 1950s and early 1960s, and the CF-5 aircraft which are to be converted to the advanced training role in the 1960s.

The new aircraft will serve Canada's sovereignty and defence needs through the turn of the century, including its contribution to the NATO Alliance.

The defence minister pointed out that the decision is only to invite detailed proposals which will be studied in close co-operation with Supply and Services Canada, Industry Trade and Commerce and other government departments and provide the basis on which selection of suitable fighter aircraft will be made.

In order to reduce the over-all costs of the project, it is intended that the new aircraft be provided "off-the-shelf" in a configuration that will offer some measure of standardization and cater to the Canadian requirements in a fighter aircraft.

Mr. Danson stated that six aircraft are being considered after an extensive analysis of all possible candidates and they are the only six that have the potential to meet the Canadian requirements. The aircraft are the Grumman F-14, McDonnell-Douglas F-15, General Dynamics F-16, McDonnell-Douglas-Northrop F-18, Panavia Tornado and the Dassault-Breguet F1E.

"A program of this magnitude must bring significant economic benefits to Canada. In addition to cost and operational ability, an essential element in the selection will be the extent of the industrial benefits which can be offered by the manufacturers and the source nation," Mr. Danson said.

The cost of the program, which will be determined from the solicited proposals, will be spread over approximately 10 years, and will include the purchase and test equipment, trainers and any other non-recurring costs.

A project team has been formed to prepare the requests for proposals and then evaluate the responses. Manufacturers' responses will be assessed to ensure that overall Canadian interests are kept in mind with respect to cost, operational suitability, and industrial and economic impact.

The project team includes officials from National Defence, Supply and Services, Industry Trade and Commerce, and science and technology. Other departments and agencies will also be included in the team as required.

The evaluation of the proposals will then be presented as options for Cabinet consideration in early 1978. It is expected that signing of a contract will be possible before the end of 1978, with delivery of the first fighter by mid-1981.

Multi-Purpose Aircraft

Acquisition of a single multi-purpose aircraft is considered the most promising and the most cost effective approach, according to the defence minister, since it would reduce training costs, simplify the inventories of spare parts, repair and overhaul facilities.

However, Mr. Danson explained, the Canadian requirement is complicated by the diversity in roles between North America and Europe. In North America, the predominant need is for a long-range interceptor aircraft, to ensure an adequate level of sovereignty and defence in Canadian airspace.

These aircraft must also have some ground support, anti-shipping, and reconnaissance capability. In Europe there is a need for a tactical aircraft which has the flexibility to counter the threat to NATO posed by the increasing build-up of Warsaw Pact ground forces, and also be able to engage in counter air operations.

Current Fighter Resources

The Canadian Forces currently operate a fleet of 103 CF-104 Starfighters, 59 CF-101 Voodoos, and 103 CF-5 Freedom Fighters.

In Canada, for control of sovereign airspace and for air defence within its NORAD commitment, the Canadian Forces have three operational squadrons equipped with CF-101 McDonnell Voodoo two seat, twin-engine, all-weather interceptors, based at Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, P.Q. and Comox, B.C. In addition, CF-101s assigned to the Operational Training Squadron at Bagotville are available to supplement the interceptor squadron in an emergency.

In central Europe, the Canadian Air Group assigned to NATO is equipped with CF-104 Starfighter fighter-bombers based at Baden-Soellingen. An Operational Training Squadron is based at Cold Lake, Alberta.

He added that the CF-104s and CF-101s are in an advance state of technical obsolescence which makes them increasingly difficult and expensive to maintain.

Two operational squadrons equipped with CF-5 fighter-bombers are based at Bagotville and Cold Lake respectively. Their primary task is Canada's air reinforcement to NATO's northern flank in Europe, but they are also used to support Canadian-based land and maritime force operations and to conduct advanced pilot training.

The CF-5 is scheduled to be converted exclusively to the pilot training role in the 1980s.

The defence minister said that the combat capabilities of the present fleet, in terms of aircraft and weapons system performance, are inferior to and inadequate compared to the combat capabilities of the new fighter and bomber aircraft being introduced rapidly into service with the air forces of Canada's potential military opponents.

Industrial Considerations

While the purpose of seeking proposals is to ascertain how the aircraft manufacturers can best satisfy Canada's military requirements as well as benefit industrial and economic objectives, it is anticipated that the proposals may also cover the possibility of continuing production in Canada of certain parts and assemblies of the same aircraft.

The minister emphasized that he and his colleague the minister of Industry Trade and Commerce, Hon. Jean Cretien, were determined to ensure that, once the military requirements have been satisfied, the responsiveness of the proposals to the industrial and economic benefits would be considered of great importance.

Dates Set For Tourney

The annual Schooner Broomball Tournament will be held April 8 - 9 - 10 at the Beresford Arena.

All teams, men and women, interested in entering may do so by contacting the following: Arismond Chiasson, 548-2464; Ronald Doucet, 548-8129; or Beresford Arena, 783-3962 or 783-3926.

Registration deadline is set for 5:00 p.m. April 6.

School Term To Stay The Same

There will be no change in the opening and closing dates of schools for 1977 - 78 according to a calendar released March 24 by the department of education. The 1977 - 78 school year will begin on September 6 and end June 30 with a Christmas break from December 23 to January 8, inclusive.

The calendar dispels fears that schools would open in late August and close in mid-June, with a one-week Christmas break. Those changes were recommended recently by the task force on the school year, but Education Minister Charles Gallagher had earlier stated publicly there would be no change in next year's opening date.

Gallagher says the task force report is still under study by his department and no decision has been reached on implementing any or all of its recommendations in the 1978 - 79 school year. He said if changes are going to be made, he will give the public plenty of advance warning.

There will be 195 teaching days during 1977 - 78, the same as the current year. Thirteen days will be set aside for administrative purposes and professional development of teachers. Students will therefore attend classes for only 182 days.

Consolidated Mill Dropping Newsprint

The management of Consolidated-Bathurst Limited, in a move to rationalize its newsprint production, has announced that it will discontinue newsprint operations at Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Que. This will involve the permanent shutdown of three old newsprint machines, built between 1916 and 1924, in the Cap-de-la-Madeleine section of the Company's Wayagamack Division. The section's closing is scheduled for September 15, 1977.

The Wayagamack Division has its major mill in Trois-Rivieres.

Company management says that, following an in-depth study of various alternatives, it came, with regret, to the conclusion that the operations at Cap-de-la-Madeleine could not logically be continued.

It is expected that personnel of the Wayagamack Division, which numbers 1382, will decrease by approximately 375 employees. The Company will take steps to make certain rules for early retirement more flexible. Taking account of normal retirements, possible acceptances of early retirement by long-service employees and normal attrition, the number of employees subject to indefinite lay-off could be reduced to 250 or even 200. This represents less than 20 per cent of the current manpower of the Wayagamack Division.

The company wishes to strengthen its market and technical position in relation to the Canadian industry and particularly to American producers. The major improvements at mills and installations which preceded the decision to shut down the three machines at Cap-de-la-Madeleine are regarded as confirmation of this desire to be competitive. The Cap-de-la-Madeleine section is the one least suited to a favorable return on investment via modernisation.

The Company is convinced that the measures envisaged are, in the medium and long-term, in the best interest of the business and of the job security of the large majority of its pulp and paper employees.

The work force of Consolidated-Bathurst Limited in its pulp and paper mills in the St-Maurice Valley was 3389 at December 31, 1976. The lay-off that will result from the shut-down of Cap-de-la-Madeleine operations represents 11 per cent of this work force.

Consolidated Bathurst Limited continues to be one of the principal employers in the St-Maurice Valley.

A 385 triple from anchorman Gordie Chiasson and a solid team effort carried Bathurst Capitals to a 133 pin victory over Nackawic Lanes and their second defense of the Jap Blake Memorial Trophy.

Leadoff man Ralph Vienneau had a 339 triple while Danny Tonner's 328 triple was tops for Nackawic.

Lasers - Three Crowns In Three Years

After an absence of six years in high school hockey, Bathurst High has been operating for the past five years. In this short period, the school teams have won three championships, 1974-75 AA; 1975-76 AA; and in Fredericton on Monday completed their feat by capturing the AAA honors.

On route to this successful completion, the Lasers had a season league record, 15 wins, 1 loss and 2 ties. In zone playoff, the Lasers defeated the ever powerful Chatham Tommies two games to one in the best of three.

Other zone winners were, Moncton Purple Knights in the Eastern zone, Kennebecasis Crusaders in the south and Fredericton Black Kats in the western zones.

In the provincial semi-finals, Fredericton defeated Moncton in two straight games and Bathurst over the Saint John winner in two in best of three series.

This set the stage for the provincial finals to be a best of five.

Bathurst captured the first at home by a 5 - 2 count, the capital city boys evened the count at home by winning 9 - 3.

The third game played in Bathurst turned out to be the most dramatic which saw the Lasers rise from almost certain defeate by scoring two goals in the last minute and winning the contest by a 5 - 4 count.

The Black Kats now must win the two remaining games, but it proved to be too much as the Lasers skated to a 6 - 2 win and the first provincial AAA crown in any sport for this school.

This left the team with a playoff record of seven wins and two losses, and a season record 22 wins, 3 losses and two ties.

The future in hockey for many of this year's graduating players looks bright. It is very possible that players like Glenn Melvin, Tim Kyle, Jim Savoie, Robert Payne who have all played three years for the school team will be skating for university, junior or intermediate teams next year. Other first and second year boys on the team who are potential graduates are Joe Connolly, Brian O'Neill, David Burke, Paul Hachey and Gary Doucet.

This looks like the end of an era but the previous years looked as bleak. However the boys always keep maturing and developing and filling spots left after graduating.

All high schools of New Brunswick are grouped into one of three classes, the top 40 per cent, according to enrollment, are in the AAA classification, the next 30 per cent are in the AA class and the last 30 per cent are in the A class.

This grouping makes it possible to compete on a more equitable basis. It is also left to the schools the option to compete in a higher classification in sports those that are wishing stronger competition which is normally found in the larger schools.

A second clarification should be made on the provincial zone set up. The province is divided into four zones, North (Campbellton to Shippegan to Newcastle), East (the Moncton area), South (the Saint John area), and the West (Oromocto, Fredericton to Edmundston).

In provincial playoffs, for each sport, the four zones declare winners who play semi-finals and then finals in each of the three classifications.

Minor Hockey

The round robin semi-final playoffs in the Squirt Division finished in a three-way tie for first place with the Eagles, Ants and Sharks having six points each. The Eagles were awarded first place because they had a better playoff record between the three teams that were tied.

The Ants and Sharks will play off for second place on Saturday at 11:15 a.m. and the winner will play the Eagles in the final on Monday.

The old saying that a hockey game is never over until the final bell proved right on two occasions for the Max Legere family over the weekend. On Sunday, the Bathurst High School Lasers hockey team coached by Max Legere scored two goals in the last 48 seconds of the game to beat Fredericton 5 - 4.

On Monday, Mathew Legere, eight-year-old son of Max and Ann Legere, scored a goal with two seconds left in the game to tie the contest 4 - 4 and send his team, the Eagles, into the Squirt Division finals.

Bathurst Minor Hockey congratulates the Lasers on winning the provincial championship. All high school players came through the Bathurst minor hockey system with the exception of Gary Doucet and Omer Fournier.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER C. WHITMAN

VINYL FLOOR SQUEAKS

Q. Our house is less than a year old. Recently we noticed the kitchen floor has begun to squeak. It is covered with inlaid vinyl. What can we do?

A. Obviously a surface attack is impossible, due to the vinyl. The cause of the squeaking is the not-thorough-seasoned wood finally drying out. This causes shrinkage, which results in larger nail holes. So the nail can move up and down when someone walks on the floor. This motion of the nail in the nail hole is what causes the squeak. Immobilize the squeaky places by driving thin wood wedges between the subflooring and the beams. Locate these spots by having someone tread overhead while you note and mark them from underneath. If your basement ceiling is finished, it can really complicate your problem, because you must have access to the underside of the floor. Let's hope yours in unfinished.

CORK ROOM SMELLS

Q. My husband lined our daughter's room with a cork wall panelling. Beautiful, but how to remove the odor?

A. Lots of time and ventilation. During windows-closed periods, use space-odor absorbents or a large open box of baking soda.

REMOVE WALLPAPER

Q. Should I remove wallpaper from wallboard before painting? We don't like the design at all. But it came with the house.

A. Risky. Unless you know for sure the wallboard was sized before the wallpaper was put on, leave the paper alone. If not sized, the soaking can also removed the paper surface of the wallboard. Much safer to paint right over the wallpaper.

RESCUE CHROME

Q. The chrome legs of the table and chairs in our kitchen dining nook have had a hard live, with an active family of four boys. The chrome is chipped and flaking off and looks pretty terrible. I tried aluminum paint. It doesn't do the job at all. What do you suggest?

A. At an auto-supply shot, get a chrome replating kit, sold for at-home treatment of rusty bumpers. Try your hand at replating. Directions aren't difficult. If you still don't like the results, get an estimate from a metal-plating shop. (Once you get it, you'll probably think your work wasn't so bad after all.)

BREEZEWAY SLIPPERY

Q. The concrete floor of the breezeway between the garage and the side door can get very slippery with snow and occasional ice. Would covering it with a textured vinyl improve this condition?

A. Frankly, I don't believe it would help enough to be worth the trouble and cost. (I'm not referring to appearance, which could ve very handsome.) I suggest considering indoor-outdoor carpeting over a cemented-down padding of foam rubber; the type which "breathes". Very comfortable underfoot and never slippery.

COATED BATHUB

Q. The tub in the house we recently purchased has a definite build-up, especially near the drain. Yellow spots are present. I haven't been able to clean off either the lime build-up or the yellow spots. What do you recommend?

A. You should consult a water-conditioning man about a water-softening system. With a lime-deposit build-up like this in your tub, think of what the inside of your pipes look like. Enough time and lime build-up, those pipes will shrink inside. Sometimes they shrink totally closed. This type replacement can be most unpleasantly expensive.

Recent Drawings Due At Library

"50 Canadian Drawings", an invitational exhibition of recent drawings by 50 Canadian Artists, will be on display in Bathurst at Nepisiguit Centennial Library, between April 13 - April 24. This exhibition is the first national contemporary exhibition offered by the Beaverbrook Art Gallery Extension Service. It is also the largest by and most ambitious of the six extension exhibitions organized by the Gallery for provincial circulation since 1972.

As no pre-determined definition of "drawing" was provided, each participating curator had to rely on his own definition of the category. Although five curators each selecting drawings from their own region does not provide an ideal basis for a re-definition of "drawing", the method of selection does succeed in presenting an exhibition of individually significant drawings by those most familiar with the work being done within each area. What may have been lost in the consistency of the overall selecting is more than compensated for by the freshness and variety of the regional representation.

Although "50 Canadian Drawings" was conceived as an exhibition of contemporary work, it was not intended to exclude the work of those artists who were either advanced in their career or who worked in an area often considered unfashionable. Within the restrictions of size, date, and category, selection was based on the quality of individual works. As a result the exhibition encompasses a wide range of works, some of which have only recently been categorized as "drawing".

The traditional role of line - to delineate and outline - in many cases has been set aside. Line is not limited to the creation of an image. The expressive qualities of line are examined independent of their descriptive function. In this way, the medium of the drawing and the content are fused.

Phoney Insurance Scheme Uncovered

A Riviere du Loup insurance broker has been charged in Quebec court with selling up to $1 million in fraudulent insurance policies in the Matapedia, Rimouski, Gaspe and northern New Brunswick areas.

Cpl. Robert Blanchette of the Matapedia detachment of the Quebec Provincial Police said last week that Jean Baptiste Cote is reported to have used names of three phoney insurance companies called the Ivanhoe Insurance Company of Carolina; Providence Fire Insurance Company and American Fire Insurance Company. In addition, he used a number of legitimate companies, but with photo-copies of the genuine insurance policy forms.

Cpl. Blanchette has urged anyone having bought insurance from the allegedly fraudulent salesman to call the QPP in Matapedia immediately. Where legitimate insurance companies are concerned, the spokesman suggested that the head office of the company should be contacted at once.

Big-City Hotels Feel The Pinch

Look beyond the glitter of Canada's glistening new hotel towers and you'll spot neon signs at various hostelries indicating reduced or special rates. That's a sure sign that Canada-hotel industry is feeling the pinch that results from an euphoric building spree and increasing cost pressures, writes Mark Ricketts in The Financial Post.

True enough, the top-rank hotels have not joined the price-cutting to any significant extent. But they're still having to absorb the revenue gap between any rate increases they have hesitantly put into effect and what they really need to meet spiraling costs.

Part of the reason is that annual growth in demand for rooms has been less than expected. But the industry's primary problem has been the hotel construction surge of the past two years.

In 1966, Montreal had 7,600 rooms, to which it added 1,800 over the next nine years. In the past two years, hoteliers have put another 2,200 rooms, while a further 1,600 are under construction.

Toronto's tally of 19,000 rooms is double the 8,500 in place only six years ago. Of that number, "3,500 rooms came onto the market in 1975 - 76, when there already were signs of a slowdown in demand," says Mat Reima, of the hotel consultancy firm of Laventhol and Horwath.

Vancouver's rooms have increased 80 per cent to 7,700 from 4,000 in 1971.

Pierre Chiasson Dies In Hospital

CARAQUET – The death of Pierre G. Chiasson occurred March 26 at Infant Jesus Hospital, Caraquet, at the age of 73.

A native of Caraquet, he was a son of the late Gustave and Catherine (Chiasson) Chiasson.

Surviving besides his wife, the former Helene-Ella Mallet are four daughters, Mrs. Alyre Gallien (Fernande), Mrs. Alban Cormier (Blondine) and Dianne, all of Caraquet and Mrs. Jean-Pierre Vriellette (Ginette) of Nackawic; one adopted son, Marcel of Caraquet.

Four brothers, Martin, Augustin and Joseph of Caraquet and Theophile of Norwich, Conn.; three sisters, Mrs. Hyacinthe Gionet (Victoire) of Caraquet, Mrs. Theophile LeBouthillier (Cordelia) of Lower Caraquet and Mrs. Majorique Lacoursiere (Regina) of Montreal; and five great grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Chiasson rested at Racicot's Funeral Home, Caraquet.

The funeral was held at St. Peter in Chains Church at Caraquet, with burial in the parish cemetery to follow entombment.

Tracadie Hears Plans For Co-Op

Martin Leger, head of the federation of Acadian credit unions, told a large gathering of businessmen and interested residents in Tracadie Sunday that the town has the potential to support a seven to eight million dollar commercial business.

The group, numbering about 115 persons, gathered to hear comments and suggestions by Mr. Leger, a Caraquet native, in the advent that a co-operative retail store could be set up in the near future within Tracadie.

The speaker pointed to the large turnout as "excellent proof" of the community's interest in the possibility of forming a co-op in Tracadie.

He related the history of the co-operative movement, explaining the principle behind it, and what was needed in order to establish a co-op store within the community. Leger suggested that a co-op store was "not just another business", but a business owned by the people themselves.

In a brief question period, Leger noted that retail prices of commodities sold in a co-op store were comparable to prices in other larger chain stores since no one wanted to create a price war among the various department store chains.

He added that architectural, engineering and planning people would have to be consulted before any cost figures for the building of a store in Tracadie could be estimated. Co-op stores, meanwhile, enjoy a 30-day credit on all stocks delivered weekly to each store from the Moncton central.

A group of local businessmen, headed by Hubert Basque of Tracadie and including Mathieu Robichaud and Jack Robichaud, has been working on the idea of establishing a co-op store in Tracadie for the past several weeks.

An interim committee to study the question further was established Sunday.

Those initial ten members appointed to the committee represent the communities of Tracadie, Sheila, Pont La France, and St. Irenee. Other members to be appointed in the near future will represent St. Isidore, Portage River and Ste. Rose.

CNIB Looking Forward To New And Improved Program

Following is the annual report of the chairman of the Gloucester County Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, submitted by Glendon Eddy at the association's annual meeting.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, as the name implies, is a national service organization with eight divisions across Canada. Our Maritime Division, which includes New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, has its headquarters at Halifax under the direction of a board of management. Our objectives are to improve condition of blind people and to prevent blindness.

The year 1976 in the County of Gloucester was very productive as the number of blind persons decreased and the services were increased, thanks to the board members and other volunteer workers throughout the county. I welcome the appointment of Guy Woodland as provincial administrator and assistant director for the Maritime Division, and we look forward to carrying out new and improved programs for our blind population. During the year, an adjustment training program was introduced at the CNIB Residence, Fundy Hall, and I am pleased to report that two such courses will be given in 1977.

On January 1, 1976, there were 141 blind persons in Gloucester County. During the year, there were three new clients and eight were removed as six of these died and two others moved away. On December 31st, 1976, there were 136 blind persons in the county.

The district administrator again contacted all blind persons in the county, and a total of 177 contacts were made. Two blind persons moved to our Fundy Hall Residence at Saint John and another one, Paul Emile Desrosier, participated and benefited through the six-week adjustment course at Fundy Hall. Two blind persons in this area are now studying the Morse Code towards receiving their licenses in amateur radio, and two others who have requested this service should have the same opportunity soon.

The local CCB Club carried out activities to the benefit of 15 blind persons living in the vicinity of Bathurst. These activities included social evenings, taking part in sports such as bowling and horseshoe pitching, as well as participating in three bowling tournaments at Moncton, Halifax and Bathurst.

Mrs. Pauline Wood, counseller children's department, visited regularly the families of eight blind children from the ages of two to 14 in the county. There are five students attending schools for the blind and seven others are enrolled in local public schools. A young man from Middle Caraquet is taking a course as a cook at the Nova Scotia Institute of Technology and is doing very well. A young lady from St. Simon was referred to take a course as a rehabilitation counsellor and steps are being taken towards this goal. A client from the Bathurst area was trained and will soon open a shoemaker's shop in the city.

In 1976, the Petit Rocher Richelieu Club donated a talking book machine and five blind persons began receiving talking book service. Now there are 20 blind persons enjoying recorded books and nine others are receiving and reading Braille books and magazines.

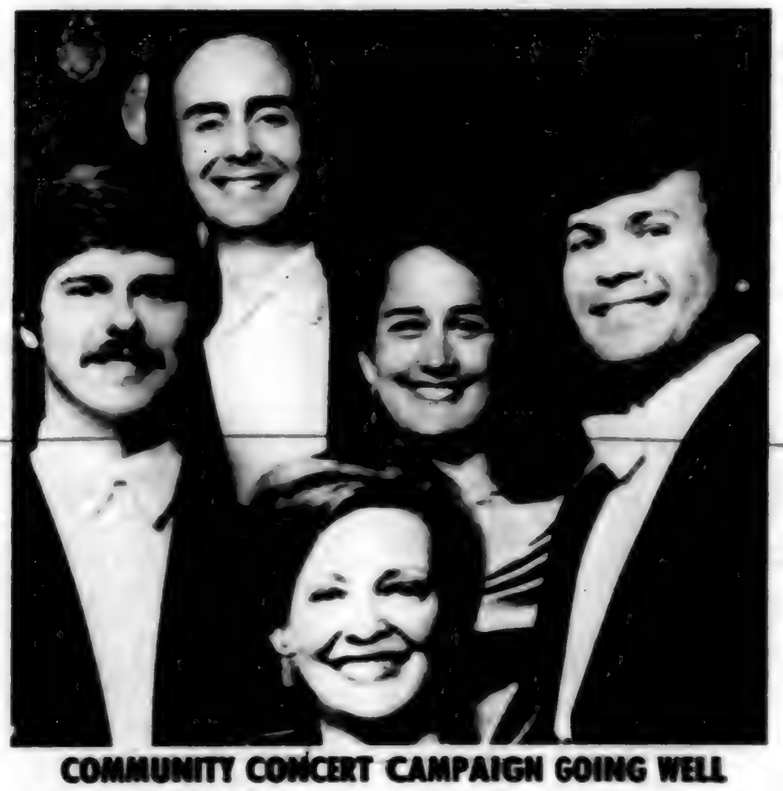
Robert LeBlanc, employment counsellor, visited several blind persons in the district in view of employment training. Five blind persons in the county have regular gainful employment as physiotheragist, school teacher, teletype operator, stationary engineer and administrator. Two others are kept fairly busy in home industry and this includes basketry, wrought iron work, chair caning and sea grass weaving. Orders for such items may be called in at the CNIB office, 546-5132. Four other blind persons in the county are gainfully employed on a part-time basis in such fields as music teacher, farming, peat moss cutter, and musician.

In general, the financial campaigns were carried out very successfully, thanks to the enthusiasm and support provided by the public and especially our volunteer workers throughout the county. In several localities, we hope to improve the situation in 1977, but actually our campaign is only $300 short of its objective which was set at $12,000.

It is impossible to mention the many hundred of volunteers whose effort enables the CNIB to carry on its programs. Again this year the students of Bathurst High and the Polyvalente took an active part in this project and I want to mention also the C.G.I.T. girls, downshere. I must mention the campaign organizers as follows: Bathurst - Dr. Alexandre Savoie, Nick Dimitroff and Pius J. Theriault; Allardville - Fr. Leo Vienneau; Bas Caraquet - Mrs. Rufin Ginnet; Belledune - Mrs. Leandre Landry; Beresford - Mrs. Denise Hachey; Caraquet - Mrs. Gerard Albert and Edgar G. Landry; Grand Anse - Fr. Ed Ouellette; Janeville and area - Mrs. Harper Smith; Paquetville - Fr. Louis Arseneau; Petit Rocher - Elvode Cormier and Fr. Edmond Richard; Pointe Verte - Mrs. Jean-Luc Hache; Robertville - Sister Edna DeGrace and Fr. Zael Soulsner; St. Isidore - Fr. G. A. Gautreau; Shippegan - Mrs. Roger DeGrace, Jean Camille DeGrace and Fr. F. McGraw; Tracadie - Jean Paul Lanier.

In closing, I extend the sincere appreciation of this board to the press and the radio as well as the many organizations and individuals whose assistance has in a large measure made the services mentioned possible. Finally I want to mention particularly the Bathurst Lions Club who made a generous donation of $1200. to the campaign and in addition contributed financially to support the blind bowlers including their trip to Halifax at a cost exceeding $500. In this respect I will mention the name of Gus Higgins who assisted in particular to coach the blind bowlers and to recruit several other members of the Lions Club with this very important project.

I hope that all of you have found it a pleasure, as I have, working with the Institute's staff members. Let us resolve to continue our active interest in the work of CNIB in the years ahead.



COMMUNITY CONCERT CAMPAIGN GOING WELL

The annual membership campaign of the Bathurst Community Concert Association is going well and is expected to go even better, according to Mrs. Kumari Sundaram, campaign director for this year's membership drive.

The campaign was officially launched at a special dinner held March 28 at Danny's Colonial Room. The event, tastefully planned and knowingly supervised by Mrs. Flavine Rutledge, was an unqualified success.

Present were the Association's Board of Directors, campaign officers and field workers and Mrs. Gertrude Silver, representative for Community Concerts International.

Besides enjoying the tasteful preparations put before them, the workers present heard impromptu reports from the heads of the various committees and were spurred on to seek the participation of more citizens and music lovers by Mrs. Silver who stressed the fact that the success of the campaign rested on the zeal and diligence of each and every worker.

A very attractive series is being offered to the membership this year. The Franz Liszt Orchestra of Budapest an internationally renowned chamber orchestra will highlight the new season. This is the first time in the history of the local association that an orchestra is being featured in the concert series.

This orchestra is a young ensemble both in its composition and the length of its existence. But the musicians are all first chair musicians of Hungary's leading orchestras, graduates of the Franz Liszt Academy of Music, and were selected from among the most talented to represent the best in Hungary's musical tradition.

Under the demanding leadership of Frigyes Sandor, the orchestra has gained a solid reputation for superb music making both in classical works as well as in representative Hungarian and modern compositions.

Connoisseurs and lovers of vocal music will also be in for a rare treat. The New York Vocal Arts Ensemble has been perfecting the delicate art of the vocal solo ensemble, communicating to audiences on a one-to-one basis, since 1971 and in the coming season will be performing in Bathurst.

Like the string quartet, the vocal quartet calls for artists of exceptional ability and musicianship who are willing and able to blend their individualities into an ensemble that is the best of each and yet different from any one of them, to achieve a cohesive and effective interpretation of the music to which all of them contribute and which no soloist, conductor or director dominates.

Add to this the charm of a repertoire which though little known is of the highest craftmanship and you have the ingredients for a magnificent evening of musical enjoyment.

Headquarters for the current campaign are located in the Lounsbury Auto Division, on King Avenue. From 9:00 a.m. to 9 p.m. everyday, from March 28 to April 2, campaign workers are available for information, renewals or new membership. Those unable to drop in can call 548-2939.

Local Man's Dad Big Prizewinner

Retirement for Howard Colburne after 37 years with Air Canada moved one step closer to reality March 25 as he walked away with $50,000 grand prize in Atlantic Loto's eighth draw. Accompanying to Moncton to pick up the cheque was the winner's son, Glenn Colburne, of Eddy Housing Ltd., Bathurst.

"My retirement was already planned for the end of the month. I'm going into my 37th year with Air Canada," said Mr. Colburne, 59 of Waverly, N.S. "Winning in the lottery makes everything that much nicer."

Mr. Colburne who held ticket number 92628 in series 22 was in Montreal on business when his winning number was drawn.

"I tried to keep my cool. I'm from Missouri, so to speak. I just couldn't get excited. My wife, Margaret, was very excited. She phoned six times in the space of an hour and a half."

A flight dispatcher supervisor, Mr. Colburne said he and his wife intend to do some travelling with their prize winnings.

"We plan to be in Barbados for two months, then back to Nova Scotia for a month then we're off to Hawaii," he said. "I want to see some of this small world before I pass on."

Program To Aid Small Industry

Commerce and Development Minister Gerald Merrithew March 23 released details of the new Small Industry Financial Assistance Program.

"The principal thrust of this program will be directed towards encouraging new entrepreneurs, and expansion by small businesses," said Merrithew.

The program will provide interest-free forgivable loans to assist the modernization, expansion or establishmept of small industry, he added.

To be eligible for assistance under this program, the company must be located in the counties of Restigouche, Gloucester, Northumberland, Kent, Madawaska, Victoria, Sunbury, Queens or Charlotte.

The project must involve manufacturing or processing, or a maintenance or repair facility related to the manufacturing sector. An average sales for the two most recent years of operation should not exceed $500,000 per year, added the minister.

Forgivable loans of up to 50 per cent of the approved capital cost of a new facility and 30 per cent of the approved cost for a modernization or expansion will be provided. In all cases the approved capital cost must not exceed $60,000.

Funding for the program will be provided through various federal-provincial development agreements.

Applications for assistance under the small industry program will be received by the Department of Commerce and Development and the federal Department of Regional Economic Expansion. If both departments concur, the application will be presented to the New Brunswick Industrial Development Board for final decision.

Province OKs RCMP Contact

Justice Minister Rodman E. Logan, QC March 25 announced the province has approved a new agreement with Ottawa to provide provincial policing services by the RCMP.

The new contract is for a five year period, retroactive to April 1, 1976. It follows two years of negotiations between the provinces and the federal government, the first time such an agreement has been negotiated jointly by the provinces.

Mr. Logan said he is pleased with the role the province played in the negotiations and believes "the best financial arrangement possible has been reached."

"Original federal proposals included 60 per cent provincial cost sharing and 40 per cent for the federal government as opposed to 50 - 50 in the last year of the previous agreement," he said. "The final contract provides for 52 per cent provincial cost sharing, rising to 56 per cent in the last year of the contract."

The minister said the province paid $4.7 million for RCMP services in 1975-76. Under the original 60-40 federal proposal the new contract would have cost the province $7.4 million. However, under terms of the final contract the cost for the 1976-77 fiscal year is expected to be approximately $5.8 million.

Mr. Logan noted that under the new agreement New Brunswick will pay for provincial policing on a direct cost basis.

"The previous agreement operated on the basis that costs were aggregated across Canada and averaged over the numerical strength of members in Canada," he said. "The new arrangement is better for New Brunswick in that our costs will not relate to what we do and the level of police services we require for New Brunswick.

Other changes made during the course of negotiations include:

- Reduction of the province's share to the RCMP pension plan from 15 per cent to 12 per cent.
- Deletion of provincial costs related to operation of RCMP headquarters, Ottawa.
-Removal of Provincial costs for transfer of personnel from province to province.

Mr. Logan said the province had also adopted the position that if it had to pay a greater share of the costs than the federal government then equipment purchased under the contract should be owned by the province in proportion to its contribution. This provision is now in the new contract.

Although he is pleased with the overall contract Mr. Logan

Archaeological Sites In Area To Be Worked

About 10,000 years of the cultural heritage of the Maritimes are gradually sinking or being washed into the ocean, and the Council of Maritime Premiers' committee on archaeological co-operation is trying to do something about it.

Chris Turnbull, provincial archaeologist for New Brunswick, chairman of the newly-formed committee, said the Maritimes have been sinking into the ocean at a rate of about six inches every 100 years for the last 8,000 to 10,000 years - faster than any other area of North America. Constant soil erosion is making coastal areas and river basins disappear even faster.

Primitive people tended to settle in coastal areas and because areas that were coastal a few thousand or even a few hundred bears ago are now under water, archaeological excavations are impossible at many valuable sites.

Labrador, unlike the Maritimes, is actually rising out of the ocean. Dr. Turnbull said that in the last few years archaeologist have been able to put together a cultural history of the Labrador coast covering about 9,000 years. In New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, in a similar period of time, archaeologists have only been able to work on sites dating back about 3,000 years because most earlier ones are submerged.

Dr. Turnbull said in the 1920s, several valuable archaeological sites were recorded in Prince Edward Island, but they weren't properly excavated and now are under water because of erosion.

Because archaeologist in the Maritimes face common problems, the Council of Maritime Premiers decided to set up a committee so people concerned with archaeology in the Maritime provinces could work together. The other committee members are Nick DeJong, provincial archivist in Prince Edward Island, Brian Preston, curator of history for Nova Scotia and the secretary of the council.

The committee's objectives will be to consider the threat posed by coastal erosion, to work to increase public awareness of the prehistoric cultural history of the Maritimes and to protect the area's archaeological heritage.

The committee's next meeting is scheduled for April and the first item on the agenda will be to establish an archaeological inventory program, outlining who is doing what in archaeological work in the Maritimes already, and mapping out and locating unexcavated sites.

Dr. Turnbull said representatives from the National Museum and the Newfoundland government are expected to attend the next meeting. Eventually, he said, there is a possibility that joint legislation to protect archaeological sites will come out of the committee's work.

Industrial expansion, power and pipe lines are destroying archaeological sites, Dr. Turnbull said, but because no one knows where all the sites in the region are, they cannot be protected.

In New Brunswick, Dr. Turnbull said there has been a "fair amount of success in getting people to realize archaeological sites are a part of the environment and deserve protection."

One site discovered in Atholville was the scheduled location of a gravel pit, but Dr. Turnbull said the operator voluntarily postponed his work until the archaeological excavation was concluded.

Areas that aren't scheduled for industrial use are restored to their original state after excavations have been completed.

In Red Bank, in northern New Brunswick, trees will be replanted when work is finished on excavation of the Augustine burial mounds on the Red Bank Indian Reserve. The provincial department of historical resources got the first permit in Canada to do archaeological excavations on an Indian reserve.

Another New Brunswick project is excavation of a historic mission established by the Recollect Fathers on Miscou Island. The area was surveyed last summer and digging will begin this summer.

Work will also begin this summer on the site of an early settlement by explorer Nicholas Denys on Lameque Island.

In the lower St. John River Valley, archaeologists will use a procedure new to the province to search for possible archaeological sites. They will drill through the silt washed down by the river and will examine the core samples obtained for evidence of old settlements or campsites.

One of the biggest jobs facing archaeologists in the Maritimes, Dr. Turnbull said, is to further the public's awareness that people have been in the Maritimes for more than 10,000 years. The first people, he said, probably came up the Atlantic coast after the last ice age as the ice gradually retreated toward the pole.

L'Assomption Sash, A Very Precious Acadian Relic

By RUDI BOURQUE

With all the winter carnivals going on in Eastern Canada ever since New Year's, I could not resist the temptation to write a paper on a unique piece of garment conceived, developed and codified by the Acadians repatriated in L'Assomption, Quebec, during the 18th century.

This genuine relic has spread all over Quebec province and is worn especially during the winter carnival in Quebec City. Bonhomme Carnival has one around the waist.

It is an authentic one like the one worn by Sir Wilfred Laurier, by Dr. Andre Chenier (1837), by Gen. Brock and other outstanding Canadians? Or, is it just the ordinary loom-woven one with two hundred woollen threads - a 50 hour task.

Whatever the case, what is important is the history behind this precious relic of the Acadian past.

First it must be said that this type of handwoven object is as old as the world. The technique was known in India, in the Near East, in North Africa, in the Scandinavian countries, in Peru, and to the Indians of the Americas (North, Central and South) who braided roots and animals hairs, and to the Acadians.

The Indians as well as the Quebec Canadians and the Quebec Scotsmen learned the craft from the Acadians in L'Assomption and the surrounding villages of Saint - Alexis-des-Monts, Saint - Ambroise-de-Kildare, Saint-Jacques de-l'Achigan and Sainte-Marie-Salome.

The typical Assomption Sash, known as "la grande" (the large one), was the creation of a group of Acadian families known as Bourgeois, Desrosiers, Forest, Gaudet, Johnson, Legare, Lord, Melancon, Mirault and Venne. In 1907, a Mrs. Venne gave a public demonstration of the art of weaving the Assomption sashes at the Canadian Handicrafts of Montreal Exhibition. She was one of the few surviving handweavers who brought several of these authentic sashes to be exposed to the general public.

For those who doubt that the making of the Assomption sash was taught to the Indians by the Acadians, I will mention some of the tribes that were engaged in making these sashes:

The Kickapoo Indians, an Algonquin tribe from the Wisconsin region joined Tecumseh against the American forces in the War of 1812. (They did not have anything to do with the Kickapoo joy juice hairless Joe makes in Li'l Abner.)

The Osage Tribe, the Sioux Indians, known to be the wealthiest community per capita in the world after the oil discovery on their reservation in the northern part of Oklahoma.

The Wyandotte, belonging to the Iroquois family and known in Canada as theHuron. A part of this tribe settled at Ancienne Lorette in Lower Canada.

Their sashes were made like the Assomption ones and had animal designs added to them. These tribes and others used their sashes to fasten small crafts. The sashes were almost undestructible.

The Assomption sash known to these Indians was used as an exchange item like wampum up until 1700.

The Assomption sash had many qualities. It was also used in trading and could buy food, dress goods, land, pay taxes and custom duties and fares to cruss on the ferries. The sash was also used to buy gifts.

If we compare the making of the Assomption sash to the making of the wampum of old one will notice an entirely different craft at hand. The wampum was made of polished pieces of clam shells and stems of periwinkle. The black and dark purple beads were strung on strong thread made of the sinews of animals.

Hiawatha invented the wampum, so says some Indians. Others says Hiawatha means "he who makes the wampum belt" while some believe it means "he who seeks the wampum belt."

The Acadians made some of their sashes by weaving by hand 600 woollen threads dyed with wild plants. The threads were braided when wet to make them stiffer.

It was a family chore which included all members of one family. The very young girls prepared the skeins and disentangled the threads behind the matting. The men twisted the fringes. The most able hands could finish a complete sash in a day, which meant 18 hours of work. This craftwork was a family pastime often done to the accompaniment of jovial conversation. This type of matting was an extremely complex task.

The sashes made quickly in series for the distributors need, had but two or three patterns at the most. From this primitive form arose other motifs, like the flaming arrowhead, the broken arrowhead, the bull's eyes, the inverted arrowhead, the complete arrowhead, the parallelogram, the trapezoid - all done in multi-colors. More creative motifs were added for special buyers.

This all happened when the syndicates took over and fine exploitation came into effect with the Scottish and English trading companies.

This commercial event limited the craftmanship of the L'Assomption women and also helped to deteriorate the interest in the handwoven sash to such an extent that the Assomption sash disappeared entirely from the handicraft scene.

The Assomption sash known as "la grande" was from six to eight inches wide and six feet long without the fringes. Some sashes were even made 12 inches wide and 15 feet long, without the fringes, with 600 woolen threads, mind you. The oldest ones date back to 1800. These sashes made before this date were braided on the same principle but much less complex.

It was between 1725 and 1800 the Acadian women warpers conceived the sash called "la grande". It was considered imperative from 1820 to 1890 that the Northwest Company and the Hudson Bay Company would have the monopoly on the talented Acadian women and others making the Assomption sash. These companies would buy the most essential piece of garments for the voyageurs. It was an indispensible piece of material for survival.

The sashes, when rolled around the waist, would serve as a back support for the paddlers of large canoes. Since these sashes were imbued with beeswax and done on a wooden block, they would protect the "coureurs de bois" from water, wind and cold.

The sash was a handy thing to hand an axe, a knife, a pistol, a powder horn and even a flask of liquor. It could be used as a table cloth and to fetch water. The sashes were made so sturdily that some were worn more than 60 years - Extremely strong, one might say. It also served to fasten small parcels and carry bags.

The Scots and the French merchants involved in the making of the Assomption sash would sell fine Shetland and French wool - Perhaps at the Trudeau pharmacy at 106 Saint Paul Ave. An Indian curio shop was maintained by the same fellow. I wonder if he wore an Assumption sash.

I have seen pictures of Prime Minister P. E. Trudeau wearing the Indian parka but never the Assomption sash. Sir Wilfred Laurier wore one that cost him $75. It was a fair sum of money to pay in those days for such an extravagant piece of material.

In Scotland, the Lorimers, the Pools and the Tabberers were selling poor imitations of Assomption sashes. These sashes were machine-made in series of eight and sold to the wood runners for $2 or $3. Of course they were colorful sashes but not as warm and durable as the real sashes.

During the winter of 1890, the last effort for survival of the hand-woven Assomption sash was made but without success.

The merchants would not pay cash money for such pieces of art. During the next 50 years, the talented Acadian women of L'Assomption would fade away into the unknown like their ancestors in all their ventures

(See l'Assomption, P. 4, Col. 4)

DEFENSIVE DRIVING COURSES SCHEDULED FOR WEEKEND

A mock accident was held at the exit of Vanier and the Bathurst By-pass March 19. The scheme was organized by the RCMP, Bathurst City Police, St. John Ambulance Brigade and the Lions Club. The purpose was to prove the importance of defensive driving courses offered to the public. The accident that occurred on Saturday, which is a common one, could have beep avoided if both drivers would have been alert at the wheel. Defensive driving courses will be given by the New Brunswick Safety Council at the Northeastern Institute of Technology (Bathurst Trade school), April 2 and 3. Acting as the accident victims were Linda Gallagher, Anne Arseneau and Rene Marteau, all members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Group To Probe School Busing

Aurele Levesque of St. Quentin has been named chairman of the education minister's advisory committee on school busing. Mr. Levesque is a member of the District 1 board of school trustees.

Education Minister Charles Gallagher says he has organized the committee in an effort to bring some rationale and consistency to school transportation policies and the methods of funding transportation in all school districts.

The 13-member advisory group includes representatives from the school trustees association, school superintendents association, school business officials association, and the department of education. Working committees will be established involving all transportation officers in the province.

Mr. Gallagher says he expects to receive an interim report by July 1.

Transportation statistics of the department of education show that there are 1,075 provincially-owned, school buses, and 103,905 students, or 63 per cent of the total provincial enrolment, are bused to school daily. This cost-over 14 million dollars in the present school year-has more than doubled since 1970-71, although enrolments have decreased.

In addition to the chairman, the members of the advisory committee include:

Trustees: Mlle Monique Dumont, Campbellton; Mrs Dorothy Hyslop, St. Stephen; Mrs. Doreen Irving, Moncton; Mrs. Rita O'Neil, Perth; Mrs. Karen Trueman, Sackville, Mr. Merlyn Stillwell, Fredericton; Superintendents: Yvon Ouellette, District 13, Shediac; Robert Bridges, Assistant Superintendent, Districts 21, 22 and 23, Charlotte County.

Business officials: Miss Ardith Thompson, Saint John; Roland Dumont, Dalhousie.

Department of Education: R. G. Cornell, director of administration and finance; R. C. Manore, director of planning and development.

One Voice For All Of Canada?

By STEWART MacLEOD
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

The problem may be too serious to joke about, but there could be ludicrous repercussions from the current Ottawa-Quebec squabble over who can speak for whom at international conferences.

We caught a glimpse of it at that international conference of French-speaking education ministers in Paris when Quebec Education Minister Jacques Yvan Morin refused to preside over the Canadian delegation. He took his Quebec flag to another table and sat down.

And then there was the international water conference in Argentina where Quebec Environment Minister Marcel Leger, a member of the Canadian delegation, threw a spike into the spokes by announcing he would not speak for Canada. He was only there to represent Quebec.

In reply to these incidents, Prime Minister Trudeau announced that if provincial officials continue to renounce their ties with Canada, they will be barred from attending future international conferences.

Trouble is, that's easier said than done.

While the British North America Act give Ottawa clear jurisdiction in the field of external affairs, there are some grey areas involving international relations on subjects under provincial jurisdiction. Traditionally, the problems have been solved by provincial delegates attending under the umbrella of the Canadian flag.

There was a bit of a flare-up over this in 1964 when the Quebec Liberal government of Jean Lesage demanded to have its own representatives at two international conferences of French-language educationists.

ONLY ONE VOICE

"Canada cannot go to international meetings speaking with more than one voice", declared an annoyed Prime Minister Lester Pearson. In one case, the problem was solved by making the Quebec education minister the head of the Canadian delegation.

There were widespread suspicions in Ottawa that the French government of Charles de Gaulle rather enjoyed watching the Canadians backering over their delegations. And there was no doubt that, had Quebec representatives decided to quit the official Canadian delegation, they would have enjoyed observer status with their own flag.

And, if the current dispute gets out of hand, this type of thing could happen again. Only this time, with a Quebec government committed to independence, the overtones would be far more serious.

Furthermore, we have this great Canadian tradition of ensuring that all provinces, on the surface at least, get equal treatment. So if one province began turning up with flag in hand to observe a conference how long would it take for other provinces to get in on the act: Each international conference could be followed by an official Canadian statement and 10 provincial press conferences.

Countries with any sense of mischief could build an enormous tourist business by inviting Canadian delegations to international conferences on education, highways, hydro power and hospitals.

FAST RESPONSE

Mr. Trudeau is obviously anxious to nip this in the bud with his warning that Quebec will not be invited to future conferences if it wants to "behave as though the province has an international personality.

"If they do that, they won't be invited to come along."

But Quebec's minister of intergovermental affairs, Claude Morin, argues that his province has every right to attend international conferences which discuss issues under provincial jurisdiction.

"If the prime minister of Canada pretends we do not have the right to fully express our opinions in matters which the BNA Act grants us sovereignty, then Mr. Trudeau denies Quebec the competency we are granted by the constitution."

And if Quebec wins the right to speak with its own voice at these conferences, all nine provinces would obviously want the same privileges.

It's highly unlikely Ottawa will ever lose its rather exclusive jurisdiction in external affairs, but it's not far-fetched to forsee the day when more than one provincial flat will be fluttering, even if it is in the balconies. At that recent Paris conference, the Quebec flag flew from an official delegate's table, not far from the official Canadian table.

I sure hope this wasn't the beginning of an international circus. I don't like being laughed at.

for $10 or $15.

By 1920, there were only a little more than half a dozen people who still had the "know how" to make hand - woven sash. It was at this time that Dr. E. Z. Massicotte, a folklorist, became interested and took the initiative to preserve the few fragments of an illustrious past in the method of weaving sashes.

This happened in the most critical time between 1912 and 1914 when there were still evidences of the craft.

Dr. Marius Barbeau, an ethnologist, was another gentleman who helped to revive the dying craft of making sashes. The interest and the efforts of these two men were used to create centres where the secrets of making sashes would be diffused to the followers of these venerable Acadian women who had made such a valuable contribution to their Country.

Old-fashioned parties were organized at the Saint-Sulpice library, arts festivals were held at the Chateau Frontenac and other exhibitions of arts became popular. I must mention some pioneers in the field - Mrs. Napoleon Lord and Mrs. Odilon Vigneau together with the financial help of the deputy minister of agriculture, O. A. Bernau. These women lectured at the School of Domestic Arts on the making of sashes. Others followed into their path.

A group of 12 Quebec women together with some Sisters of the Providence in Montreal tried to imitate others in the lost art of making sashes.

It was not until 1967 that a few initiated persons got the art of making sashes to such an extent that editors and artisans ever since their banishment from Acadia.

It was not because the companies could not make money on this type of handicraft work. They simply discontinued buying them. A sash to the maker was only worth from $6 to $20 in flour, lard on the company's credit note, while the companies would sell these same sashes for $25 or more. Of course, only the rich people could afford such a luxury.

Merchants from Beaver Hall made money with the middle-class people. It was essential to buy the longest, and the largest sash, with fringes, sometimes beaded, for the more conspicuous people.

The wealthy English from Montreal were more of a thrifty nature. They would spend a part of the Sabbath Day in wintertime sleighriding the countryside in order to seek a poor, uneducated "habitant" who would sell a genuine sash got together and, within a few years, had aroused the public interest to the extent of publishing four books about the art books and creating workshops for apprenticeship and exhibition centres for traditional and modern works of art.

Thanks to the efforts of the late Dr. Massicotte and Dr. Barbeau, the old technique of hand-weaving sashes are being taught in the handicraft schools in various parts of the province of Quebec. But in New Brunswick it is a horse of a different color. Provincial Artisans (Fredericton) Inc., is doing its best to promote Acadian crafts. The interest on the part of those who should be responsible for such an endeavor is not so great.

There are also the hand weavers in Saint Leonard, Caraquet and other places in the province who would be greatly interested in such a venture of making Assomption sashes and

Home And School Hears Curriculum Supervisor

The March meeting of the Superior Home and School Association was held Tuesday, March 8 in the school library.

The session was called to order by President High Campbell, and the home and school prayer was recited.

Minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report were read and adopted.

It was noted membership now stands at 61. Ways and means and the library committees no new reports.

Mr. Campbell reported to members on the results of the questionnaire on the task force on the new school year which was distributed to parents. There was a 90 per cent reply, and results were tabulated and forwarded to Fredericton.

The task force thanked the association for its input, and indicated the group was the only one from the northeast to reply. The findings of the survey showed an almost even split among parents.

Much discussion took place on French immersion classes in the school specifically, and on the School Board's position on immersion in general. A motion to make the association's feelings on the subject known to the board was passed.

Tom Lagace, a student council representative, asked for and received six chaperones for the up-coming school dance.

Invited guest for the evening was supervisor of curriculum for English schools in District No. 4, Robert Brown.

Mr. Brown explained what his job entailed, including translating programs from the Education Department to coincide with the needs of the district; special education classes on a one-to-one basis, setting up of remedial classes; professional development for teachers; talks with parents; coordinating pupil personnel service, etc.

The speaker explained how programs get from the Department of Education to the classroom, the testing, training and follow-up reporting necessary before a new program is incorporated into the schools.

A question period followed the talk, with members showing much interest in both the address and Mr. Brown's work.

Mr. Campbell thanked the speaker for this time and very informative speech.

The next meeting of the association is set for April 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the school library. April is Dental Health Month, and guest speaker for the evening will be Joanne Mitton, dental hygienist for the N.B. Department of Health.

All parents are urged to attend the meeting and to get involved in their children's school lives as more interest and help is needed.

A Message From Your Dog

By Marguerite Morrison

Dear Folks: Well, you're off again and its only 7 a.m. Will it be 10 p.m. or 11 p.m. when you return?

Thanks for leaving some food, but it was too cold to eat it. Well, now that I've upset my water dish, I'll chew on the porch for a while.

That nice man next door will soon see I have no water and will fill my dish. I'm always glad to see him because he talks to me. My, I'm lonesome.

I wonder sometimes why you people get me. I've never seen the inside of your house except the kitchen. Please let me eat a meal inside once in a while.

I'm only six months old; but I'm not the cute puppy you got. I have grown a lot since. And don't call me "bad dog" just because I chew open the garbage bag; I have nothing else to do for the 12 to 16 hours I am tied here.

Here comes that nice lady walking her dog. He sure is a lucky hound. I wish someone would take me for a walk.

Oh well, I guess I'll chew on the porch for a while again.

Is this your dog's message pet owners?

other authentic Acadian apparels. Have you ever seen Acadians in New Brunswick wearing the Assomption sash except the few occasions in the past where such a piece of garment was tolerated?

It is more appropriate to wear the so-called Evangeline and Gabriel costumes during Acadian Festivals and other public gatherings. One might say such a tribute to the Puritans should not be neglected - since the Puritans were so closely allied with the Acadians. The costumes were originated in Cajun Country by non-Acadians.

Why not wear it? There is such a great deal of sentiment attached to it, like all other symbols in today's Acadian social life.

Voice Wrong For Radio, Pen Is Key To Success

"Petite Biographie" by Walter Aubie, an integrant Canadian freelance radio producer writer, documentalist and playwright associated with Radio-Canada for a dozen years. His most recent work "Maigre Hippolte Legere", a one-hour radio play is logged on the French FM network for spring broadcast. Mr Aubie is originally from South Bathurst.

Radio has been a part of my life as long as memory. My earliest recollection is of rocking in my mother's lap while we listened to "Les belles histoires des pays d'en haut" which came through Radio Canada by way of CHNC New Carlisle.

Even now when I hear that passage from Glazunov's Winter, I tend to expect the voice over announcement and the static which was as much a part of my early radio listening as our Brunswick floor model.

Of grade school, I remember rushing home lunch hours to catch a list of my favorite programmes from CFCY Charlottetown, the other end of the world to me then and the week-end had two major events, the Saturday afternoon hit parade from CKNB Campbellton and Sunday morning mass in that order of vitality.

Queen Elizabeth II's coronation in 1953 was shaded by a news item of much more rousing importance, my town was to have its very own radio station and I was not about to let anything mar the excitement generated by this local event.

Two miles from my home I walked to watch the building of what was to become like a temple for me. I sat across the street and exulted with the awe that only a boy of twelvish can enjoy from having a favorite dream come true. From the first shovel of excavation to the arrival of personnel.

Finally, after a long, excited, impatient wait, I heard "This is CNBC, Bathurst, New Brunswick."

I was there and what a thrill it was crouched on the front steps of the shining white building on Golf Road, smiling and greeting everyone who passed me by — the secretaries and librarian, the writers, the office boy, the messengers and the announcers.

I suppose I was a treasure hunter but eventually my vigil was rewarded with a "come in out of the rain" type invitation from Roy Bourque, the station manager who introduced me to radio and how it all worked. Rows and rows and piles and boxes of records and tons of paper. Speakers and mikes, types and transcriptions, studios and logs and the voices that I had been listening to religiously.

Like a prayer answered, this was known. At the end of a pedestrian causeway maybe a quarter-mile long crossing the Nepisiguit River basin at the Baie des Chaleurs I can conjure such vivid and beautiful memories of those sunny eventful days.

My radio involvement began by standing as still as a pillar and being as quiet as a cloud in sanctity of a radio studio while the announcers produced their own shows, spun their own records and switched their own mikes.

As the veneration thinned, I was permitted to say a shaky 'hello' into an enormous microphone and even to announce a record, which was my training for sharing a programme, sitting in a a sick day and finally having a show of my own. There were no unions around and I was a full fledged radio disc jockey when I entered high school.

It was inevitable that I aim at more luscious pastures but in the late fifties when I headed for Montreal, it was not especially with an intention nor a desire of making radio my life's work. I had no doubt that this was already fact since my adoration had created a very strong conviction. I no more thought of disconnecting from the waves of radio than from the very waves of breath.

I charged into the CBC on Dorchester Boulevard full of vinegar to be told that I had a noticeable and unacceptable accent, there was no possibility of my ever becoming an announcer. Consequently I directed my drive to Radio Canada doing research and documentation. I became entangled in various aspects of the performing arts: studying, acting, directing stage productions, writing and teaching. Generally, gathering knowledge in all means of theatrical production.

My foundation was a dozen years in the forming and I became a radio producer in 1967 and eventually, assistant to the director of the first French Radio Broadcasting on the Canadian Pacific Coast.

I have always written, but it was not until a couple of years ago that a friend began encouraging me to present some of my work for production. On his insistance, I elaborated some of the themes I had been loosely exploring and submitted my scripts to radio. They were accepted and I wrote more and they were accepted.

For the past year I have been writing seriously even though I have been earning my living from my writing since 1964. I have never considered myself to be a writer, its the difference between hack-writing and writing.

I am fully plunged into paper and pencil and typewriter and things are beginning to happen all 'round me. Like a blizzard, plays and articles and short stories are emerging from every crevice of my imagination.

I am tapping a resource of which I was never aware and with a lot of work I'm exploiting to the fullest this rewarding and exciting experience.

New Proposals On Gun Control

Bill Jones of Ottawa, President of FARO (Firearms and Responsible Ownership) says that shortly, a number of major firearms-related organizations across Canada, under the auspices of FARO, will present to the federal government, sweeping new proposals on 'gun control'.

In the opinion of these organizations, ten years of various legislative proposals would have been ineffective in dealing with the criminal and-or irresponsible mis-use of firearms, and have only succeeded in creating a polarization of feeling.

Mr. Jones says the program being submitted by these organizations is unique and practical, and promises to alleviate the concerns of the public, government and gun owners alike. It is based upon a qualification for the subsequent issuance of a Firearms Identification card (FID) without which, no firearms transaction may legally take place.

This program, however, differs radically from all past proposals, in that it is not based on the false premise that legitimate firearms ownership is a social threat in itself.

The program consists of a system of graded competency requirements based on safe handling, knowledge of firearms laws, safe storage, transportation and use. Coupled with this, would be an initial check by the authorities for a past history of violent crime and proven mental instability.

Differing from Bill C-83 of the last House of Commons session, and unique in the program, says Jones, will be the firm requirement for legal safeguards of the rights, interests and traditions of gun owners in Canada. The system is specifically designed to prevent bureaucratic abuses prevalent under todays gun laws.

Implicit in this program, is a rejection of the prevailing tendency on the part of governments to categorically prohibit from lawful ownership, certain firearms deemed 'undesirable'.

These prohibitions are generally based on the unsupportable premise, 'it looks bad', or, 'crimimals use them', hence it is 'in the public interest' to prohibit them.

Such an attitude ignores the obvious, that firearms available to, or in the hands of lawful and responsible persons, are a threat to no one. It also disregards the fundamental fact that the only purpose for, and goal of firearms legislation, must be to curtail criminal and irresponsible misuse of firearms.

Mr. Jones says that properly implemented, this program did express disappointment with the federal government's decision regarding cost sharing with municipalities who employ the RCMP to provide local police services. Such municipalities employing more than five RCMP officers will be required to pay 77 per cent of their cost, rising to 81 per cent. "For this reason I am afraid the RCMP may become too costly an alternative for some municipalities to choose," he said.

Réunion Régulière Des Dames d'Acadie

Mercredi, 15 mars dernier, avait lieu au Colonial House chez Danny's, le souper mensuel des Dames d'Acadie de Bathurst.

La présidente, Cécile Duguay, a souhaité la bienvenue aux personnes présentes et Armelle Brideau a ensuite lu le procès-verbal. Des compte-rendu des différentes activities qui se sont déroulées depuis janvier ont été donnés par quelques membres.

Ce mois-ci, la conférencière, présentée par Bernadette Fongémie, était Sr. Lorraine Cormier. Cette dernière s'occupe activement des cours P.R.H. (personnalité et rélations humaines) donnés à Bathurst.

On les appelle souvent les sessions Rochais du nom de leur auteur, le Père Rochais, Prêtre de France. Solidité d'être, maturité affective, solidité spirituelle son tour à tour étudiées et approfondies lors de ces rencontres.

C'est une pédagogie qui permet de se découvrir, se connaître et mieux vivre.

Lucienne Ouellette a remercié Sr. Cormier pour sa conférence qui a été bien appréciée par le groupe.

Le prix de présence donné par Elva Arseneau a été gagné par Bernadette Fongemie.

ANN LANDERS

TV Box Conducive To Sad Addiction

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We speak and read about all sorts of addictions in this day and age, but why isn't more said and written about the biggest addiction of all – television?

No effort is made to try to solve the ordinary problems that occur in every household because "the box" does all the talking. If an effort IS made, the problem must be resolved in 30 minutes, because "Laverne and Shirley" is coming on. It's like going to the show every night of your life, only you don't have to leave the house.

Many adults seek instant gratification. Like self-indulgent children, they sit in front of the boob tube escaping the here-and-now – like the alcoholic or drug addict, only THEIR addiction is TV!

How many marriages are on the skids because either husband or wife must stay up to catch the late, late show, and then falls into bed too exhausted to give a spouse the attention she (or he) needs?

How many families spend the entire evening together in one room, yet each is alone to himself? In how many homes is the TV used as a baby sitter? How many families watch television during the dinner hour, when the events of the day should be discussed? How many children retire to their bedrooms to look at a TV that has been put there so there will be no conflict between the programs they want to watch and the ones their parents perfer?

The most common excuse for so much TV is "there isn't anything else to do." What a sad commentary that life is so empty that the most constructive thing we can do is vegetate in front of a box!

How much has TV helped to create a society of people who care for nothing except their own self-indulgence? How can the ordinary problems which beset the average family even begin to be solved if we aren't willing to pry ourselves loose from the TV and give ourselves a chance to start thinking of solutions?

Like alcohol and drugs, TV can be enormously destructive to personal relationships. Look at our society. Look at our crime rate – the beatings, robberies and killings, sometimes for only a few pennies! You do not need to be a psychiatrist to know that TV has played an important role in the increase of violent crimes in our country.

Many people will disagree with what I have written and point out that TV is a wonderfull tool for education and does a superb job of reporting the news, and they have a point. But the overwhelming percentage of TV hours are devoted to trivia and just plain garbage which includes smut, violence and offensive commercials.

I am an ordinary, Average housewife, a mother and a grandmother. I have discussed this problem with relatives and friends. My family is not the only one that is suffering. It's very difficult to use the TV wisely when the man of the house is the biggest offender. How can you get your children away from the set when their father can find nothing better to do? It seems as if I have no control over my own environment because TV comes before everything.

I implore those who share my problem to offer a solution. – Mrs. U.S.A.

DEAR MRS: Thank you for a provocative letter. I'll print the best response.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious – lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Lander's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Has Eventful Trip To Florida

Mrs. Thaddeus Young and daughter Beverly Ann of Belmont, Mass., during a recent vacation in Florida, entertained at a wedding anniversary party in honor of a popular couple from Stonehaven, Cecil and Addie Daley.

The buffet supper was prepared by Mrs. Young and her daughter. The function was held at the beautiful resort motel apartment, Buccaneers, Treasure Island, where they were spending their holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Daley were presented with a gift and cards on behalf of those present. Sporting beautiful tans from the Florida sunshine, both expressed their pleasure and appreciation on the occasion.

While dining at the Hilton Hotel in St. Petersburg, Florida, on a particular occasion, Mrs. Young and daughter had the pleasure of meeting several of the Lawrence Welk troupe who were accommodated at the establishment.

Mrs. Young particularly mentioned meeting Joe Feeney in person, her "favorite Irish tenor" and received his autograph. She noted that the group were all wonderful and very friendly.

Before returning home, the Youngs stopped over and spent a day at Disneyworld, Orlando, and also at Plains, Georgia, to visit the home of President Jimmy Carter, as well as Billy Carter's Service Station, also in Plains.

Mrs. Young, the former Sally Young who is an annual summer visitor to her native Clifton, writes that Plains is a very small place with only a few stores, but notes that there are very beautiful country farms.

Summing it all up however, Mrs. Young still feels there is not a better place to spend a vacation and live in summer time than along the Bay of Chaleur, Clifton, and Bathurst which has excellent shopping facilities, compared with many places they have visited.

Will Car-Buyers See The Light?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

"Canadians are buying big cars as if they were going out of style", says Bill Picket. "And they are."

William S. Pickett is the blunt-talking president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., Brampton.

Of the four Canadian-based car manufacturers, American is the one that has long been the most committed to trim, fuel-efficient cars.

As a result, it has had to buck what Pickett believes is a long-standing preference of Canadians - especially in the West - for big gas-guzzlers.

Now, however, the era of the trim, economical car is just around the corner, he argues.

"We have one more model year and then the big car, that the public has come to love, will be a thing of the past," says Pickett.

"The North American manufacturer are irreversibly committed to building small cars, largely because of government miles-per-gallon requirements, he told a meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade.

Under U.S. law - which will probably be applicable in Canada, he believes - gasoline consumption for all cars sold by a single manufacturer must average at least 18 miles per imperial gallon in 1978.

That average must increase annually until it reaches 33 m.p.g. in 1985.

OUT OF GAS

"This is a sensible transition that has to be made simply because we are going to run out of petroleum, and there's no sense in hastening that day," Pickett contends.

But that doesn't mean that the public "is going to be driving around in little square boxes with sewing-machine engines," he adds.

The "down-sized" cars of the future will be comfortable and accommodating, "or we will end up with fields of small cars," predicts the American Motors president.

"I think you are going to see beautiful cars. . . I don't think the customer is going to be asked to sacrifice anything in the area of performance."

Pickett doesn't hold out any hope that smaller cars will be cheaper. One reason is that car makers are having to invest heavily in the development of this new generation of cars.

And another factor is that as new models become more compact, they become more stylish and sophisticated.

One of General Motors' first moves in the direction of downsizing was the introduction of the luxury Cadillac Seville, a car with such strong eye-appeal that it sells well although priced higher than larger Cadillac models.

And Ford of Canada will

LOVE STORY

The public's renewed love affair with the full-size cars - after a brief infatuation with smaller cars three years ago - has caught all North American manufacturers off-base, believes American Motors' Pickett.

"We find idle capacity in the small-car area," he notes.

"Plants are down, not just at American Motors, but General Motors, Ford and Chrysler."

But that, conceivably, could be just a shadow of a coming disaster.

The whole North American automotive industry could be shut down, Pickett says, because it hasn't yet found a way to comply with the U.S. government's "clean-air" (emission-control) requirements for 1978 cars.

For the current model year, the American Motors chief predicts that Canadians will buy one million cars and 350,000 trucks.

And almost four out of every five of these cars has a big V-8 engine.

Fascinating Blend Of Reality, Mysticism

By RICHARD L. GORDON

The Invention Of The World, by Jack Hodgins (Macmillan; 354 pages; $10.95) is an impressive and, to put it mildly, unusual novel. It is peopled by a large cast of characters who, though some are more real than others, are all originals involved in a variety of original and often curious activities.

It is not an easy novel to review and I would do it an injustice by even attempting to condense its theme into a paragraph or two.

The plot, if that is not too mundane a word to describe the events in which these West Coast islanders are involved, is a curious and frequently fascinating blend of stark reality and Irish mysticism.

Becker, a ferry boat crewman, is "the caretaker-god who sits deep into night, every night, in his nest of deliberate clutter. He touches, he listens, he reads, he worries. He will absorb all this chaos, he will confront it and absorb it, and eventually he will begin to tell, and by telling release it, make it finally his own."

In the end Becker does perhaps make it "finally his own" but the reader may not quite succeed in doing so. This may be more a reflection on the reader than the writer.

Mr. Hodgins has crowded this, his first novel with so many good things that a swift first reading does not do it justice. It deserves a liesurely reading and a second one.

KEEN OBSERVER

Jack Hodgins will, I think, become an important novelist -- and not just an important Canadian novelist. He is obviously a keen and perceptive observer and he writes with verve and understanding about what he sees and hears.

There is, too, an unforced but persuasive philosophy enriching the narrative.

A young man asks an old one why, having travelled wo widely, "did you stop here?"

"You stop when it hits you that you've forgotten what you were looking for." There was more warmth in the sun than he expected, or hoped, and Julius Champney decided to risk a confidence. "It may surprise you that I loathe the ocean. And that I have little use for the type of people who move on to islands like this. Whatever their original reason might be, they end up the same. This is a place where people have two goals to take life slow when it means helping out the other fellow, and to take it fast when it means grabbing a piece of the pie Island people think they can make their own rules."

Even the island itself was that way, he thought: defying geometry Straight lines looked ridiculous here.

HAUNTING QUALITY

The Invention Of The World is not a novel that, having finished reading it, is easy to put aside and forget. It asks as many questions as it answers, and some of the questions set us pondering.

"Would he sound like a different person every day like me? Would he start to wonder who her was?" The novel is full of people who are wondering who they are and, at times, it makes us wonder a bit about ourselves.

"A woman like Maggie was wasting her life, looking. She ought to be satisfied with what she had; already she had more than most people were ever given: beauty, intelligence, a place to live, people who cared. She ought to relax enough to enjoy her special state in a world of people who lacked most of those things. But she had her ridiculous plans, she insisted on rising, she insisted on seeing, as if she believed, still, that there was somewhere, ultimately, to go, something to see that would make real sense of it all. You'd think she was that girl in the fairy tale, that mermaid, dreaming of legs."

It is a strange novel and one -- though the adjective has been over-used -- with a genuine haunting quality. It deserves a wide success.

Mr. Gordon's latest novel, The Lady Who Loved New York, is to be published shortly by Fitzhenry and Whiteside Ltd.

Amateur Poetry To Be Featured

The need for a publication devoted to the works of budding Canadian poets has prompted the initiation of plans for the introduction of "The Poet's Corner" to magazine and book stores across the country.

The brainchild of Susan Ketkin and Arthur Lewitin of Ottawa, the publication, now in the planning stage, will be devoted to amateur Canadian poets.

As the company is not a large one, the magazine is not expected to be financially successful for some time and the firm is not able to purchase poems. They are therefore asking that poems be submitted free of charge.

It is hoped that remuneration will be in the form of the satisfaction of having the works printed in a national magazine. As an added bonus, poets from each issue will be offered a feature section in one of the following issues, chosen each time by random draw. It is expected that in the future, the publication will become financially successful.

The company's mailing address is The Poet's Corner, Box 4369, Ottawa, Ont.

Company Loan Is Guaranteed

Minister of Commerce and Development Gerald Merrithew has been given authorization to guarantee a $200,000 loan to Bay Chaleur Packers Ltd. of Lower Caraquet.

The authorization was contained in the provincial secretariat's Order-In-Council dated March 9 and made public last week. The agreement calls for the company to provide security for the guarantee in the form of a first mortgage over its land, buildings and equipment.

Before the guarantee is sealed the Provincial Bank of Canada shall loan the company $50,000 in additional long term funds. Both that loan and the government's guarantee are set to expire Feb. 28, 1987.

Canadian Brass In City Tonight

By Paul Hume of The Washington Post

Canadian Brass is not some new, burnished alloy you can polish up and use for flowers or candles. It is a smart five-some from the Hamilton, Ont., Philharmonica, who are now going around having fun playing two trumpets, trombone, horn and tuba.

What they play, a rare mixture of Bach, Purcell, Farnaby and 20th-century pieces, comes out brightly because it is launched by some mildly amusing comments, but more because the playing is unusually expert.

All five men have an agility that comes close to the phenomenal, and they work at achieving a wide dynamic range that fills their music with lights and shadows.

When Canadian Brass plays at Nepsiguit High School Auditorium, tonight, Wednesday, March 30, at 8:30 p.m., their gleaming instruments will shine in special spotlights with the house lights dimmed. If their more recent repertoire is lightweight, it has a froth that can charm. The way they bring off the Bach D Minor Toccata and Fugue is almost amazing. They are great fun.

Beausoleil-Broussard en spectacle

C'est le 31 mars à 20 h 30 que la Société Culturelle Régionale Nepisiguit présente ce nouveau groupe.

Beausoleil-Broussard a déjà un long vu produit par la compagnie Le Transmetteur et a enregistré un émission spéciale pour la chaine de télévision de Radio-Canada aux Maritimes en plus d'avoir participé à l'emission "Dimanchoisoir" dans le cadre des Beaux-Dimanches.

Ce groupe est formé d'Isabelle Roy, qui a donné une série d'émissions de radio et de télévision ainsi que plusieurs spectacles en Ontario et au Québec, ainsi que du violoneux Johnny Comeau de la Nouvelle Ecosse, du chansonnier Jacques Savoie et du musicien Claude Fournier, tous deux de Bathurst.

Un chansonnier franco-ontarien Francois Lemieux fera une partie du spectacle de 2 heures que présenteront ces artistes.

C'est un chansonnier rempli d'humour qui a représenté les franco-ontariens à la super-francofête à Quebec ainsi qu'au festival de la chanson de Granby.

Ce spectacle s'inscrit dans le cadre de la tournée nationale du groupe Beausoleil - Broussard, subventionnée par le Secrétariat d'Etat à Ottawa.

Les billets sont disponibles et vendus à l'entrée. Adultes $2.00, Etudiants $1.00.

Redefinition Of Power Suggested

Liberal MLA for Caraquet, Omil Dumon, speaking in the Legislature March 24 during the budget debate, said he feels only a redefined separation of powers between Ottawa and the provinces can keep Confederation from eventually disintegrating.

Mr. Dumon said it is still possible to maintain a degree of unity in Canada but only if there are serious attempts by the English and French speaking sectors to determine new terms for co-existence.

He also attacked Premier Richard Hatfield for his crusade in Quebec on behalf of Confederation when the premier has "done almost nothing to eliminate the tensions" between English and Acadian groups in New Brunswick.

The member said Mr. Hatfield has "no realistic policy" for increasing the number of francophones in the provincial civil service, and with the exception of a recently-announced immersion program, no policy for second language training.

If Mr. Hatfield wants to take steps to ensure a continued confederation, Mr. Doiron advised, the premier should express his position on the possible renegotiation of powers between the federal and provincial governments.

Tax Issue

Sympathy Offered, Support Withheld

A letter from a Youghal Beach cottage owner residing in Montreal on the subject of revised property assessment brought mixed reactions Monday at the first April meeting of City Council.

Addressed to the Regional Assessment Office in Bathurst with a copy going to Mayor John Duffy, the letter, signed by R. Jack Shirley, pointed out that taxes have virtually doubled over 1976 with no valid reason. A native of Bathurst, Mr. Shirley is a paper company executive. He and his family regularly spend the summers here. He is the son of Mrs. E. R. Shirley, 745 Murray Ave.

"I assume we do receive some services from the provincial government that are paid for these real estate taxes", said Mr. Shirley. "However, I am not aware of what these services are nor of any improvement in them that would dictate a doubling of their costs."

The letter stated that amalgamation of the beach area to the city has been of absolutely no benefit to cottage owners, but has cost them a substantial amount.

Mr. Shirley requested an explanation of the increased assessment.

Coun. Douglas Williamson felt Mr. Shirley had a valid point, and moved council's support of taxpayers, particularly the cottage owners, in their efforts to have property values looked at again. The motion was seconded by Coun. Henry Murphy of Ryan Ward.

Coun. Joe MacNeil, however, cautioned the council not to act hastily. "There has been no official recognition as yet of the recently-formed committee of cottage owners. They will approach us when they feel the time is right. We should direct Mr. Shirley to contact this group."

Coun. Terry Lenihan was in agreement, stating that assessment must rise to stay in line with true market value. "Assessment hasn't got up regularly; that is the problem. Maybe there should be different rates for different categories of property."

Voting in favor of the motion were the mover and seconder. Opposed were Couns. Lenihan, MacNeil Saulnier, Hodgins, Lavoie and MacLaggan.

Deputy Mayor Patrick McLaughlin chaired the meeting in the absence of Mayor John A. Duffy.

Hinton Withdraws, Will Back Duffy

Don Hinton, who previously announced his intention of contesting the May 9 municipal election as a candidate for mayor, issued the following statement today:

"Although many of the citizens of Bathurst may be disappointed in my decision not to offer for the mayoralty, I feel I have good reason for changing my mind.

"After careful thought and the fact that Mayor John Duffy was always considered a friend and cooperative mayor while I was a newsman at CKBC, I cannot help but endorse him and ask all my supporters to also vote for this man.

"Mayor Duffy served for three gruelling years and did his best to give the public what they wanted. To discontinue would be to break the chain of work already under progress.

"I strongly endorse Mayor John for a second term. I have asked him to look into the common citizens' problems and make sure they are heard by council."

Was Prominent In Many Areas Of Community Life

The death of Stafford G. Smith, 670 Riverside Drive, a prominent Bathurst businessman, descendant of a pioneering area family, and a former town alderman, occurred April 1 at Chaleur General Hospital after a short illness. He was 88.

Born at South Teteagouche, he was a son of the late Charles and Mary Jane (Smith) Smith. He was the last surviving member of his immediate family.

Mr. Smith was associated for nearly half a century with C. Smith and Sons Limited., a four-generation woodworking and building supplies firm established by his father in South Teteagouche. The business was later moved to Bathurst by sons Stafford and Chipman Smith. He had been retired for the past five years.

To the original sawmill and woodworking plant, Mr. Smith who was a familiar name and figure in lumber circles on the North Shore for many years, gradually added hardware, contracting, real estate and kindred enterprises. About 40 years ago, Hazen Smith joined his father in the company and later, two grandsons, Donald and Gary Smith became the fourth generation connected with the management of C. Smith and Sons Ltd.

A 50-year member of Fowler Loyal Orange Lodge, Mr. Smith recently received his 25-year pin as a member of Chapter 22, Order of the Eastern Star. He also belonged to Lodge St. John No. 27F and A.M.

Mr. Smith was a member and former elder of First United Church and served as an alderman for several terms in Bathurst prior to city amalgamation.

STAFFORD SMITH

Surviving are his wife, the former Elspeth Davidson; three children of a former marriage, Hazen of Bathurst, Mrs. J.M. Butler (Marjorie) of Leaside, Ont.,and Willard of New Minas, N.S.; ten grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mr. Smith rested at Elhatton's Funeral Home.

Rev. R. A. Francis, assisted by Dr. E.R. Woodside, officiated at the funeral and committal services held at First United Church Monday at 2:30 p.m.

Hymns sung by the choir were Unto The Hills and How Great Thou Art, favorites of the deceased. The organist was J.A. MacDonald.

The pallbearers were Chesley Harris, Norman Scott, Edward Crowther, Carl Hocquard, Harper Smith and Lyman Smith.

Entombment was in the Protestant receiving vault, St. Anne Street, to await burial in Highland View Cemetery, Bridge Street later this spring.

Those attending from a distance including Mrs. J. M. Butler and son, John Butler Jr., Leaside Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Smith, New Minas, N.S.

City To Tackle Flood Problem

A flooding problem on King Avenue which occurs during spring runnoff and heavy rain storms will be looked into by the city to see if the situation can be remedied.

A memo read at the Monday night council session described the problem being encountered by Gerald Carroll of 990 King Ave. because of the drainage off the street onto a private vacant lot adjacent to his residence.

The memo noted that city crews had been called in on two separate occasions to pump out Mr. Carroll's basement, and flooding had occured a third time but the city had not been contacted.

It was also stated Mr. Carroll had a sump pump in his basement but it is not of sufficient capacity to take care of flooding during heavy surface runoff.

Asked if a concrete pipe could be installed on the property to alleviate the situation, City Engineer Geoff Greenough indicated that application had been made to the provincial government for storm sewers all along King Avenue.

"As you know," Mr. Greenough told members of council, 'the drainage along the whole of King is bad, and we have given this project second priority over recapping in this year's request for funds. The province does recognize the need for work on this designated highway, but has given no answer as to whether the necessary funds are forthcoming."

Coun. Joe MacNeil, stating that drainage was a city problem and should be repaired, moved to have the administration attend to the matter.

The motion was unanimously approved.

In another report to council, Mr. Greenough indicated it will be mid-year before the actual power costs for pumps in the various lift stations can be determined.

Mr. Greenough noted the lift stations are heated electrically as this is considered the most efficient manner, but it is impossible to evaluate conclusively what the costs are due to the fact that expenses to date are for the start-up period.

Budget allowance for 1977 for heating is $34,550.

Bathurst Students Successful At Provincial Fair

Bathurst city schools were well represented at the Fifth Annual New Brunswick Science Fair held at the University of Moncton April 1 - 2. The fair attracted approximately seventy projects from throughout the Province with thirty of these coming from Bathurst.

Out of fourteen possible prizes, Bathurst students won eight.

Heather Imhoff, a grade ten student at BHS, picked up a trophy and a twenty-five Dollar certificate, for her project on "The Aerosol Controversy", in the category of Senior Environmental Sciences.

Aaron Gulliver, a grade 11 student at BHS, also received a trophy and a $25.00 certificate for his excellent project on the "Baseball Game". Based on probability and statistics, Mr. Gulliver's project was entered in the Senior Math-Physics division.

A joint effort by Chris Hills and Arie Muerman, both grade 12 students at BHS, resulted in the fabrication of a "Bomb-Calorimeter". Their project proved to be a worthy effort when they collected their trophy and certificate for the category of Senior Chemistry.

A project, created by Stephen Parker, a grade 11 BHS student, resulted in the fourth provincial win for BHS. His project, entitled "Rainy over World", was awarded first prize in the Senior Life Sciences Division, and again a trophy and certificate was presented.

Allan Hachey and Daniel Aube of South Bathurst School, won in "Junior Physics"; Danica Dupuis and Maria Bergin of Superior School, "Junior Life Sciences"; Arnulff Derbach of Superior, "Junior Environmental Science"; and June Dobson, also of Superior School, won in "Junior Engineering".

Other students who entered projects included: Jacky McLean and Trevor Henry, Kelly Walsh and Nancy Imhoff and Michael Cormier from Superior School; David Grebenc and Peter Assaff, from Sacred Heart School; Andrew Eddy and Peter Gagnon, Lorraine Poirier and Bonnie Lindsay, Peter White, Nicole Lejeune and Shirley Boucher, from J. G. Chalmers School; Steven Melanson, Nicholas Kovats, Todd Arseneau, Kevin McDermott, Mark Kenny, Steven Sherrard, Michael Lavigne, Kirk Branch, David Doucet and David Kerr, all from South Bathurst School; and Neil Blanchard, Paul McLean, Robert Melanson, Alvin Vienneau, Sandy Campbell, Lorey Miller, Louise Doucet, Denis Moerman, Sue Picot, and Mary MacDonald, Bathurst High School.

Most of the students were housed in the residences of the University while others stayed with relatives and friends. The students were transported to Moncton by school bus, teachers and parents.

Council To Recommend Respite For Citizens

A lack of foresight on the part of the city into the growing popularity of privately owned swimming pools has prompted Bathurst City Council to strongly recommend the granting of a zoning bylaw variance to a Parkwood Heights family.

By a vote of 7-1, councillors agreed that Andy and Claire Wilt of 906 Centennial St. had suffered hardship in their attempts to complete a swimming pool project, and should be granted a variance by the Planning Advisory Committee.

Appearing before council to discuss the matter was Mrs. Wilt, who outlined problems encountered to date in completing the pool.

She stated a building permit had been requested and granted in April of 1976 for a 16 x 18 foot pool, porch, fence and

Eastside Eyesore A Temporary One

According to Shediac Ward Councillor Robert Hodgins, a sidewalk which was recently erected on Baugh Walters Drive must have been "laid at midnight from the back of a truck and patched by someone wearing a big pair of boots."

Information on the sidewalk in question, requested at an earlier meeting, showed the total cost of the work to be $10,205.25. This was paid to two contractors, Kenny's Trucking Ltd and Ashley-Colter Limited, for the preparation of the base and asphalt respectively.

City Engineer Geoff Greenough told Coun. Hodgins that provisional acceptance of the project had been deferred until this spring in order to properly evaluate the quality of construction, and the holdback on the contract was sufficient to cover the cost of any necessary remedial work.

Mr. Greenough stated the city had not expected a "first-class" job because of the construction method and a problem being experienced with quality control in the asphalt. In any event, he added, the walk was only a temporary one constructed at minimal cost.

Council did not entertain a request from Campbellton that the May meeting of the Six Cities of New Brunswick Assn. be held in Bathurst.

MALL TO EXPAND

Plans for a major expansion at Bathurst Shopping Mall are well-advanced, The Northern Light learned today from a reliable source.

Lehndorff Property Management Ltd., of Toronto, the present Mall owners, recently acquired 242,136.0 sq. ft., of approximately 6 acres of adjoining property from Bathurst Builders and this will be utilized for construction and parking purposes.

The newly-acquired land was previously owned by the Religious Hospitalers of St. Joseph and part of it was the site of the former Foyer St. Camille.

The projected program is expected to be proceeded with in the near future, it is understood.

Negative Attitude Charged

Bathurst City Council will advise the local Chamber of Commerce that the city is proceeding with the appointment of replacements to fill existing vacancies on the Airport Commisson.

A letter signed by Chamber President John D. Hasen which charged "procrastination, confusion and indecisiveness" in relation to air service also requested the city's stand as to the priority of transportation.

"It has been over a month since all the recently-appointed directors either resigned or stopped functioning due to interference from the City Council and no solution seems to be in sight", Mr. Hazen's letter said.

Referring to the chamber's "negative representation', Coun. Jean Paul Lavoie wondered where the group was when other chambers made their presentations to the government on taxation recently.

Coun. Terry Lenihan remarked the local chamber had shown foresight in anticipating the assessment increase long before it came about. "The chamber should be informed that transportation is uppermost in council's mind and that we are doing everything in our power to keep the airport going".

Beresford School Officially Opened

Natural Resources Minister Roland Boudreau and Real Boudreau, chairman of District No. 4 School Board, used a metric measurement scale in place of the traditional ribbon Sunday in a ceremony which marked the official opening of the Carrefour Etudiant junior high school in Beresford.

Approximately 200 persons braved the inclement weather to attend the opening of the $2.7 million school. However, Education Minister Charles Gallagher, who was to have been principal speaker, and Amerido Doucet of the provincial department, were unable to be present and sent greetings and regrets. A message from Marcel Lessard, minister of regional economic expansion, was read.

Speaking on behalf of Mr. Gallagher, Mr. Boudreau said a school was somewhat like a car in that it is inoperable without people. He said the school needed pupils, teachers and parents to make it function with a purpose.

The Nigadoo-Chaleur representative thanked the school board and others for the background work that went into the project.

He said he hoped to see two more new schools open in the riding during his term of office.

The key to the new school was handed over in turn from Fernand Caron, representing A.C. Wallet and Sons Co Ltd., the contractor, to Jacques Roy, the architect, Roland Boudreau, Real Boudreau, District Superintendent of Schools R.A. Ouellette and finally to Francis Leger, principal of the school.

Other guests in attendance included Pierre Poulin, representing the federal department of regional economic expansion (DREE), Senator Michel Fournier of Pointe Verte, Jean-Pierre Boudreau, president of the student council; Msgr. Donat Robichaud, who gave the blessing, and Romeo Cormier, assistant superintendent.

Acting as chairman of the afternoon program, the school principal thanked all those who were involved in the construction project including the members of the education specifications committee who prepared a 50-page report at the outset. The first phase of construction began in the spring of 1974.

Mr. Ouellette made reference to the working document on a basic education program which was unveiled in the Legislature March 31. He said the school cannot fulfill its function without the support of family and community.

Real Boudreau, who has represented the Beresford area on the school board for the past ten years, said the school was realized through teamwork. He referred to the opening as one of his last official functions as he will not be reoffering in the upcoming May elections.

Service To Paper Co. Totals Over A Century

While Friday, March 31 was Murray J. Watson's last day of work at Consolidated-Bathurst after a long period of service, it was not just another routine retirement of an ordinary company employee. There was a little more significance to the occasion than that.

The event marked the completion of a combined father and son association with the local paper plant of over a century, if all the years, official and otherwise, were taken into consideration.

Mr. Watson, who celebrated his 65th birthday on March 22 of this year, was working in the woodroom as chipper operator when he retired. He had joined the company in November, 1935, holds his 15-year service plus his 25-year service watch, is an honorary member of the company's Quarter-Century Club and a member of Union Local 120.

Murray resides with his wife, Dorothy at 1461 King Ave., and they have a daughter, Mrs. Connie Doucet, a son Cyril and six grandchildren, all residing in the city. From a hardy background, he enjoys excellent health and has numerous friends who wish him many happy leisure years.

Prior to joining the company, Murray Watson worked for his father, the late "Billy" Watson in the upriver area from the age of 14. The latter was connected with the operation from its pioneer days early in the 1900s and served a continuous 45 years.

Billy Watson was a familiar figure in the area and will be vividly remembered by the few remaining men who worked with him on the "drive" or their descendants who learned second-hand about his exploits.

While reminiscing about his father's career with the company, Murray Watson resurrected an account of a mid-winter trip to the woodlands area almost 60 years ago. It was an excerpt from a diary kept by the late Ethelbert (Eck) McLean, the firm's chief executive at the time, who was to die suddenly and prematurely several years later.

The interesting narrative, due to its "colloquial" as well as historical content is reproduced in its entirety here.

CALIFORNIA LAKE

Saturday-Feb. 25-28. Gladys Bean McLean, A. E. McLean, Leonard Brennan and Billie Watson left in snowmobile for California Lake. Left Billie Watson's house at Springs 6:45 a.m. Weather very cold. Went via Carroll's. Passed portagers coming down about feeding ground. Arrived Theriaults 9:15. On to 40-Mile Brook, but lost about one hour's time having to follow heavily loaded teams as there was no chance to turn out. Arrived 40-Mile Brook at 11:45, lunched there but very very cold and froze radiator of car while eating. Left at 1.30 and on to protection of trees to thaw radiator out and arrived Red Pine Knoll at 1:45. Drained car and started into Lake at 2:30. Very heavy break in. Billie Watson and Leonard got to camp at 5:30 and Glad and myself arrived 5:45 before any fires had been built. It was bitterly cold all the way in and even while walking quickly it was very hard to get warmed up. After arriving camp built fires got camp warmed up and had supper about 7:30. Sat around for a while and bed at 10 p.m.

Sunday, Feb. 26-28. woke at 9 o'clock, bright and clear and very much milder. Sat around camp mostly all morning, got wood cut and Billy Watson built a sled for coming out to Knoll. Leonard and Billy fished a while and Glad and I walked around to the old camp about 12:30, coming back via Lake. In the afternoon just sat around fire and had dinner about four o'clock and then went to bed nine o'clock.

Monday, Feb. 27-28. Up at seven, had breakfast and packed things and Glad and Billie Watson started out for the Knoll at 11:05, all getting out to the Knoll in about three hours. Billie Watson built fire and we had lunch while Leonard fixed car and got telephone set up and we were able to get telephone connections through to town promptly. Left Red Pine Knoll at 3:45 and arrived Theriault's Camp at 5:25. On account portage teams coming up from town, we decided to wait there until all four teams were in. Waited there 2 hrs. 5 min. Then started for home at 7:30. Got to Billie Watson's house when snowmobile went off the road and it took us half an hour to put it back on again. Arrived home 10:15 after a very pleasant but cold trip. Snowmobile worked alright and should be alright for any ordinary woods roads.

PRESENTATIONS

the nominating committee.

A framed, 25-year service scroll was presented to Pius Theriault by Mr. Woodland, on behalf of the Maritime Division.

Jack Dawson presented a "Wise Owl Award" to Gerald McPhee, an employee who works underground with Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp. Ltd., Mining Division.

McPhee had avoided possible serious eye injuries while working on the 2,800-ft. level. He was breaking rock with a sledge hammer when a piece of broken rock flew up and hit the right lens of his safety glasses. Although the lens were shattered, the young man did not receive an injury.

The same evening, a Perkins Braille Writer was presented to the Institute by Hector Sonier, Grand Knight, on behalf of the Knights of Columbus, and Jack Dawson, on behalf of the Roger Erskine Memorial Fund.

District Administrator Mr. Boudreau reported a shoe repair shop had been opened in Bathurst. He said there is every reason to believe that this project will be successfully conducted by a CNIB client.

A young lady of Saint Simon, Gloucester County, will commence training in the near future towards the position of rehabilitation counsellor, under Canada manpower program. This is a two-year course which has every chance of success, the district administrator said.

In continuing his regular meeting reports, Mr. Boudreau said approval had been received from the N.B. Senior Rehabilitation Department to give an eight-week adjustment training course beginning May 1, for a young man from Robertville. A similar application is being made for a young Bathurst man who has a hearing disability, in addition to his visual handicap. Approval for this application is expected and every step is being taken to improve conditions for this young man.

Mr. Boudreau noted three blind persons began reading recorded books, using the talking book machine, since the first of the year. He said that at present, 20 persons in the county are enjoying this library service.

Continuing his report, Mr. Boudreau said he has applied to the Department of Youth for a grant to enable 27 blind people in the district, 18 of them from Gloucester County, to participate in a one-week camping experience at Elm Tree, about 17 miles north of Bathurst.

The district administrator said the facilities at the camp include a large recreational hall, swimming pool, and other conveniences.

If funds are available, a CNIB rehabilitation counsellor will outline a program and at least six volunteers will be recruited to help with this camp project. Miles Meagher suggested that volunteers would be available and his offer was gratefully accepted.

Chairman Eddy mentioned that financial campaigns to raise the necessary funds to pay for all the services given will be carried out during the coming fall months. His suggestion that Dr. Alexandre Savoie and Mrs. F. J. Hay be the campaign chairmen was unanimously approved.

A report of Dr. Savoie for a suggested school for the blind in Moncton for visually handicapped French-speaking persons was received at the meeting. The report was read by Evode Cormier.

Special guest, Guy Woodland, was the after-dinner speaker, who was introduced by Mr. Boudreau. Appreciation was expressed to Mr. Woodland by Mrs. Hay who included in her remarks both the district administrator in Bathurst and Chairman Eddy with whom, she said, "we are all privileged to serve."

Those present at the dinner and meeting included: G. Eddy, N.A. Higgins (acting secretary), Mrs. Jeannette Arseneau, Mrs. Geraldine Boudreau, Mrs. Isabel Dawson, Sister Edna DeGrace, Miss Gail Fellows, Miss Norma Hachey, Mrs. Denise Hachey, Mrs. F. J. Hay, Mrs. N.A. Higgins, Mrs. Archie Jamieson, Mrs. Isabel MacLaggan, Mrs. Harper Smith, Jacques Chamberland, Evode Cormier, Hugh Currie, Dolan LeBlanc, Jean-Paul Losier, Gerard MacPhee, Miles Meagher, Tom Riordon, Hector Sonier, Pius J. Theriault, Mayor John A. Duffy, and Malcolm Woodland from Annapolis Valley N.S., who had accompanied his son to Bathurst, as well as both A.A. Boudreau and Guy Woodland to the annual Restigouche County Advisory Board meeting held the previous night in Campbellton.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the group of ladies of Legion Auxiliary Branch No. 18, Royal Canadian Legion who catered and served the dinner. This was voiced by Glendon Eddy.

utility house. In June, after construction had begun, the Wilts were advised that the fence and utility house were contrary to the zoning bylaw, and would have to be corrected.

A variance on the setback of the fence facing Johnson Avenue and the accessory building was requested, but denied by the planning commission at a meeting Sept. 14, 1976. A second request for a variance was tabled until the Wilts could get easements from adjoining property owners eliminating setback requirements for the accessory buildings, which were then obtained.

Mrs. Wilt said a final decision by the Planning Advisory Committee had requested the following changes in construction before June 10, 1977 to avoid legal proceedings:

- decreasing the height of the fence on the rear and east property lines to six feet,
- constructing the accessory building so that it is not within three feet of the side or rear property line, and
- decreasing the height of the fence that parallels Johnson Avenue to 30 inches above the centre elevation of the street, or constructing the fence parallel to Johnson Avenue so that it is not within 25 feet of the street line.

Mrs. Wilt pointed out that the fence itself was necessary because the pool would not be eligible for insurance coverage without it. It would also be very hard to move as it is made of concrete.

"What we are asking", said Mrs. Wilt, "is permission to finish the capping on the fence which has been delayed by this mess. We have had good intentions from the very beginning, and I feel we've been the victims of a misunderstanding and unfair treatment. No one from the city interfered before a complaint was filed, and there was no inspection during construction.

"If the fence were made of wood, the changes would be a simple procedure, but concrete is a different matter altogether."

Upon learning from City Engineer Geoff Greenough that City Council did not have the power to grant variances, the session was briefly adjourned for a committee-of-the-whole discussion.

When the meeting reconvened, Coun. Terry Lenihan made a motion calling for a strong recommendation to the planning commission to allow the variances necessary to complete the pool project.

"It is clear that if there was some deviation from the bylaw, it was not intentional", he said. "A citizen shouldn't have to suffer because there was not a closer liaison between the contractor and the municiality.

"It may even be partly our fault in that we did not foresee the advent of the private pool, but the main concern here is safety. We really have no other choice."

Coun. Lenihan added the bylaw regulations should be pointed out clearly to prospective pool owners in the future.

Taken to a vote, Couns. Henry Murphy, Jean Paul Lavoie, Doug Williamson, Jim MacLaggan, Joe MacNeil, Robert Hodgins and Lenihan were in favor of the variances. Against was Coun. Val Saulnier who felt the bylaw itself should be changed if not satisfactory.

TIPS AND TAKES

Hilaire Brideau has confirmed he will be seeking a return to civic politics via the May 9 municipal election. He will file for Michaud Ward. This candidate has previously completed three terms on city council, was deputy mayor and served 20 years as a member of the police force. . . It took over 50 years to happen, but Gordon (Gampa) Gammon is elated to be among the favored few who get a perfect "29" hand in cribbage. Playing with Peter Samson at Bathurst Curling Club Mar. 19 and Allan Doucet looking on, Gampa was holding the three other 5s and the Jack of hearts when the 5 of hearts turned up. . . Jocelyn Auble, vice-president of the N.B. Student Youth Liberals, among the select group from these parts attending the recent Liberal Policy Convention in Toronto. A student at St. Thomas University, Fredericton, she's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Auble, 485 Rust Bank Court, and grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank X. Grant, 880 O'Neil Dr. . . Local artist George Dube staging an exhibition of his works at Bathurst Shopping Mall on Thurs., Fri. and Sat. of this week. . . Sign of the times - this one in a service station: "No smoking, if your life isn't worth anything, gasoline is.". . . These may be far-fetched reports, but where there's smoke there's fire and they're passed along for what they're worth and only time will tell for sure: Herb Breau leaving federal politics in order to seek the provincial leadership. Louis Robichaud stepping down from the Senate for the same reason and he will be succeeded by Norbert Theriault. . . One local newspaper editor grateful to two Good Samaritans named Sinclair Branch and Harper Vance who came to his rescue when he ran out of gas on Riverside Dr. in the middle of a Saturday afternoon. . . Bill Jamieson, Bathurst, winner of a $5,000. prize in the Mar. 23 Atlantic Lotto. In the same draw, $1000. went to each of the following from this area: Ralph Doucet, Gary Branch, Andre Landry, Conrad Duguay and Ginette Duguay, also of Bathurst; Baptiste Chiasson and Alyre Robichaud, both of Lameque; Florien Lagace, Green Point; Jeanne d'Arc Lebreton, Tracadie; Bev Messer, Charlo; and Mrs. Ida Savoie, Shippegan. . . Then there was the thrifty Bathurst resident who hied down to the liquor commission on March 31 hoping to save some money before the prices went up April 1. It was only after paying for several bottles of his favorite brand that he discovered he was ahead only 15 cents all-told. This wouldn't even pay for the gas to get him to and from the government store. . .

In well regulated communities there has always been a curfew law, ably enforced by parents.

EASY WAY OUT

A great many more opinions are formed from rumors than from the facts in the case.

Protest New Assessments

Close to 200 persons turned up at a protest meeting called in connection with high property assessments and held March 31 in the basement of Holy Rosary Church. The session lasted two and a half hours.

Organizers of the program were a group comprising Joe MacNail, Yvon Vinet, Roger DeGrace and Hubert Gagnon.

Mr. Vinet, who acted as chairman, first called upon Mr. MacNeil to introduce the panel and the invited guests, Elmer Cronk, director of assessment services for New Brunswick, and Alfred Losier, regional director of assessment for Gloucester County. Mr. MacNeil also briefed the audience on the purpose of the gathering.

In a brief presented in English, Mr. Degrace stated there was inequality of assessment as proven by a survey made in Bathurst, especially in comparison with rural areas. He suggested that assessments would be based on replacement value rather than market value in order to avoid speculation.

Mr. Gagnon, who is an excellent French orator, presented his brief in that language. He moved his audience to such an extent that it was only through masterful control of the situation exercised by the chairman that order was maintained in the auditorium.

One outcome of the meeting was adoption of a resolution requesting an immediate reduction of 50 percent on every tax assessment that had gone up over 70 percent, followed by an annual increase of 8 to 10 percent.

Mr. Cronk said that this could only be done on an individual basis and he accordingly invited those present to appeal their assessments in writing.

It was further stated by Mr. Cronk that one solution would be an annual assessment rather than an assessment every three years. He said this would result in a nominal increase conveniently processed through the combination of a computer, qualified people and relevant programs now available.

Approximately 100,000 properties out of 300,000 in the province are being inspected annually, it was noted by Mr. Cronk.

In connection with the nominal taxes paid by people in non-urban area, Mr. Cronk observed that the Provincial Government has been taking a close look at this. Some action in this regard, he intimated, could be expected during the current session of the Legislature.

In Real High Gear At The Coachman

Know of any groups in Bathurst who can turn an audience from soft-tone chatters into foot-stomping, handclapping and sing-a-long types before the first set is over?

Well, we know of a duo which goes by the name of Peter and Mary who did just that. They sent electric vibes to the audience in the Coachman Pub and Steakhouse all night.

Their versatility in all types of music is fascinating. Numerous requests were brought to them on stage and they never let the audience down.

Peter and Mary will continue appearing at the Coachman until April 16, from 8 to 10:30 p.m. daily, except Saturdays when they appear from 2-4:00 p.m.

RON VIENNEAU

New Business On Bridge St.

Outdoor Land Ltd., featuring recreational vehicles, has opened an office and showroom in the former Atlas premises at 1040 Bridge St. Service facilities are also available at the same location.

President and general manager of the business is Ron Vienneau who was previously associated with the trailer trade in Bathurst and Campbellton since 1971.

Educated at Assumption Academy, East Bathurst, the Brothers of the Sacred Heart Juniorate in Petit Rocher, Mr. Vienneau is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Aurele Vienneau, of Bathurst. He is married to the former Pierrette Arseneau and they have three children, Daniel, 9; Chantal, 6; and Michele, 1½.

Mr. Vienneau's fraternal affiliations include United Commercial Travellers (UCT) and the Richelieu Club.

In distinct British accents, they said, "audiences appreciate it if you have a go at a request, even if you haven't prepared for it."

By the time the night was over, it was obvious Peter Jansen and Mary Kingsley wouldn't be happy doing anything else for a living as they laughed and bounced through the whole show.

They are not new to the entertainment world. Hailing from towns near Bristol, England, they have been performing together for the past two years. Before teaming up, they entertained solo in clubs in Bermuda and England.

Attired in light blue similar satin shirts with short blue-grey vests trimmed with satin, Mary looked sharp in a flowing booth length skirt and Peter contrasted in pants of the same color.

Their rapport with the audience is something any band could be jealous of. They joked and conversed with members of the audience. Occasionally, they would change words in songs (such as the frolicking "Battle of New Orleans") to add to their comic performance.

They are also equipped with their own taped music for between sets. Mary says the most hotels who supply the in-between music can sometimes squash whatever mood the band has acquired during the set. So when they have the audience in a lively, jovial mood, they push a button and keep the tempo the same for their return.

They don't fool around either by opening at a slow pace. They kicked of the first number with a fast country version of "Let Me Be There."

One peculiar thing about them, is their voices. It is almost difficult to claim them to one style, as each song done has a distinct tone and sound.

They said they don't rely on requests to make their show but "enjoy playing what the people like to hear."

Being British has certain attractions as Mary explained a lot of people ask them to play an oldie, but goodie, Beatle number.

And they even do imitations. Peter can do a great one of Johnny Cash singing Folsom Prison Blues.

But languages is a specialty with this duo. Among their repertoire are German, French, Spanish, Russian, Italian and Hebrew. And they are as competent on instruments including guitars, banjo, mandolin and ukulele.

SENIOR KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HONORED BY COUNCIL

Among recent interesting functions held by Bathurst Council No. 1025 in their council chambers on Douglas Ave. was one in honor members of many years standing who are still relatively active within the fraternity. Following a mass concelebrated by Rev. J. E. Fournier and Rev. Cleo Hachey (former council chaplain), a supper was served during which appropriate remarks were made by Grand Knight Hector Sonier. Souvenirs at the occasion were presented by Deputy Grand Knight John Goyette, promoter of the program, to the honored guests pictured above. Left to right, seated: George Duval, Sr., J.A. (Jack) Kennah, Joseph MacDonald, Arthur Melanson, Rev. Cleo Hachey. Standing: Professor Raymond Pothier, Leo J. Melanson and Dr. J.L. Veniot. Unavoidably absent were J.A. (Fred) Audet and Eldon Melanson.

Scottish Tradition In Canada Explored

By ANNE MONTAGNES

In 1861 a Scottish divine touring eastern Canada heard some men singing Gaelic. Before letting them know he understood the song, he played a game with them.

"Is that a language?" he asked. "It's the only true language. English is no langidge at all, at all," they replied.

"It must be banished; it is savage", he teased.

"If's no you, or any other, will banish it," retorted the indignant Gaels.

None of the singers had ever been in Scotland. They were natives of Glengarry, Ont.

The intense loyalty to a distant homeland they exemplify, and the way Scots have been leaders in every aspect of Canadian life, is the thrust of The Scottish Tradition in Canada, edited by W. Stanford Reid (McClelland and Stewart Ltd. 198 pages; $12.95 cloth, $5.95 paper).

As D. C. Masters says in an essay on higher education: "Of all the ethnic groups who have come to Canada, the Scots were the quickest in acclimatizing themselves.

"Witness the long list of scottish politicians, clergymen, bankers, textile manufacturers, lawyers and others who made so considerable a contribution to Canadian development."

BLOOD-STIRRING

The Scottish Tradition is a collection of essays. Some, like the one that includes the story about the Glengarry Gaels, are informative, well-shaped and readable. They stir Scots blood.

When George S. Emmerson writes in that essay about Piob Mohr, the Great Bagpipe that the Highland Gaels cultivated to lead them into battle, a heart that is in any degree Highland will thrill to the memory of the skirl and feel again the old anger towards the domineering English who outlawed the pipes, and also caused the breaking up of the Highland crofts and the conscription of Highland requiments which contributed to the widespread Scottish settling of Canada.

Another good essay is that on the Scottish military tradition by George M. Stanley. Stanley has a subtle way of getting the pulse of Scots language into English print.

Elizabeth Waterston gets the same effect in her chapter about the Lowland tradition in our literature by dealing with other people's stories – the influence of Robert Louis Stevenson on Bliss Carman, for instance. Their humanity makes her chapter lively.

TOO MANY GOALS

Unfortunately most of the book is deadly dull. The editor, W. Stanford Reid, was faced with an impossible task.

The Scottish Tradition is one of a series of histories of Canadian ethnic groups commissioned by the federal government, and published (under the general title of Generations) in association with McClelland and Stewart.

Such an association is foredoomed. The government wants everything in one package: readability for you and me; scholarship to stimulate more scholars; and histories for high schools, colleges, universities and elementary teachers.

In trying to sit on all three chairs, The Scottish Tradition has landed on the floor.

A major short-coming is that there's no detailed index. If someone with a Scottish heritage were curious about the reference to the Glengarry Gaels and wanted to find out who they were, how they got here and what became of them – all subjects mentioned somewhere in the book – the only way he could satisfy his curiosity would be to read through.

PURPOSE CONFUSED

Unless he were intensely committed and unusually informed he would get bogged down in scholarly generalities about the fur trade, the West, the "auld alliance" with French and a history of Scotland before he learned on page 95 that Glengarry in the easternmost county of Ontario was settled by Scottish regiments and their families after they had seen out the American rebellion.

If someone like me who dreams of ancestral Hebrides begins to nod over lists of Highland and Lowland patronyms and places, what will the Portuguese and the Poles (who are now also in this series) make of the Scots?

The confusion of purpose that makes the book unreadable and inaccessible is a great pity. As Reid says:

"One of the principal reasons for the Canadian desire for national identity is the historical heritage of the Scottish peoples. The Scot almost since the day of the Roman invasions has had to fight to maintain his independence whether against Anglo-Saxons, Danes, Anglo-Normans, English or even French."

Tree Grant To Continue

Natural Resources Minister Roland C. Boudreau and George Horton (MLA-Kings East) have announced an extension of the grant to the town of Sussex to combat Dutch Elm disease.

The department of natural resources has contributed the sum of $10,000 to continue the control of the disease which has caused considerable damage to the town's elms, said the minister.

The program includes selective removal of affected trees, and the disease is being arrested said Mr. Horton.

Diversity Is Key To Confederation

Premier Hatfield said April 4 that Confederation is founded on the rights of many minorities and its survival at present depends on convincing Quebec that "the French fact can continue to develop and flourish within Canada."

Speaking to a Woodstock Rotary Club luncheon, the premier suggested that Canada is composed of many distinct regions and cultures and that their legitimate grievances have always been of national concern, because the enhancement of our distinctive parts is the promise of Confederation.

He said the vision of the founding fathers was that "each community would achieve maximum self-realization in the larger national community." But he warned that this vision of unity in diversity "requires constant attention and a level of tolerance, maturity and unselfishness rarely achieved by other countries in the world."

There have been other times in Canadian history when it appeared that confederation would dissolve said the premier, noting among other examples the secessionist governments elected in Nova Scotia in the 19 century.

Premier Hatfield told his audience that the separation of federal and provincial powers in 1867 gave the provinces authority to maintain their distinctive cultures.

He noted that each community in Canada is a minority, and that its survival is "bound up in the survival of all the others". Therefore Quebec separation would mean the end of Canada, he said.

"This nation is not a mere administrative unit, composed of unrelated sections which can be taken apart like a set of building blocks," said the premier. "The links which bind Quebec to the rest of Canada are not artificial but organic."

To preserve these links, we must fact the problems which presently strain them, he said. This requires a national commitment "to support the continued vitality of the French language and culture."

Premier Hatfield said he makes no apology for entering the debate over Quebec, "even though New Brunswick is not a perfect model of harmony and good will." The political and economic uncertainties caused by the separatist threat make it his right and duty to do so said the premier.

A Thorny Issue

There could be a change in the Canadian Unemployment Insurance regulations. If a bill, presently under consideration by the Government of Canada, is passed it will be required that a person work for twelve weeks rather than the present eight week period before qualifying for unemployment insurance payments.

We find M.P.s, from all parties, opposing the change in the qualifying time period. The Gloucester Member of Parliament, Mr. Herb Breau has voiced strong opposition to the change. He has intimated that he may even vote against it and has been lauded by the national news media for having the courage of his convictions.

Many citizens agree with the longer qualifying time. They are disturbed at the amount of money that is required to pay the UIC payments to those not working and they feel that this amount will be reduced if the proposed regulations, as far as time is concerned, come into force.

The cost of UIC payments, as far as money is concerned, is high. However, there is another cost which goes with unemployment. It is not measured in dollars and cents. It is measured in a great waste of human resources and the demoralization of so many Canadians.

Surely, no one should feel that we have solved the problems of unemployment simply by making it possible to receive UIC payments with the present eight week qualifying period. We say to keep the eight-week qualifying period, if it is necessary to do so to prevent hardships, but do not consider the problem to be solved. It only delays the solution – the solution is the opportunity to work.

Danger Signal?

The railways -what are they really up to?

Reports that some of our passenger trains might be cancelled are brushed off by CN as mere talk.

Officials have affirmed that applications to curtail some services are mere jockeying to get themselves into a position to demand more federal subsidies.

This routine is the procedure every five years as the Canadian Transportation Commission makes its decision as to how much government assistance is to go to the railways.

But the rumors that at least one of the major passenger trains running through Bathurst enroute from Montreal to Halifax may disappear must be taken seriously and an effort made to keep these services which we believe are essential.

We cannot take the statements of the railway at face value, for too often they have proved to be meaningless. Someone must be thinking about such a plan and should it be adopted one of the vital services in transporation will disappear.

There is strong need to maintain and improve passenger service on the North Sore. Air transportation has been and continues to be problematical and there have been other adverse eventualities in recent months. Collapse of the rail lines at Rimouski and later a fire at Matapedia bridge have given us a graphic idea of what it would be without adequate train service.

We would hope that CN can be persuaded to liveup to its pledge for more and better passenger services. Such services should not be only in the densely populated areas between Quebec and the western boundary of Ontario. We need them too.

Damage Continues

Like many towns and cities today, Bathurst is faced with a rash of unsolved vandalism. The latest strike by the hoodlums was made during the last week or so at Youghal Beach when a dozen cottages were messed up and damaged. Then, of course, the schools and other premises in the city are continuous targets.

Vandalism, it appears, will always be with us. There appears to be no easy solution. Very young people are often involved. In fact, a local school break last week is reported to have been by two preschoolers.

What is the cause of vandalism" What amusement does anyone get from destroying things? The answer perhaps lies in the type of society we are constructing by condoning violence and vandalism on television.

Young children will watch this type of "entertainment," see it as fun and decide on their own to practise the same thing. When they are caught, parents frequently fail to cooperate with the police which creates a further undesirable situation. Parents who have no respect for law and order will breed the same in their children.

Vandalism cannot be tolerated. Although the means to stamp it out may be expensive, steps must be taken. When the vandals are caught they must be given severe sentences. If they are children, the parents should be slapped with irresponsibility and suffer the consequences. Willful destruction of another's property is animalism in its basest form.

Melody Of Spring

Spring has come! According to the calendar winter is over and sprng is here. We know the snow may still fall and the cold winds may still blow. But spring has come and winter is over.

Warmer days are just ahead – days with high blue skies and puffy white clouds. The robins will be back and the wild geese will be honking their ways north. Seed catalogues will be more closely studied and orders will be sent. The excitement of the fishing season will fill many with joy as they anticipate the hoped for catches. House-cleaning will be brought to an abrupt end as the warm sunny out-of-doors beckons.

Ahead, just beyond spring lies summer and all that season brings. How did the poet put it? Something like this: "I have seen the leaves fall and lie thick upon the ground. The wintry blasts sang sad requiems o'er their decay. Yet spring came. Soft zephyrys played among the branches and they budded forth again. In the place of death there was life, beauty and joy."

Spring" And going on to the summer.

Takes Exception To Statement

Bathurst
April 4, 1977

I would like to comment on a rcent article (Northern Light, March 23) prepared by Mr. Stymiest, Regional Ranger, Bathurst. This article, accompanied by a photograph of two unborn moose calves, described the illegal and unnecessary hunting of the wild life in the area.

In the name of the Gloucester-Northumberland Chapter of the New Brunswick Association of Social Workers, I must express my concern in regards to the innuendo that it is generally persons receiving "welfare or other assistance provided by governments" who are responsible for the excessive hunting.

We feel that it is not accurate to lay the blame on these people, or on any group of people for that matter. We deplore these too numerous incidents, but why lay the blame on one particular group, and even narrow it down to people "of the back settlements"? We feel that they should not be the scapegoats.

Your article and others like this would be beneficial we feel, in a process of educating the public in matters of this nature; but it should be addressed to the public in general.

"Kid Gets Caught, Big Boys Escape"

Bathurst, N.B.,
March 21, 1977

While in Newcastle recently, I picked up a copy of the local paper The North Shore Leader. It contained a very thought-provoking article written by Ray LeBreton in his column which he calls "Lift the Lid".

I am forwarding the timely item with the expectation that you will consider reprinting it in our local newspaper, The Northern Light.:

74 charged in drug related offences: Police clamp down: People smile, some say "good show". But we must be realistic Just who did they catch? How many of the "big boys"? Just who were the poeple that were rounded up?

The use of marijuana is a very popular occurrence among our society today. I personally do not agree with its use, by our young people or by our adults, but unfortunately it is a widespread phenomenon.

Every parent believes that his or her children do not indulge in the drug culture, but unfortunately very many do. Many only try it to see and feel the effects. Others get hooked on it in the same way their parents get hooked on alcohol.

Many parents that I know sit in a club or tavern, or their homes, drinking alcoholic drugs and criticize the kids for taking drugs. The kids today are more aware; they see things in a proper perspective, "Don't preach to me Mom and Dad, show me." Are they wrong?

After all, our governments tell us that Alcohol is the number-one problem in society today. And they should know because they control it.

How do your children get caught? Let's use an example. I am an undercover agent. I move into the area for a few months and get to know the young people. I go to parties with them. I travel with them. I know what my job is. I wait.

One day I ask one of my friends where I can get a joint (one cigarette of Marijuana). I am accepted as a friend, one of the kids has a friend who has some, I give him the money (a few dollars) and he goes and buys it for me. Bang— I have him —her. He or she is charged.

LETTERS WELCOME

The Northern Light welcomes letters from readers. All letters must have the writer's name and address, although pen names will be used at the writer's request if use of the actual name could be damaging or embarrassing. We reserve the right to edit letters to brevity and good taste.

It is quite possible with trafficking in illegal drugs. There is a court appearance, a fine, a criminal record for life.

Now isn't that some kind of a criminal?

The above is how it is done by the authorities on certain occasions. This I do not agree with because the Big Boys get away. Oh, they may get an intermediate, a go-between, but they are replaceable. The people who are bringing it in, who are still in business, these people walk away laughing.

Another aspect of the drug culture which is never mentioned and which very little is done about is the Pill Addiction. Legal and illegal.

How many people do you know who exist on prescribed pills? There are great many.

How many people have died from overdoses of pills? Far more than by marijuana. Where do they get these pills? Are they given out indiscriminately by doctors? Have the RCMP ever checked to see who gets too many? It's very easy to check a druggist's records isn't it? How many pills can you get for a five or ten dollar prescription?

I have known some people who have bought pills by the dozens. I have known some people who have died from taking too many.

In order to check into this sort of thing they would have to hit a different class, the professions. I wonder if they ever will?

It is also common knowledge that certain drugs will be taken off the criminal list, they will be placed in the same category as alcohol. Our government will control the sale of them, because it is impossible to control the illegal use of them. It's a sad fact but it's so true.

As I have said earlier, it is the system itself which feeds on situations like this within our society. I agree that drugs are a bad scene. I agree that alcohol is a bad scene, but the methods of control and punishment I do not agree with.

A drug bust like this looks good for our Police, looks good for our concepts of right and wrong; but the tragedy is that young kids must carry a scar with them through their lives. They are caught within this drug culture. Usually it is an adult who promotes it, and in the end the local kids suffer for it.

I have no easy answers to the problems. It is hard on the enforcement officers, the courts, the parents and of course most important the kids who are caught in between.

If our local councils are concerned about it, then there should be public forums, with a panel of young people, police, and parents.

The problems are here among us. We must not turn our backs to them, because they will just not go away. We must face them and come to grips with them. But let's do it fairly.

Commercial Traveller.

Urges Cleanup Of Beach Areas

Bathurst, N.B.
April 4, 1977

With your permission, I would like to add to last week's letter to the editor regarding beer bottle littering.

Some time ago I was told by a tourist that we have some of the most beautiful beaches anywhere - if only they were cleaned. It is not safe to walk bare feet to enjoy the sand for fear of cutting one self on broken bottles, caps or beer cans.

This situation could be easily remedied if everyone would cooperate, but I do not think it works that way.

However, if some of our local service clubs or other organizations would start such a campaign, it should help. In this connection, pamphlets could be printed to encourage our population to be proud of their natural beauties.

In addition municipal and provincial authorities might budget a certain amount of money each year to clean up and make the beaches safe. The amount would be very little and everybody would be happy.

Florida Holiday Mutually Enjoyed

Boca Raton, Fla.
April 3, 1977

We were delighted to have as recent visitors two of Bathurst's most charming ladies, Mrs. James Hurley of Rough Waters Road, and her granddaughter, Gertrude Riordon, who is presently teaching school in Toronto and was on her mid-term teachers' break.

They said that their arrival in Fort Lauderdale was like opening a door on another world. They had left Canada when there was still ice and snow and their plane had landed down in a land of sunshine and flowers. They were thrilled by the scenery, the trees and blooming plants, the shops with their display of domestic and imported goods, the restaurants that boast that their cuisine can satisfy the appetite of any gourmet. But mostly, they enjoyed the beach where one can soak up that tropical sunshine.

Mrs. Hurley is in her ninety-first year and when most people her age are in convalescent homes being waited on, she is on her own and can run circles around most of us half her age. She is charming and witty and full of the zest of life. This can only be attributed to her many years of living in Pokeshaw where one must be healthy to survive the long cold winters, the hardships and the hard work.

When these ladies were asked if they would like to live in Florida they were hesitant. But they both readily agreed it was an ideal place to come for a break. Florida has all it takes to enjoy a lively vacation. Good food, shops, race tracks and lavish entertainment where big name stars come to entertain people from all walks of life. There is no pollution, no factory smells, just the Miami moon and fun, fun, fun.

These ladies were a special treat from across the border, their enthusiam and their gratefulness was very refreshing and we hope to see them when the snow flies again.

First Session Of New Board

The new Board of Governors of l'Université de Moncton held its first meeting Saturday, April 2, on the Moncton campus. Dr. Jean Cadieux, president, chaired the session which had been prepared by the Implementation Committee set up according to the agreement signed December 17, 1975, by the authorities of the Moncton, Edmundston and Shippegan campuses.

Marcel Sormany, president of College Saint-Louis-Maillet in Edmundston and Sister Irene Leger, president of Collége Jésus-Marie in Shippegan, formed the Implementation Committee with Dr. Cadieux.

At the April 2 meeting, the Board elected 6 members to bring its total membership to 24 as specified by the December 17, 1975 agreement. Representatives of the three major francophone regions are: for Southeastern New Brunswick, Arthur J. LeBlanc of Moncton, general manager of United Maritime Fishermen Limited; for Northwestern New Brunswick, Jean-Eudes Senechal of Grand Falls, manufacturer of potato bags with the family business Emile Sénechal et Fils Limitée; for Northeastern New Brunswick, Docithée Mallet of Shippegan who is president of the Advisory Council of College Jesus-Marie. Victor Raiche of Petit Rocher, is a N.B. Government appointee to the board.

Three members from outside New Brunswick were also named; they are Sister Anne-Marie Savoie of Montreal, assistant superior of Les Religieuses Hospitalières de Saint-Joseph and director of College Maillet in Saint-Basile from 1966 to 1972; Nazaire Arsenault of Summerside, PEI, a chartered accountant for H. R. Doane and Company; and Lionel Deveau of Cheticamp, Nova Scotia, a teaching counsellor for the Inverness County School Board.

Members discussed briefly the question of the university name and it was agreed that the matter be studied at another meeting.

The student representative of the Moncton campus, Egbert McGraw, gave members a copy of the brief prepared by La Federation des Etudiants de l'Université de Moncton concerning the language situation on the Moncton campus. He suggested that the Board study the matter soon.

The governors set the date of the next meeting for April 30.

J.C. Gilker Dies Out West

Word has been received of the death Feb. 25 at Roberts Creek, British Columbia of a former area, man, James Clifford Gilker, in his 73rd year.

He was a son of the late Cleveland Gilker, a police chief in the Town of Bathurst in its early years, and late wife, the former Estella Peters of Canobie.

Mr. Gilker lived at Janeville, Gloucester County for a number of years before he went West in 1925 with the harvest trains, later moving to Prince Rupert, B.C.

He worked for many years for Bauth Fisheries and British Columbia Packers. During World War Two, he was in charge of supplying fish to both Canadian and American Armed forces. In this role, he was stationed much of the time in Alaska.

When not in Alaska during the war, Mr. Gilker was located at Prince Rupert which was, at that time, a large staging base for American soldiers and he was most active in the Prince Rupert Air Raid Patrol.

When the family first moved to Roberts Creek, they had a farm and a plant nursery and for some years operated Gilkers' Flower and Garden Shop in nearby Sechelt.

Mr. Gilker was active in community recreation programs and was one of the original founders and the first president of the New Horizons group in that area. He had lived at Roberts Creek since the early 60s.

He was a member of Bethel Baptist Church of Sechelt.

Surviving are his wife, the former Aletta McKinley of Prince Rupert; one son, Richard Gilker, also of Prince Rupert and a daughter, Mrs. Peter Fromager (Diane) of Roberts Creek.

Three sisters, Mrs. James McNulty (Edna) of Long Beach, Calif., Mrs. John Cotton (Margo) of New Westminster, B.C. and Mrs. John Candal (June) of Kaslo, B.C.; one brother, Robert Gilker, also of Kaslo; and eight grandchildren also survive.

Following cremation, a memorial service was held at Bethel Baptist Church, Sechelt, Mar. 1 at 2 p.m. with Pastor Fred Napora officiating.

Budget Surplus For Shippegan

Shippegan Town Council learned of a modest surplus of funds left over from its 1976 budget when audited statements were presented to the April 4 meeting.

A surplus of $1,488 in the general fund was noted, along with a healthy surplus in excess of $7,600 in the water and sewage utility. This was a considerable improvement over 1975 when the utility lost about $8,000.

Audited by H. R. Doane and Company, the overall budget for Shippegan in 1976 was slightly over $405,200.

Also at Monday night's meeting, the town agreed to hire an additional constable for its police force. Jean Marc Noel of Shippegan will graduate in the near future from the Charlottetown Atlantic Police Academy and will take up duties April 15.

Twelve applications for the job were received.

My Little Black Dog

By Elizabeth Gardner Reynolds

I wonder if Our Lord had a little black dog,
All curly and woolly like mine,
With two long silky ears and a nose round and wet,
And two eyes, brown and tender that shine.
I am sure if He had, that that little black dog,
Knew, right from the first, He was God;
That he needed no proof that
Christ was divine,
And just worshipped the ground
when He trod.
I'm afraid that He hadn't,
because I have read,
That He prayed in the garden
alone;
For all his friends and disciples had fled,
Even Peter, the one called a stone.
And oh! I am sure that the little black dog,
With a heart so tender and warm,
Would never have left Him to suffer alone,
But creep right under His arm,
Would have licked the dear
fingers in agony clasped,
And counted all favors but loss,
When they took Him away,
would have trotted behind,
And followed Him quietly to the cross.

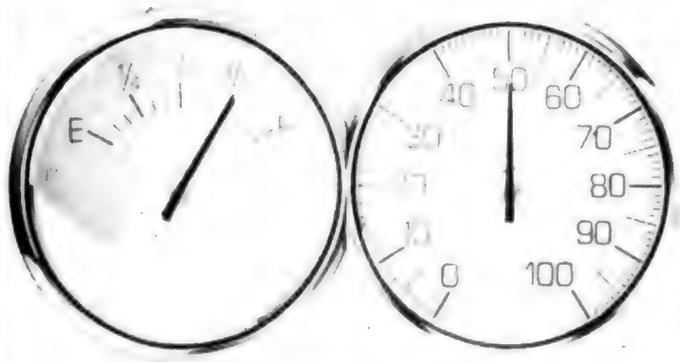
They said it couldn't be done.



45.2 miles per gallon. 0 to 50 in 7.7 seconds.

For the last number of years car makers have been struggling unsuccessfully with a huge problem, how to produce a car that is right for these changed times as well as for the changing times ahead.

A car that effortlessly combines economy, room, performance and safety.

It was beginning to look like an impossible chore.

Until now. Until the Volkswagen Rabbit. The car that does the impossible.

We spent five years planning and creating it fresh, from the ground up.

Its engine is a gem of ingenuity and function. Transversely mounted, this 1.6 litre, overhead cam, fuel injected powerplant delivers 45.2 miles per gallon on the highway and 30 miles per gallon in the city.* Remarkably, it can also propel you from 0 to 50 miles an hour in an astonishing 7.7 seconds. (A combination almost hers & the world!)

The engine along with the transmission is mounted over the drive wheels to give you the superior road hugging advantages of front-wheel drive.

Its rack and pinion steering gives you instant and obedient steering response.

Its unique "independent stabilizer rear axle" makes the car more stable on rough roads. Smoother riding on ordinary roads.

Safety?

The Rabbit has front disc brakes and a dual diagonal brake circuit. (If one circuit fails, a second is still there).

A double jointed steering column breaks aside in the event of an impact.

The Rabbit also boasts negative steering roll radius. (It assists the driver in maintaining directional control under conditions which contribute to skidding.)

There's a specially designed unitized safety cell body. Even reinforced steel beams in the doors.

When it comes to room, a staggering 87% of the car is sheer passenger and cargo space.

Besides seating four adults comfortably, the Rabbit with its rear seat folded down has more luggage space than a Cadillac Fleetwood. And with five doors there are enough ins and outs for everyone.

Stop by your nearest Volkswagen dealership and put a Volkswagen Rabbit to the test.

When you're done, we know there'll be one less person who said it couldn't be done.

The Volkswagen Rabbit

There's no comparison.

DANNY COULOMBE

PAUL BOURQUE

Ex-Lasers Shine With Mounties

Former Bathurst High Lasers, Paul Bourque and Danny Coulombe, recently completed successful seasons with the Mount Allison Mounties. For the second consecutive year Paul played on both the varsity soccer and hockey teams, while Danny was one of the few rookies to make the jump from high school hockey to intercollegiate play.

Bourque scored three goals for the soccer Mounties in league play this year. Paul has excellent speed and his drive and hustle served as an inspiration to his teammates. He is a leading candidate to be a member of the New Brunswick summer games team. With the hockey Mounties Paul scored four goals this year. Again his enthusiastic play lifted his teammates to give greater efforts. Paul is also one of the better penalty killers in the league. Coach Jack Drover rates Bourque as "one of the finest athletes at Mount Allison". Game in and game out Paul always gives 110 per cent, Coach Drover claims. Paul Bourque is a second year science student at Mount Allison and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Real Joseph Bourque.

Coulombe showed tremendous improvement over the season and is counted on heavily in the future plans of the Mounties. He has an excellent shot and is probably the best player on the team in front of the opponent's net. Danny has also been a member of the New Brunswick junior golf team for the past two years. He is in his first year of science at Mount Allison and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Coulombe.

Don't Delay Your Refund

First the good news: over 75 per cent of the people who file income tax returns can expect to receive money back. Now the bad news: unless you enclose all information slips that money could be a long time coming.

The bad news is not really all that bad since most taxpayers receive their information slips from employers, banks, trusts companies and other sources of income on or before the last day of February. That is the final day for distributing information slips such as T4's (employment income), T5's (interest income), T4U's (unemployment insurance) T4RSP's (retirement Savings Plans), T4HOSP's (registered home ownership plans), T4A's (annuities) and T4PS's (profit sharing plans).

Some taxpayers think that as soon as they receive their tax return in the mail they can fill it in and receive an early refund. This can cause delays if taxpayers do not include all information slips supporting their claims. The computers at the Taxation Data Centres reject any incomplete returns and that means any return without the required information slips.

Last year over $2.5 billion in refunds was returned to taxpayers. With increased deductions in the areas of child care expenses, pension plan contributions, increased personal exemptions and the disability deduction, the refund picture looks even rosier for this year.

All information on increased deductions and how to complete the 1976 income tax return is included in the Guide which accompanies each return.

Taxpayers who did not receive a copy in the mail or who need another one should drop by the nearest Post Office or District Taxation Office.

Taxpayers have until April 30 to file their tax returns but can do it anytime after they have all their required information slips at hand.

Ladies Curling Club News

By JOYCE CONLEY

The high school girls' rink travelled to Sussex over the weekend to compete in the provincial high school curling playoffs of the New Brunswick I.A.A. The four zones represented in the championships each had two teams in the double-knockout event.

Coach Edythe Hatheway said she was pleased with the local girl's play: they won two games, lost one in an extra end and lost their final game 8-6 to the Lavigne rink of Moncton who emerged as champions.

The regular monthly meeting of the Bathurst Ladies Club will be held Tuesday, April 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the ladies' lounge. Club members are urged to attend.

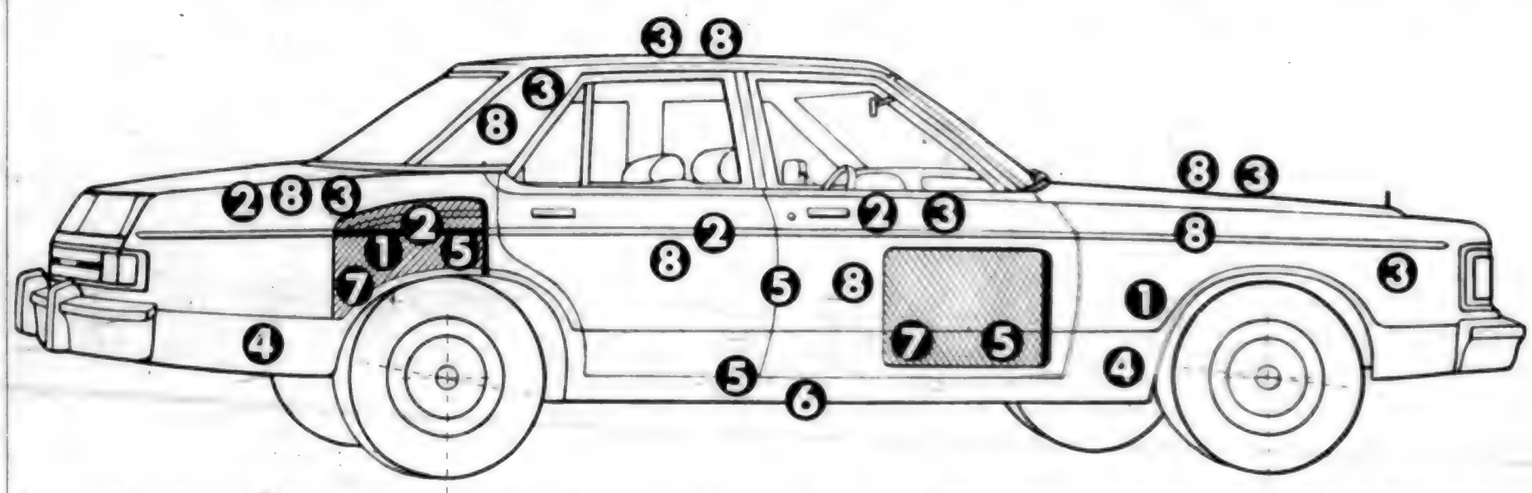
The more you know about this



The rear "cutaway" section (shaded area) indicates the anti-rust processes which are inside the quarter panels of the wheelhouses.

The small illustration at the right shows the anti-rust processes that secure underbody and suspension parts and the inside and outside of the hood and doors.

and this,

When you look closer at what's inside every 1977 Ford of Canada car, you'll be sold on the value.

What's inside every 1977 Ford of Canada car is the most advanced system of corrosion resistance processes we've ever offered, compared to prior model years. These processes, which are part of the DURAGUARD SYSTEM, go into every 1977 North American built Ford and Mercury car sold in Canada. They are built in at the factory, and they're standard equipment on every model. And this SYSTEM is backed by a no-charge, 36 month, unlimited mileage warranty against rust perforation on 1977 cars.

Ford of Canada is the only North American car maker with a warranty like this, and it goes along with every one of our 1977 cars sold in Canada, including taxis and police cars.

WARRANTY
No-charge, 36 month, unlimited mileage warranty against rust perforation on 1977 cars.

This warranty, which is exclusive to Canada, and is transferable to succeeding owners, covers the cost of both labour and materials for repair of perforations caused by corrosion, excluding exhaust system parts. The basic 12 month/12,000 mile warranty covers corrosion other than perforations that is due to defective factory materials or workmanship. Your Ford or Mercury dealer has details.

The DURAGUARD SYSTEM anti-rust processes indicated above include:

1. Zinc-rich primer, a special paint primer that gets sprayed onto key surfaces to assist in rust prevention.
2. Precoated steel which provides a defence against corrosive elements.
3. Phosphate coating: The bare sheet metal of each car body is sprayed with a phosphate coating and later covered with a primer.
4. Vinyl coating applied under the paint, behind the wheel openings, to help reduce the effect of stone chipping and road abrasives kicked up by the tires.
5. Vinyl sealer which creates a plasticized barrier against rust. It's applied on some seams, between panels, and on the underside of wheel housings.
6. Galvanized steel — a well known rust inhibitor which protects the rocker panels, several critical underbody parts and other extra vulnerable spots.
7. Aluminized wax sprayed inside the lower sections of doors and tailgates, lower quarter panels and wheelhouses further reduces the steel from corrosive elements.
8. Three applications of acrylic enamel which are sprayed and baked into a scratch resistant, glossy finish provide the finishing touch.

All Ford North American built 1977 carlines sold in Canada receive all of these processes in the DURAGUARD SYSTEM. Although not all carlines receive the same processes in corresponding areas, every car receives a combination of anti-corrosion processes which is appropriate to its design.

the more you'll be sold on the 1977 Fords and Mercurys.

HONOURED ON RETIREMENT BY COMPANY AND COLLEAGUES

Close to 60 persons associated with Eddy Hardware Ltd. combined forces Saturday night to make the occasion of Nathan (Gus) Higgins' retirement from the company his finest hour.

Those attending the special event, which took the form of a testimonial dinner at the Fundy Line Motel, included representatives from the firm's management and staff and other guests. Distant friends, relatives and former co-workers sent complimentary messages by wire and mail.

The function, which got underway at 7:00 p.m. following a social hour enhanced by Douglas Cunnison's selections on the Hammond organ, was highlighted by an eloquent tribute to Mr. Higgins from Duncan L. Young, president of Eddy Hardware (1971) Ltd.

The chief executive referred to Mr. Higgin's 22 years of valued service to the local business organization in addition to his many outstanding contributions to the community as a member of the Royal Canadian Legion and the Lions' Club.

The Higgins' family, it was mentioned, moved to Bathurst from Saint John in January, 1955 to join the Eddy organization and he later assumed the position of retail store manager. Mr. Higgins was previously with Thorne's Hardware Ltd., and its forerunner W. H. Thorne and Co. Ltd., in the port city.

A tribute of admiration on behalf of all Eddy employees was expressed to Mr. Higgins by Hal Winter, who was also emcee for the evening. Invited guests introduced included Mr. Higgins' brother, Everett, and Mrs. Higgins, of Saint John; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Murray, Jim MacLaggan and Wilbur Elhatton, all of Bathurst.

A toast to both Gus and Mrs. Higgins, also a very active Legion Auxiliary officer and community worker, was proposed by Ralph Hachey. They were showered with affection, tinged with a few good-natured barbs, to which the guest of honor responded with his characteristic wit and wisdom.

Mr. Higgins was the recipient of gifts from the company's branch stores, the presentations being made by Don MacMinn of the Bathurst and Ron Daigle, of Dalhousie. Jack Nicholson of Bathurst Wholesale Division presented Mr. Higgins with a mounted and inscribed gold-plated electric drill and hammer on behalf of Black and Decker and the Stanley Tool Co.

Miss Claire Doucet presented Mrs. Higgins with a bouquet of carnations, while Norman Eddy, president of George Eddy Co. Ltd., voiced appreciation to Mr. Higgins for his long and dedicated service. Out-of-town messages were received from Randolph Eddy, Dalhousie; Freddie Harlow, Springhill, Florida; Supreme Aluminum Industries, Cooper Weeks of Canada; Kem Paint Ltd.

The banner message displayed above the head table and based on Mr. Higgins' fishing expectations, reflected the mood of the happy occasion.

Gus, an ardent fly-fisherman and gardener, intends to pursue these hobbies and, along with Mrs. Higgins, plans to travel to Ontario and the Western Provinces, visiting members of their family.

Mr. Higgins and his wife Madeleen, reside on Youghal Drive. They have a daughter, Margaret, Mrs. Bolkmar Meinke, in Sparwood, B.C.; and two sons, WO John, with the Canadian Forces in Calgary, Alta.; and Peter with Bell Telephone, Toronto.

Social and Personal

Leaving also April 4 for a visit to England, Mrs. Mederic Henry will be spending some time with her father, Mr. Sydney Taylor, and sister, Miss Babs Taylor, East Grimstead, Surrey, expecting to spend over a month abroad.

Miss Helen Kent, and her sister, Mrs. Gene Ward and daughters Debbie and Pamela, all of Moncton, visited over the March school break with their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Kent, South Teteagouche.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Annand recently returned from a vacation in St. Petersburg, Florida. Joining them on the sojourn were the latter's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bardy from St. John's, Nfld.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bouchard and family, formerly of Montreal, have taken up residence at 1039 Winton Court. Mr. Bouchard recently accepted the position as treasurer for the City of Bathurst.

Tag Day A Success

Community Theatre's First annual tag day which was held Friday night and Saturday, April 1 and 2, has been termed an overwhelming success thanks to the support and generosity of Bathurst residents.

"The kindness and words of encouragement from the public were as much appreciated as the cash donations", said a spokesman for the drama group. "We received a lot of moral support, and are very grateful for it."

The puppet shows at the Bathurst Shopping Mall on Saturday were also well-attended, and the children showed so much enthusiasm that Community Theatre has decided to hold another show in the near future.

"The members enjoyed all aspects of the drive and puppet shows", said the spokesman, "and were truly amazed by the generosity of the public. We would like to thank all who helped us in any way, with a special thanks going to Mrs. Richard Lethbridge for her financial and moral support."

All proceeds from tag day will go toward the presentation of the three-act comedy Harvey to be staged in late May.

Chiasson Leads Capitols With Record 409 Triple

Bathurst Capitols had a big weekend, retaining the Jap Blake Memorial Trophy Saturday and bringing the Bathurst Propane Challenge Trophy back to Capitol Lanes Sunday.

Saturday, a 353 triple by Gordie Chiasson, and 349 triples from Cowan Glazner and Herman Thibodeau carried Bathurst Capitols to a 160 pin victory over St. John. This was their 3rd defense of the Blake trophy.

Sunday they picked up the Bathurst Propane trophy with a narrow 16 pin victory over Campbellton Hawks.

Anchorman Gordie Chiasson found the Athol ville Lanes to his liking rolling strings of 136, 139 and 144 for a 409 triple setting a record for Bathurst Propane trophy play. With Campbellton leading by 11 pins, only 2 boxes left and both anchormen open on spares, Chiasson dropped a double strike and pulled out the victory.

This coming weekend, Capitols get their first taste of International competition when they attempt the 4th defense of the Jap Blake Memorial trophy against Houlton, Maine. They also face Chatham St. Mikes in cause.

TROPHY RETURNS AFTER 31 YEARS

Captain Glenn Melvin of the BHS Lasers holds The Telegraph Journal Trophy awarded annually to the provincial high school hockey champions. This 1976 - 77 season saw the trophy's return to Bathurst after an absence of thirty-one years. Originally, the high schools were grouped, according to enrollment, into three classes (L large, M medium and S small. Later only two groupings were used - AA for large and A for small schools. For the past three seasons, three classes have been reintroduced - AAA large, AA medium and A small. The BHS Lasers captured the AA class in 1974 - 75 and again in 1975 - 76. This year they won the AAA championship and the Telegraph Journal Trophy. Since its introduction for competition in 1940 at the large school level, this cup came to Bathurst just once before, in 1946. Since the early days, the names of schools in the larger cities of Moncton, Fredericton and Saint John have been inscribed many times. Other school names from Chatham and Campbellton also appear. Members of this year's championship Laser team who were also members of the two AA cup teams include Jim Savoie, Robert Payne, Tim Kyle and Glenn Melvin. It should be recognized that before coming to high school these and other members of the Lasers were developed in the Bathurst Minor Hockey Association for more than six or seven years.

Landry's Oil Kings Host C.F.B.C. Tomorrow At 7:30

Landry's Esso Oil Kings will play host to Canadian Forces Base Chatham Golden Hawks tomorrow night (Thursday) in an exhibition game to be staged at the Nepisiguit High School Gym. The Hawks finished third in the Miramichi Valley Basketball League this season while Bathurst finished first. The last time the two rivals faced each other the Oil Kings came out winners by the score of 71 - 68 in Chatham. The game is probably the final home game of the season before the 1977 provincial Championships, to be held here on April 15, 16 and 17.

Tickets for that tournament are currently on sale from team members. This marks the first time a basketball championship tournament was ever held in the Bathust area, so get your tickets soon. All 8 games will be held at the Nepisiguit High School gym.

On the weekend Bathurst split a pair of games in the Moncton area against two highly-rated ball clubs. On Saturday the Oil Kings dropped a 82 - 69 decision to the Petitcodiac Falcons champions of the Petitcodiac Valley Basketball League. Appeal Court Decrees In Robbery Case

The three-member Appeal Division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court last Thursday sentenced 18-year-old Michel Doucet to eight months in jail and placed him on probation for one year, following his conviction on a charge of robbery.

Doucet was convicted by the Appeal Court in connection with the July 28, 1976, robbery of $501.25 from Jeannine Hache, an employee of the Bayview Drive-In at Beresford.

Sitting on the case were Chief Justice C.J.A. Hughes and Mr. Justices John Bugold and Henry E. Ryan.

Reginald Leger, representing the Crown, told the Appeal tribunal prior to the imposition of sentence that Doucet, John McKenzie and Claude Raiche had been drinking at the Coachman's Pub the night of the robbery.

He said they decided to commit the robbery, and obtained a gun before going to the drive-in in McKenzie's car. Leger said McKenzie sat in the car while Doucet and Raiche hid in the grass adjacent to the box office, before approaching the cashier.

The prosecutor said a window was broken in the box office, and the two men demanded the night's receipts, which Mrs. Hache had just finished counting. At the same time, Raiche went to the car of an assistnat at the drive-in, and held the gun on him.

When he noticed Doucet running away, he too took flight. Leger told the court the two men got into McKenzie's car, and the three men drove to the Kent Lodge Road, where they discarded the nylon stocking masks they wore during the robbery.

They continued on to Beresford Beach, where they divided the money and where Raiche hid the gun used in the robbery. Then, the men separated.

The Crown prosecutor told the court Doucet and McKenzie were apprehended in Moncton by police two days after the robbery. He said Doucet wrote a statement for the police admitting the robbery, and when he was returned to Bathurst, he reconstructed the events on the night of the robbery, even actively participating in the search for the gun.

However, said Leger, since Raiche had been the one to hide the gun, the police and Doucet were unsuccessful in their bid to find it. However, the police, with the aid of the RCMP dogmaster, were able to find the stocking masks used in the robbery, after Doucet showed them the area where they had been discarded.

Leger told the court Raiche had been convicted of the robbery charge following his trial in February, and he was sentenced to two years in penitentiary. As well, the prosecutor said an indictment would be preferred this week (week of April 4) against McKenzie, but there was an indication McKenzie would be pleading guilty to the robbery charge.

The prosecutor said it would have been a very difficult case for the Crown and the police, if Doucet had not provided his written statement. He said he did not think the case would have come to the courts if it had not been for the accused's cooperation. He also told the court he felt chances for Doucet's rehabilitation would be "very good, from what I've seen."

Gladys Young, appearing on Doucet's behalf, told the court that Doucet was intoxicated on the night of the robbery, and was very scared during the offence. She said McKenzie had been determined to be the ringleader.

She said McKenzie was currently doing time in the penitentiary as a result of a conviction for drug trafficking, and he had previous convictions for breaking and entering and thefts.

She admitted that Doucet had been convicted of charges of joyriding and of breaking and entering with intent, but pointed out that the circumstances were not serious. Miss Young said Doucet had been sentenced to 30 days in jail on the charge, and had just been released from custody prior to the robbery.

As a result of that conviction, she said he was remanded to jail, where he remained in custody from July 30 until he was acquitted following his trial Dec. 8, 1976. She suggested to the Appeal Court that the time spent in jail awaiting trial be considered in the imposition of sentence.

Miss Young told the Justices that even though the Crown indicated in would be appealing the acquittal, Doucet didn't attempt to escape further prosecution.

He went to Ontario, where he anticipated getting a job with General Motors, but when the Crown asked him to return to Bathurst to testify in the Raiche trial, he did so without hesitation. She pointed out that in his statement to police, Doucet had not mentioned or implicated Raiche, although on subsequent questioning when the police told him they knew Raiche was involved with the robbery, he admitted it.

After Raiche's trial, Doucet went to Montreal. While he was there, he was notified about the appeal court's decision on his case, and was told there was a bench warrant out for his arrest. he voluntarily returned to Bathurst and presented himself to the police, who trusted him enough to appear for sentencing that they let him free.

Chief Justice Hughes, in passing sentence, said robbery is a very serious offence, generally punished by a penitentiary term.

Referring to Doucet's previous convictions, the Chief Justice said he was satisfied they were not the most serious types of offences that could have been committed.

Because of Doucet's age, fact there had not been extensive premeditation of the robbery, and because of the accused's cooperation with the police, as well as considering the fact Doucet had been remanded to jail for four months and a week prior to his trial, he imposed the additional eight month term.

Higher Power Rates Okayed

The New Brunswick Electric Power Commission chairman Bill Cockburn announced April 1 that new rate schedules have been approved affecting all customer classifications.

The new rates are designed for an average revenue increase of 16.6 per cent to meet both the higher costs of operation and the recently announced 5 per cent provincial tax on utilities. Additional costs being experienced by the Commission require a 12 per cent increase in rates, and the utilities tax is reflected at a partially absorbed rate of 4.6 per cent.

The new rates will appear in customer billing for the first full period of electrical consumption after April 1st, 1977, and will apply to all categories of sales, rentals and services.

The increase in municipal street lighting rates will be delayed until January 1, 1978. This will allow municipalities the opportunity of including the new estimates in their budgets for the coming year.

Each year several thousand new customers require electric service from the Commission and facilities must be added or replaced. It is essential that the Commission effect rate adjustments to meet the increased costs of doing business, and at the same time maintain a positive financial position. This increase is only the third overall or general upward adjustment in rates introduced by the Commission since the early 1950's.

Commission rates schedules will still remain competitive with those of other utilities in Atlantic Canada, and substantially less than utility rates along the Eastern Seaboard of the United States.

The residential rate structure, exclusive of fuel adjustment charges, is as follows:

Class I (Cities) - Service Charge $2.10; First 700 KWh at $2.60c-KWh; Balance at - $1.80c-kWh.

Class II (Towns and Villages over 2,000) - Service Charge $3.90; First 700 Kwh at 2.60c-kWh; Balance at 1.80c-kWh.

Class III and 4V (Rural and Seasonal) - Service Charge - $5.45; 2.60c-KWh; Balance at 1.80c-kWh.

Residential customers will recognize that the minimum monthly charge has been replaced with the service charge and the number of energy blocks has been reduced by one-half. The change in rate structure is similar to that introduced recently by a number of Canadian utilities.

Farmers Seek Veterinarian

Liberal MLA for Nepisiguit-Chaleur Frank Branch presented the government with a petition March 30 which requested improved veterinary service for the region.

Signed by 450 Bathurst area residents, the petition also requested the transfer of a veterinarian from Dalhousie to Bathurst.

The absence of services is depriving farmers of adequate care for their livestock, the petition said.

Contract Awarded City Firm

From the Ottawa Bureau Of The Northern Light

A federal contract worth $40,000 has been awarded to Eddy Hardware 1971 Ltd. of Bathurst to provide the Defense Department with hardware supplies, the Department of Supply and Services announced Monday, March 28.

It was one of 405 unclassified contracts worth $10,000 or more that were awarded by the department to Canadian companies during the week ended March 18. Total value of the contracts amounted to $16,360,144.

Bright Career Looms For Player Known Here

(By Jim Greenidge, RPI Sports Information Director)

In the last three and a half hockey season, the RPI Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, New York, varsity hockey team has taken the ice for what is commonly called Intercollegiate Athletic Competition 101 times, mustering a 48 - 48 - 5 record over this time.

There are six seniors on this year's edition of RPI hockey, but only one of these seniors has participated in all 101 games. In fact, if anything, the word "participate" isn't quite the right word for that player - defenseman Dave Jack - has contributed to the betterment of Rensselaer Hockey right from day one.

Jack, who spends his summers roaming the beach areas and massive waters near Bathurst, New Brunswick, has been a regular throughout his years. While in the area, the athlete stays with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hodnett, New Bandon, his mother being the former Marjorie Hodnett. His dad, Major Martin Jack, of the RCAF, is at present stationed in Trenton, Ont.

The younger Jack is due here in late April and plans, as usual, to remain with the Hodnetts until after the lobster season.

But despite this fact, Dave Jack can probably be labeled the most unknown, the most unsung of any of the seniors - Dino Serra, Pat Hahn, Rick Marsh and Rick Smith, the other senior standouts.

And the reason for this is simply the fact that the 6-0, 195 pound curly-haired blond had been in the background to veteran defensemen Mike Prpich, Gerry Beauclair and Rick Marsh in the previous campaigns.

Marsh, who had been Dave's partner back at the blue line through most of the wars, is certainly more exciting, more daring, more offensive-minded than Jack.

So in the years past, no one really took notice of Dave Jack's play. The newspapermen didn't seek out Dave Jack for post-games quotes. No one asked Dave Jack's feelings of college hockey, inflation or life in general. In fact, this is the very first time that a program article has ever been written on Dave Jack.

But this year has been different as Jack is the team's leader and spokesman as one of its co-captains and as the season started with Rick Marsh on the sidelines for the first semester, Jack was the lone defenseman with experience. And things are truly different. In the pre-season, one area sportswriter wrote Dave's World Series prediction. At the start of this season, there was an article in this program on his thoughts on the RPI team.

"All the attention the previous years went to Prpich and Beauclair," says Jack. "I looked up to those two guys, although they were only one year ahead of me. They had such good freshman years, that that's all I heard about when I came to RPI.

Playing behind them was tough, certainly," he goes on. "I didn't get much credit playing behind them, but they didn't get much credit either when you stop to think about it. And I thought Prpich, especially, was a good defenseman."

Dave Jack, a defenseman's defenseman in that he has always thought defense first, has become more productive offensively every year. His first season, he had only nine points with only one goal - and that didn't come until the North Country trip in early February.

As a sophomore, he had 12 points (four goals, eight assists). Last year, he had 22 points (four goals, 18 assists). So far this season, Dave has already scored 20 points with four goals, 16 assists here at the halfway mark of the season.

Dave has three assists come in the wins over Quebec and Michigan, "two assists in the wins over Penn and Princeton and loss to Clarkson. He has had his goals come against Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont and Clarkson.

A lot of Dave's early-season points came when he was at the right point in man-up situations for coach Jim Salfi. He no longer plays on the power play situation as coach Salfi switched the unit around going into the RPI Christman Tournament.

Jack, who prides himself on his consistency ("I like to think I play the way I'm expected to play the game"), had a slump come in the Brown Tournament in which RPI went 0-2-1. It might have been due to the fact he was getting too much ice time because he was the lone experienced defenseman. He was killing penalties as well as playing power plays. And he was tired and because he was tired, he made mistakes.

"That was the first down and out slump I ever had here at

Church Services

In The Bathurst District

The following notices of services are printed as a courtesy of The Northern Light from information supplied by the churches concerned.

BIBLE DIGEST "And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him." Mark 16:6

The message of the resurrection is "He is risen" and that all who believe it in their heart and confess it with their mouth, will rise to meet Him. "So shall we ever be with the Lord." So that we may say of the departed Christian - not when did he die but when did he rise! "To be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord." "Because I live ye shall live also."

Bright Career Looms

RPI", says Jack. "It started a couple of games prior to the Brown Tournament and continued through the Brown Tournament. I had long talks with (RPI trainer) Tom Sheehan and (assistant coach) Lou Reycroft and the point they made was that I wasn't playing to my instincts.

"I don't resent getting a lot of ice time, don't get me wrong. Everyone wants ice time. I enjoyed playing power plays; it was the first time I had ever played them here."

And then he thought about the attention he is getting this year as compared to past years. "Maybe the slump would have gone unnoticed in other years," he points out.

Jack, who called the 5 - 4 win over Penn "the most rewarding game of the year because we won our own tournament because of that win," was selected to the Second Team All-RPI Tournament Team. He was out of his slump.

"Beating Clarkson and Michigan was enjoyable," he quickly points out, "because it's always enjoyable beating teams you're not supposed to beat. After beating Clarkson, I could feel that we were going to win our tournament."

Jack rates the losses to Colgate and Yale as the games he wished RPI could have back to play again. "In the whole Brown Tournament, we played poorly because of the referees and because we were thinking about our flights home for the holiday, and our own tournament," says the management major who made the Dean's List both times his junior year and carries an overall 2.6 cum.

"We also had a bad game against New Hampshire the first time around (a 6-5 UNH win at UNH). "They played poorly, and we were even worse. In this league, you take any win you can get."

Jack, who hopes to go to play hockey in Europe next year, has a new partner this year, and he says he has come to like it. "Playing with Boyder (sophomore Don Boyd) is great because all you have to do is give him the puck and sit back because he handles the puck so well."

Dave Jack, one of the top plus-minus players on the RPI team this year with a plus 11 rating ("that means more to me than goals, assists or points-scored"), has indeed, improved over the years. Last year for instance, he had a minus four rating while in the other years, he was even more on the minus side of things.

"It (playing hockey) has gotten easier," says Jack. "I don't get as worried inside as much; I'm more worried about winning and losing rather than how I play. Being a co-captain, I suppose, has something to do with that.

"Now, I know more about the game - when, how and why I should do things."

Dave Jack, the defenseman's defenseman, is finally getting the attention his play on the ice has always deserved.

Traditional Acadian Cuisine

Most restaurants in New Brunswick, Canada's Atlantic Province, offer a sophisticated seafood plate, but if you happen to be at the right place at the right time, you may enjoy the taste of poutines râpées, fiddleheads of a "ploye", all uniquely New Brunswick dishes.

The Acadian region, especially the southeastern area of the province, is the homeland of poutines râpées.

Resembling a snowball, this ball of grated potato wrapped around a core of pork, is boiled and usually eaten with a sprinkle of sugar. Poutin râpée, brought into the country by the first French settlers, actually originated in Germany. The Acadians used it as a convenient lunch to carry in the woods. This delightful Acadian dish is as commonplace on many New Brunswick menus as the hot dog and hamburger.

These same eating establishments often serve poutine a trou. . . a mouthwatering Acadian dessert of rich pastry wrapped around a mixture of apples, raisins and cranberries served in a hot sweet syrup.

Fricot au poulet, or bouillon au poulet as it is frequently called, is an example of Acadian cuisine at its best. A savory Acadian stew made with onion, chicken, potatoes, carrots and dumplings, this is considered a special delicacy by the Acadians. Anyone who has ever tasted it will think so too. A time-honored dish of the Acadian peninsula, especially in the Caraquet and Shippegan area, it does sometimes make its way across the province to the occasional restaurant in the upper reaches of the St. John River valley.

The residents of the legendary Republic of Madawaska, enjoyed their thick buckwheat pancakes so much that their neighbours in Quebec nicknamed them "les ployes". Still a favourite and served as a side dish with the main meal or as a sweet dessert with molasses or maple syrup, "les ployes" (the pancakes) are a traditional part of the diet in the Edmundston region today.

That magic fern, the fiddlehead, must also be sampled to be appreciated. The delicate and satisfying flavour of this member of the ostrich fern family, is awaited with mouthwatering expectancy each spring by every New Brunswicker along the St. John and Nashwaak rivers. Growing rapidly in the spring freshets, the curled fronds resemble the tops of violins when picked. Boiled and served with butter, the greens have a unique taste all their own.

Along with the fiddlehead comes the bony gaspereaux and the shad, both spring delicacies eagerly awaited, followed closely by the bright silver salmon from our famous salmon rivers. As the bright red lobster is King of the coastal communities, so the Atlantic salmon is Queen of the rivers.

Residents of the northeastern and southeastern shores of New Brunswick seem to opt for the small sweet lobster while the inhabitants of the southern and southwestern shores of the Bay of Fundy appear to like the larger variety. Whichever you prefer, our Atlantic lobster, perhaps because of the cold deep water, is superior in flavour to lobster found in most parts of the world. Lacking the muddy taste of warm water crustaceans, it is favoured by gourmets and gourmands, as are our scallops and clams... rated high among seafoods. The quality of Buctouche's oysters is known the world over and it's a fact that the fishermen who have eaten shellfish or fish almost every day of their life still consider the fruit of the sea a treat.

Once you've acquired a taste for dulse, something a New Brunswick resident seems to be born with, your salivary juices will begin to flow the minute you walk within 50 feet of the purple seaweed. Picked off the rock at low tide, mainly at Dark Harbour, Grand Manan, the leaves are left to dry in the sun. When the desired peak of dryness is reached, the weed is gathered for the market.

On the upper St. John River valley, deep in the lumbering camps of the interior of the province and, certainly in the Miramichi region, baked beans and johnny cake are a tradition. Made from corn meal, johnny cake is served hot with butter and combined with baked pork and beans, providing a hearty feast, both filling and tasty. You'll find it served in some of our restaurants near Newcastle and Chatham and it's a staple at our harvest and church suppers.

Early settlers, of necessity, took advantage of their natural environment for any food it offered and even nowadays it's an established custom to use our bounteous harvest of wild berries in many of our desserts. One of these concoctions, called Blueberry Grunt, shouldn't be turned down because of its name. This dish of sweetened berries and rich biscuit topping cooked to a golden juicy brown, deserves a spot on any table.

Apple crumble, another delicious old-time recipe comprising of sliced apples mixed with a crumb mixture of flour and brown sugar and served with heavy cream has made many harvest dinner a success.

And no mention of New Brunswick foods can be made without mentioning the lowly potato. New Brunswickers can conjur up some fabulous dishes with it... things like potato scallop au gratin and even... for the sweet tooth... potato fudge.

There's no getting around it... there's good eating in New Brunswick.

Youth Minister Endorses Week

Youth, Recreation and Cultural Resources Minister Jean-Pierre Ouellet March 21 issued the following statement as he endorsed "Recreation Week in New Brunswick from April 16 - 22.

"Recreation probably holds a different meaning for each one of us.

It is almost certainly something that the present generation has heard more about and is able to enjoy more universally than any generation before it.

It is no longer a privilege of the young or the affluent. But, neither should it be something to be practised for one week or one month of the year, only to be emphasized and concentrated upon before being put back on the shelf, so to speak, until next year.

Recreation, whatever direction it takes, should be a pursuit to be appreciated for itself, for its physical, mental, cultural and social therapeutic benefits and for the general well-being of the community, and society in which we live.

During this first "Recreation Week" being observed in the Province, we have suggested that each of the five days should focus on one broad aspect or theme of recreation.

For example, Monday, April 18 will be a salute to Recreation and Sports. Tuesday, April 19, Recreation and the Out-of-Doors. Wednesday, April 20, Recreation and Culture. Thursday, April 21, Recreation and Special Groups and on April 22, the last day of the special week, we shall be paying particular tribute to Recreation and Volunteers.

To some recreation means simply that period of the day when we are not engaged in our regular employment. It may then take a passive form, such as reading, writing letters, undertaking a small home improvement project, stamp collecting, walking or listening to music.

Or it may take a more active form, such as a sports activity with the family or on a team, or participating in leadership development with young people, or teaching a group a skill in handcraft or in arts.

Whatever form you choose to follow as recreation, I urge you to use it wisely and regularly. Seek out something that is fulfilling to you, something that promotes your intellectual, physical, cultural or social well-being.

Use "Recreation Week" as an opportunity to reassess your goals and ambitions and to renew your awareness of your cultural and environmental heritage.

If you want advice or information on recreation pursuits, contact your regional office of the Department of Youth, Recreation and Cultural Resources.

I urge you all to use this week to give a little of yourself. Get involved. If you're already involved, good for you."

Will Handle Compensation

Finance Minister Lawrence Garvie announced March 29 the appointment of a Compensation Appeals Board to evaluate the validity of appeals against the amount of compensation assistance paid to some claimants for losses and damages to property resulting from several severe storms last year.

Mr. Garvie stated that 4,441 private claims were investigated and 3,801 were determined to be eligible for compensation assistance. Of this latter number, sixteen claimants have disputed the amount of compensation assistance they received.

Members of the board are David Wilson, Fredericton, an insurance agent; Gerald S. McMackin, Saint John, a lawyer; and Audbur Matthews, Campobello, fisherman.

The board will be meeting to establish procedures and to notify appellants of the hearings of appeals.

The board will be required to examine and evaluate the claims of appellants and to recommend to the minister additional compensation payments, confirmation of original payments, or recommendations for a further appraisal.

Farmer's Side Of Food Prices

By Dianne Barkin
In the Ottawa Citizen

Consumer advocates would have us believe that food prices are too high.

This concept is being challenged by a national group of farm women, Women for the Survival of Agriculture, founded in 1975 and based in Winchester, Ont.

Food prices too high? "Compared to what?" they ask.

"If we compare food prices to what Canadians paid years ago, food prices are not too high. Back in the 1930s the average Canadian spent 20 per cent of his-her disposable income (after taxes) on food. In the '40s it was 22 per cent, in the 60s 20 per cent and now in 1977 it is as low as 18 per cent. The actual cost of food has been going down, not up."

Are food prices too high compared to the cost of producing it?

These farm women responded to this question through a check of Statistics Canada which reveals that farmers earn less than non-farmers. In the past few years farm input costs have soared while farm incomes have decreased. Meanwhile wages of non-farmers have increased steadily.

Are food prices too high compared to other countries in the world?

"No so", says WSA members. Canadians and Americans spend 18 per cent of their disposable income on food; in Japan and England consumers spend approximately 36 per cent; in Russia about 54 per cent and in parts of Asia people spend as much as 85 per cent of their income on food.

Self-styled consumer advocates have levelled unjust criticism at the agricultural industry. Undermining marketing boards took priority over assuring farmers of reasonable incomes by other means.

Consumers have been misled and left confused after years of press releases from persons such as Beryl Plumptre, formerly of the Food Prices Review Board and the Anti Inflation Board. Some such consumer advocates actually feel that farmers should not be allowed to make a fair profit on producing food.

Is there a rip-off at the farm gate?

WSA members responded to the question this way:

"Suppose that for the last four years all the farmers in Canada make absolutely no money producing all the food they produce: no profit, no return on their investment, and no wages for their labour. The actual amount of money that would have been saved by the average Canadian citizen comes to 39 cents per person per day. That's all."

FARMER'S

What in incredibly small amount of money for consumers to pay to assure that they have an adequate food supply?

Farm women are stressing the fact that Canadians are enjoying the highest standard of living in the world because of... not in spite of the price of food.

After all, they say, when you spend only 18 per cent of your income on food, not 26, 54 or 83 per cent then there is plenty left to enjoy other things in life such as a nice home, T.V., comfortable furniture, a car and even a vacation.

The only true evaluation of food prices must be determined by comparisons; particularly comparisons relative to income.

If food costs have risen at the same rate as the average wage since 1947, consumers would be paying prices as follows: eggs, $4.60 a dozen; chicken, $3.90 a pound; milk $1.90 a quart; butter, $4.50 a pound; sirloin steak, $4.80 a pound; and sugar, $0.30 per ten-pound bag.

With these facts and figures before them, how can consumers' associations continue to attack the agriculture sector of society?

Canadian Food Week could prove to be a turning point, a time when the public begins to support and encourage the food producers, our farmers, who have produced so much for so many, for so little, for so long.

Special Events Mark Golden Anniversary

"We've been in business for fifty years From sales of a half million dollars in 1927, we have grown to sales of one hundred and fifteen million But when we examine the record of that half century, we must make sure that we do not measure our progress simply in dollars and cents

"As a co-operative service organization, we must examine our past and plan our future in terms of social needs as well" L G Horton, general manager of Maritime Co-Operative Services told delegates attending the organization's annual meeting, held at the Hotel Beausejour in Moncton

Mr Horton indicated that although a sales growth of 13.2 per cent over the previous was acceptable, there were important advances and declines to be noted in various fields of operation

MCA engages in the wholesale distribution of feed, hardware, dry goods, petroleum products and building supplies, is the region's largest manufacturer of animal feeds, and has recently entered the housing field with the manufacture of Maritime Homes house-building packages, and is involved in the development of a limited profit real estate development through a subsidiary company, Atlantic People Housing Limited

Nearly 200 delegates attended the meeting, which celebrated the organization's 50th year of operation since its incorporation as the Maritime Livestock Board in 1927

The golden anniversary was marked by two special events, W H McEwen, who served M C S for 30 years as general manager, and for ten as corporate secretary, laid the cornerstone for the McEwen Centre, an office complex which will consolidate facilities for the head office staff The centre will comprise the current head office in Moncton, and a larger expansion which will be adjacent to it

Regional co-op pioneers were honoured at the banquet held in conjunction with the meeting. Head table guests included two founding directors of M C S., Waldo Walsh and Walter Shaw, Mr McEwen, former Assistant General Manager Roy Grant and Past President Jack Walsh.

Two new members joined the board of directors during the meeting, Madame Maria Legere of Caraquet and Donald Coburn of Fredericton.

The other members of the board are Wally MacKinnon, Sydney; Bill McWilliams of New Glasgow; Donald Newcombe of Port Williams; Peggy Prowse of Halifax; Gerald Handrahan of Charlottetown; Francois Babin of Richibucto; Frank Lutes of Moncton and Bill Browne of Grand Falls, Newfoundland.

Donald Newcombe was elected president at a directors' meeting which followed the annual meeting. Francois Babin is first vice-president and Peggy Prowse is second vice-president.

Halifax Eye Seminar Set

Well-known eye doctors from all over the Atlantic region will be in Halifax Apr. 27 to attend a symposium on the prevention of blindness. Sponsored by the Canadian Ophthalmological Society and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, the seminar will focus on seven eye conditions, all serious causes of blindness in Canada.

Dr. R. Read will discuss glaucoma, often called the sneak thief of sight because it can destroy good vision before a person known he has it. The need for early detection will be stressed, as well as the types of treatment which help keep the condition under control.

In 1975, glaucoma was the cause of blindness in 188 Canadians or 8.2 per cent of the 2,281 cases registered with CNIB during the year.

Dr. D B. O'Brien will speak on diabetic retinopathy, which has increased as a cause of blindness over the last few years. In 1975, diabetic retinopathy caused blindness for 154 Canadians, or 11.1 per cent of the total.

Accounting for 112 cases or 4.9 per cent in 1975 was cataracts, the condition that puts a misty film over the lens.

Dr. E. Rafuse will review German measles (rubella), a disease which in children is a minor sickness but in pregnant mothers has devastating results. When mothers catch rubella in the early stages of pregnancy, the unborn child often becomes deaf, blind, mentally retarded or afflicted with many other handicaps. The doctor will discuss the simple inoculation which prevents the disease.

The Halifax seminar is one of seven taking place across Canada on the same day. "All seven will follow the same topics," said Dr. Sapp, spokesman for COS and CNIB, "but each group will treat the subjects according to local needs."

The seminars are designed to develop a vigorous program of blindness prevention to reduce unnecessary sight-loss in Canada.

Pay Income Tax? Not In This Haven

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

You say you've had it with taxes. You're fed up with the price?

Then consider Sark. It may sound like an Alice in Wonderland place-name, but it's an island to goodness, island with no income tax, no capital-gains tax, not even a sales tax.

And the pressures of daily life are minimal, as you might judge from a few minutes spent with the top Sarkee, a placid former aircraft-design engineer named John Michael Beaumont.

He is the 22nd Seigneur of the fief Haubert of Sark - a title that goes back to Elizabethan times - he represents the British Crown on one of the tiniest of the Channel Islands.

He and Mrs. Beaumont on a current visit to Canada, their first, took time to tell me of life and the absence of taxes in Sark.

The Beaumonts are so thoroughly relaxed that it is only later that you remember to be astonished that there exists, in 1977, a civilized placed with no bureaucracy, no pressure groups, no T-1 forms - in fact almost none of the encumbrances that seem to have become essential to day-to-day living in Canada.

Of course, there are a few differences between Canada and Sark. The Island is 3.5 miles long by 1.5 miles wide, and so there is no Air Sark, no Sark National Railways. British Airways flies to near-by Guernsey from five cities in the United Kingdom.

HORSEPOWER

Sark has no car license fees, because it has no cars. Public transportation is chiefly by horse-and-carriage, although visitors can usually hitch a ride on a tractor-drawn wagon up the steep Harbor Hill from the boat landing at Maseline Harbor to the plateau that covers most of the island.

That plateau is home to some 600 Sark residents. In the summer season, the accommodation for 400 overnight visitors is always fully booked, and as many as 1,500 visitors make the nine-mile trip across choppy Channel waters from Guernsey for the day.

Even Sark is not entirely free of taxes. Funds must be raised to pay the salaries of the island's doctor, two full-time teachers and one part-time teacher.

Each visitor pays a levy of about 14 cents, bicycles are taxed at about 28 cents a year, and imports of tobacco and alcohol are subject to a small duty - so small that a bottle of Scotch costs only about $1.80, and wine about $1.

Then there are what the Seigneur describes as crude forms of property tax and wealth tax.

How crude? A dozen elected officials - the douzaine - "sit down and assess what tax everybody should pay." Proceeds are used for road maintenance and assistance to the poor.

NO COMPANY LAW

With such benign laws, Sark should be as attractive a tax haven as Jersey and Guernsey, its larger neighbors in the Channel Islands.

But it hasn't attracted offshore corporations for a typically Sarkee reason. There is no Companies Act, and so no companies can be formed or registered.

Individuals, however, can take advantage of the Sark tax situation. So far, exactly one millionaire has immigrated - Leonard J. Matchan, 66, retired chairman of a British conglomerate called Cope Allman Ltd., who inhabits Brecqhou, an island appendage that makes even Sark seem large.

"Jersey and Guernsey get a lot of money that way" (as tax havens). Mr. Beaumont said, "but we don't want that sort of business.

"We have very strict inheritance laws and you cannot will your property. It has got to go to your oldest son."

Added Mrs. Beaumont: "I think the men like it better than the women."

Mr. Beaumont listed these conditions that would-be immigrants must meet: They must be British subjects, they must have his permission - and they must be prepared to carry a musket in defence of the island.

Contrary to popular conception, the self-governing Channel Islands have never been a part of the United Kingdom although British currency circulates almost interchangeably with C. I. currency. And the islands are adjacent to the northern coast of Franch, far removed from the south coast of England.

ACADIAN VILLAGE TO OPEN JUNE 29 - After several years of research and many hours of hard work, the Acadian Historical Village located in Northeastern New Brunswick near Caraquet, is ready to open its doors and give visitors the opportunity to view the Acadian way of life in the province between 1780 and 1880. Of special interest are the simple and sometimes crude furnishings found in the houses. This was a simplicity imposed by the meagre financial resources of a dispersed people who, out of necessity, were forced to use their hands. (Tourism New Brunswick Photo)

Acadian Furniture To Be Seen Again

In a few months, the Village Historique Acadien near Caraquet will open its doors to the public. From June 29 to September 11, 1977, thousands of visitors are expected to cross the threshold of the Reception Centre in order to step back in time and for several hours experience the lifestyle of the years between 1780 and 1880.

Travelling in carts pulled by oxen or horses, or strolling along the village path, the visitors will be able to see the 46 buildings scattered over the 800-acre site. He will also see construction work in progress as the staff, dressed in clothing of yesteryear and using tools of the era, will be completing the new buildings.

Once inside the buildings, however, the visitor should pause to appreciate the simplicity of the furnishings, a simplicity imposed by the meagre financial resources of a dispersed people who had to know how to use their hands.

Research and the preservation of what remains of Acadian furnishings have been a constant concern for the past three years on the work site of the Village Historique Acadien. A team has been busy finding and collecting antique objects of Acadian origin.

It is impossible to place most of the collection simply by studying the work of furniture manufacturers of that time, or even by a thorough study of well-known cabinet makers.

Each head of the family, in addition to his many other jobs, was a cabinetmaker, constructing and supplying his family with the necessary furniture. Consequently, the approach taken by the preservation team at the Village Historique Acadien is the study of how it was made in relation to the tools which could have existed and especially those which an Acadian could have obtained at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

It is thus, for example, that it was discovered that most of the wooden pieces which normally would have been made with a lathe, in Acadia were made with a penknife or a bent knife.

In other respects, the preservation team must always retain, based on careful research, the traditional side of the nineteenth century Acadian. Isolated, deprived of everything these exiles from Port Royal retained certain techniques for a long time during the nineteenth century.

Thus, while in Quebec or in Southern New Brunswick there was a notable increase in styling furniture during this era, it was still pioneer type furniture which persisted in the Acadian regions.

With so many differences, the restoration of this furniture requires a very different technique from all other restoration projects. It is imperative when restoring Acadian furniture to use the same antiquated tools that the original makers employed.

Moreover, it is also necessary to reproduce the same errors that the early Acadian often made, due to his lack of experience and because he was principally occupied with the more urgent activities necessary for his family's survival.

Finally, it is important to remember the esthetic quality which the craftsman often attempted to create, despite his lack of talent.

The study of Acadian furniture is only in its primary stages and several other details are lacking in the analysis of this part of Acadian heritage. For example, very little is known about external influences.

It is not known to what extent the Acadian copied and modified what he discovered and saw in neighbouring regions. It is also difficult, for the moment, to evaluate and trace impact made by the North American Indian culture on the design of certain pieces of furniture.

However, it is known that the early Acadian was creative, using few tools and much imagination.

Scientists To Study Chemical

The battle against the spruce budworm took a new tack April 1 with a team of scientists from the University of New Brunswick starting a three-year, $400,000 study of the potential of a chemicial sex attractant known as a pheromone.

Effect of the chemical would be to confuse the male budworm during the mating season so that he would be attracted to the chemical sprayed over the forest rather than the female. The budworm population would then be reduced to manageable low levels.

Underwriting the work at UNB to fund research and development is the federal-provincial forestry agreement involving the Department of Natural Resources and the federal Department of Regional Economic Expansion. The study will be part of a continuing search for alternative methods of applied forest protection against the spruce budworm.

UNB biology professor W.D. Seabrook will head the research team. University chemistry professors J.A. Finlay and Z. Valenta and two members of the New Brunswick Research and Productivity Council, Dr. C.J. Wiesner and Dr. P. J. Silk, are the other members of the team.

The team has worked for several years to isolate and synthesize the pheromone and determine the receptor mechanism of the male moths.

Sex attractants have been successfully developed as control agents for some agricultural pests. They have the advantage of being relatively specific to pest species and therefore have little or no side effects.

The team proposes a three-year program of research and development on the potential of pheromones, particularly at epidemic levels and on the methodology of applying the material.

The research and development plan and its progress will come under the review of a steering committee under the chairmanship of R.S. Watson, Co-ordinator of Policy and Planning at the Department of Natural Resources. The committee will include scientists engaged elsewhere in related work and others experienced in managing and evaluating such research.

Agencies represented on the steering committee will include the Canadian Forestry Service, the National Research Council of Canada, Agriculture Canada, Universite de Moncton, Cornell University and the Department of Regional Economic Expansion.

Provincial and federal authorities have been encouraged to support this research by the recommendations of the Task Force for Evaluation of Budworm Control Alternatives submitted in November, 1975, by Dr. G.L. Baskerville.

Pheromones are considered to be one of the few alternatives to conventional insecticides capable of being developed within the next few years against forest insects.

Conference Explores Retirement Issues

"Retirement: Facts and Fallacies" is the theme of a one-day conference scheduled for May 13 at Keddy's Motor Inn, Fredericton.

Sponsored by the Pre-Retirement Planning Program of the New Brunswick Department of Labour and Manpower, the conference will provide participants with an opportunity to examine some of the services presently available to retirees and to explore possible further services.

The need for pre-planning of retirement will also be addressed and the services of the Department in Pre-Retirement Planning will be described.

The theme speaker for the conference is Mrs. Jacqueline Freedman, a Montreal social worker specializing in retirement. Conference participants will have an opportunity to discuss the topic with Mrs. Freedman following her remarks.

Following luncheon, the programs of several organizations dealing with retirees will be discussed by representatives of the groups. These discussions will be supplemented by displays and slides. A registration fee of $15 per person is being charged for the conference.

The Pre-Retirement Planning Program presents seminars where people can obtain information of value in planning retirement. The seminars feature guest speakers, films, workshops, and a handbook to help people prepare for the adjustment to retirement. Seminars are presented for the public and also in conjunction with employers throughout the Province. Almost 800 people have taken part in these seminars over the past two years.

Employers, labour organizations, universities, community groups, as well as interested individuals will find this conference of particular value in exploring concerns of retirement and also in providing suggestions for serving those people approaching retirement.

Further information concerning the conference can be obtained from the Pre-Retirement Program of the Department of Labour and Manpower in Fredericton or from the regional office of the Department in Bathurst.

"It's nice knowing I have one of the originals. People have realized that the Civic is a good car to buy. It's economical, and obviously people go to dealerships and test drive them and realize they are a great car."
Jennifer Read, Ottawa, Ontario.

"I'm an aeronautical engineer myself and know a bit about building cars and what-have-you. I find it's a real well-built car. It's put together with a lot of reason, too. The controls from your steering wheel ... dimming your lights, raising and lowering them, putting on your windshield wipers and putting the fluid on your windshield ... all controlled with finger control from your steering wheel. I think that's quite something."
Tommy Douglas, Huntsville, Ontario

"It's been slalomed ... It's been entered in 25 events. I've had it in a few rallies. It's not all a question of driving it to work. The engine itself has got a fairly good redline. You need that. You have to have an overhead camshaft because you have to be able to run up to about 7000 rpm's. The suspension is well suited, mainly because it's fully independent. And with front wheel drive..."
Reg Clayton, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

"All I do is, I drive it around at work and then I bring it home. I pick up trip tickets and post bulletins. And that's driving from Port Mann into New West, then over to North Vancouver, then down into the waterfront in Vancouver and then to three other places in the same road. So it's quite a lot of driving. When we took the car in for the 40,000 mile check, the guy said he couldn't believe that it didn't need some engine repairs or anything. All it needed was the oil changed."
Denise Waugh, Surrey, British Columbia.

Increase In Price Of Spirits, Wines

Prices of liquors and wines will increase effective April 1st says Alfred R. Landry, Chairman of the New Brunswick Liquor Corporation.

The increase reflects price increases by suppliers, increased transportation costs, and fluctuations in exchange rates. Price changes by suppliers of domestic brands have been approved by the Anti-inflation board. Imported brands are not subject to Anti-inflation Board guidelines.

Increases in prices vary according to price category and lower price categories are increased by seventy-five to eighty cents on Canadian Whiskey while Scotch Whiskies will increase by twenty-five to thirty cents. Gins are increased by ten to forty cents depending on brand. Rums will increase by forty to fifty cents and Vodkas will increase from ten to forty cents. These prices are for 25 oz. bottles. Other sizes will be increased proportionately.

Canadian table wines and ports are increased by fifteen to thirty cents.

Imported wine increases vary and some imported wines will be cheaper.

Mr. Landry added that beer prices remain the same.

Newest Gov't Budget Is Discouraging To Business

By J. A. Rioux

The March 16 budget brought down by Lawrence Garvie in the New Brunswick Legislature indicates once again that our government doesn't understand business. At a time when unemployment is touching 14 per cent, all the minister of finance could offer was a mishmash of small changes in the existing tax pattern that will only further discourage businesses in the province.

Doesn't the government, and particularly Mr. Garvie, realize that it is business that provides the jobs the province so badly needs? Admittedly, he and many of the other ministers are lawyers by profession but even they should realize that private sector employment opportunities exist because businessmen set up new stores, new barber shops, new garages, new factories.

If that unemployment rate is to be lowered, businessmen are going to have to establish new businesses or expand existing ones. The public sector can't do it. They have carried the ball for the past 10 or 15 years and, if anything, are more likely to contract slightly in the coming years rather than expand.

Yet, if the private sector is going to provide those jobs, then government budgets must not be negative in their impact upon business confidence. They must provide positive encouragement to the business community to set up new plans and employ more people. This the budget absolutely failed to do.

Business people are not altruistic and no more community minded than the rest of us. They are motivated by profit. They will establish a business or expand an existing one if by doing so they believe they can make money. This, if the provincial government wants to encourage business to provide the jobs that will reduce unemployment, it must make it easier for the businessman to make that profit.

Mr. Garvie will undoubtedly reply that he did just that. Didn't he lower the business property tax 25 cents a hundred and didn't he lower the corporation income tax for small business by one percentage point? Aren't these measures which help the small businessman? But he hasn't said he won't raise assessments next year to counter the 25-cent reduction!

Admittedly they are helpful but, equally, they offer far too little. The corporation tax reduction only helps those companies which are incorporated and many small businesses are not. Secondly; it only helps those who are making a profit, not those that aren't, and it's the ones who aren't that have most need. Thirdly, the change in rate is far too small to make any impression on business confidence. Business confidence isn't marginally low: it's very low.

The decrease in the business property tax will equally have little impact. It was obviously included as a palliative rather than a positive gesture of government awareness of the problems facing small business in this province and what could be done to correct them. The government wants business to provide more jobs, yet they can't or won't remove this gross injustice in the business tax system for the services the community provides that business, such as streets, sidewalks, fire protection, etc., which are legimate costs of doing business; the normal municipal property tax pays for those. It is a method by which the province raises revenue for general government purposes without a large political price tax attached.

Nor is it even related to a business ability to pay - it's a fixed cost on a business whether it is earning any revenue or not. It is a dead weight tax - a payment required of a business for which the business gets nothing in return. It is thus an obvious negative influence on business confidence.

There is a specific area where the government could have cut the tax completely and indicated it was really serious about wanting job creation. By doing so, it would have told businesses the government recognizes their problems and potential and encouraged them to do more.

It didn't, and today business has even less confidence than before the budget was presented. Pleas were unanswered. In consequence, even fewer jobs will be created and the province and Canada will be poorer.

But there is still time. The budget hasn't been passed. The government can still correct this wrong and encourage business to expand. Far better to admit the error and correct it than to have even higher unemployment later.

How To Tell Conservatives From Liberals

(Contributed)

Although to the casual glance Conservatives and Liberals may appear to be almost indistinguishable, here are some hints which should result in positive identification:

Liberals buy most of the books that have been banned somewhere. Conservatives form censorship committees and read them as a group.

Conservatives usually wear hats and almost always clean their paint brushes.

Liberals give their worn-out clothes to those less fortunate. Conservatives wear theirs.

Conservatives employ exterminators. Liberals step on the bugs.

Liberals name their children after currently popular sports figures, politicians and entertainers. Conservative children are named after their parents or grandparents, according to where the most money is.

Liberals keep trying to cut down on smoking, but are not successful. Neither are Conservatives.

Conservatives tend to keep their shades drawn, although there is seldom any reason why they should. Liberals ought to, but don't.

Conservatives study the financial pages of the newspaper. Liberals put them in the bottom of the bird cage.

Most of the stuff you see alongside the road has been thrown out of car windows by Liberals.

Conservatives raise dahlias, Dalmatians and eyebrows. Liberals raise Airedales, kids and taxes.

Liberals eat the fish they catch. Conservatives hang them on the wall.

Conservative boys date Liberal girls. They plan to marry Conservative girls, but feel they're entitled to a little fun first.

Liberals make up plans and then do something else. Conservatives follow the plans their grandfathers made.

Conservatives - some sleep in twin beds - some even in separate rooms. That is why there are more Liberals.

CB Channels Are Increased

Users of the General Radio Service (GRS, or CB as it is commonly known) are reminded by the Department of Communications that the number of channels available to them were increased from 22 to 40 on April 1.

This additional spectrum now is occupied by licensees in the Private Commercial Land Mobile Service. Although encouraged to apply for new frequency assignments, they have been given the option of remaining on their present assignments until they find it convenient or necessary to relocate. The department will not provide interservice interference protection.

In the interim period, GRS licensees using channel 23 and above are requested to cooperate where possible with existing licensees on these frequencies.

Those who use the General Radio Service are required to have a licence from the Department of Communications. All GRS equipment licensed in Canada must continue to conform to Canadian technical standards.

In Bathurst the licences can be obtained at the Department of Communications District office, 789 King Avenue.

Health Week Is Endorsed

The following is a statement issued by Health Minister Brenda Robertson endorsing the observance of National Health Week and World Health Day.

Observance of National Health Week, April 3-9, and World Health Day, April 7, again reminds us that health is a precious commodity.

New Brunswickers enjoy a comprehensive health care system but more can be done to prevent disease and disability. Traffic and domestic accidents, smoking and ill health, and drinking and driving, are some of the areas where preventive intervention can minimize hazards to health and safety. We all have a responsibility to maintain our health and avoid sickness and injury.

Immunization against common communicable diseases is available to the general public and it is wise to immunize children in order to prevent diseases and their complications. Prevention is still better than cure.

My department is therefore pleased to draw our citizens' attention to National Health Week and World Health Day and to emphasize the need to practice good health habits all year round.

ANN LANDERS

Locking Door Is No Hang-up

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently retired from the Marine Corps after 30 years of service – never married, but lived with a number of women. Six months ago, I took unto myself a bride. She is wonderful, but – here's the problem:

I have always considered the bathroom a private place. Not so the Mrs. She thinks I'm a prude because I am not completely open about ALL human functions.

When I lock the bathroom door she gets angry and screams, "When are you going to get over this ridiculous hang-up?"

I believe I am right. She insists I'm wrong – and says I need psychological help. You decide. – Impasse In Louisville.

DEAR IMPASSE: There is no right or wrong about such matters. Each individual must decide for himself what is acceptable. Whatever is acceptable is "right."

"In some marriages the Open Door Policy operates in every room in the house. If both parties like it that way it's nobody else's business.

Obviously you do NOT like it that way and your wishes should be respected. You are not in need of psychological help. Your wife is. A woman who is so grossly insensitive – not to mention domineering – that she would deny her husband this basic fundamental privacy should get her head checked.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Something very nice happened to me recently and I want to share it. My handicapped brother always wanted to see the country so I decided to take him to California and show him the time of his life. We live in Pennsylvania and a trip to the coast meant quite a lot of money. We are people of modest means and I couldn't afford it until recently.

When I went to the Greyhound bus station to purchase the tickets, I was informed I could ride free. All I needed was a written statement from by brother's doctor stating that he needed the assistance of another person in order to make the trip. Greyhound calls this their "Helping Hand Service."

Several Greyhound terminals along the way had specially built ramps, restrooms, handrails, water fountains and even telephone booths designed especially for handicapped people. You can't imagine what this means for individuals who are left out of so many things because the world forgets about them. Just sign me. – Grateful

DEAR GRATEFUL: In my 21 years of writing this column I have never endorsed a product or done a commercial – and I never will. But I am printing your letter to inform my readers of the generosity of Greyhound. I hope it's contagious.

DEAR ANN: I love what Dorothy Parker said when she and a catty woman friend approached an entranceway at the very same moment.

The "friend" stood aside, deferring to Miss Parker and meowed, "Age before beauty." Miss Parker stepped ahead and responded in honey-dripping tones, "Pearls before swine."

Where in the scriptures can that quote be found. – Still Laughing.

DEAR S. L.: The swine line is from the Book of Matthew, Chapter 7, Verse 6. "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you."

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex – Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Make A Fluffy Easter Nest

Easter time heralds a new season – balmy weather, Easter finery, fresh flowers and a plentiful supply of Easter eggs.

When planning your Easter menu, highlight it with this engaging dessert, Fluffy Easter Nest.

The cake is prepared with beaten egg whites and corn oil, so its texture is extremely light and delicate with an added plus of being low in saturated fat and cholesterol.

Bake the cake in a tube mold, frost with seven-minute frosting, garnish with tinted coconut and nestle colorful candy Easter eggs in the middle.

Place this fluffy Easter nest on the table as your centre piece where it will thrill the children and catch your whole family's fancy. This bright and delicious cake is sure to add a special charm to your Easter menu.

Ingredients: 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour; 1½ cups of sugar; 4 teaspoons baking powder; 1½ teaspoons salt; 4 egg whites; ¾ cup Mazola corn oil; 1 cup milk; 1½ teaspoons vanilla (and few drops of lemon extract if desired).

Method: Spray a 12-cut gelatin ring mould with cooking spray. (Mazola No Stick cooking spray).

Sift flour, ¾ cup of the sugar, baking powder and salt together in a large bowl. Beat egg whites in separate mixing bowl until soft peaks form. Gradually add remaining ¾ cup sugar, beating until mixture forms stiff peaks. Transfer meringue to a large bowl.

Make a well in dry ingredients. Add corn oil and ½ cup milk. Beat one minute at medium speed or 100 strokes by hand. Add remaining milk and vanilla. Beat another minute.

Pour batter into meringue, gently folding until blended. Turn into sprayed mold. Bake in a 350 degree F oven for 30 - 35 minutes, or until cake springs back when touched with finger. Frost with seven-minute frosting and decorate with tinted coconut.

Note: For a smaller mold, fill it to about 1½ inches from top. Use balance of batter to make cupcakes.

Seven-minute frosting: Combine 2 egg whites, ½ cup Crown Brand corn syrup, ½ cup sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt in double boiler top. Beat slightly with electric mixer or rotary beater. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat constantly until stiff peaks form when beater is raised, about 3 - 4 minutes. Remove from boiling water. Continue beating 1 minute. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat well.

Note: To tint coconut, place coconut into screw-top jar, with a little food coloring. Shake well, until colored.

Dye Easter Eggs With Rit

Why not help out the Easter bunny this year my making colorful blown eggs!

To begin with, use clean, white, fresh eggs. Using a large needle, make a small hole in one end of the egg and a slightly larger hole at the other. Also pierce the yolk.

Then, blow into the smaller hole until the raw egg comes out the larger hole. A drinking straw can be used for the blowing. Just be sure to place one end of the straw directly over the smaller hole.

Rinse the egg out well with water and allow to air-dry.

To prepare the dyebath, add ¼ package of Rite Dye to 4 cups of hot tap water.

Dip egg in dyebath and turn slowly until the desired color is obtained. Be sure to keep eggs immersed in dyebath for even coloring.

Once dyed, the "eggs" may be arranged in an Easter basket, hung as a mobile with contrasting ribbon, or even carefully cut open to reveal miniature flower arrangements.

Ooops!.. some eggshells are broken?

This gives an unique opportunity to create an "eggshell mosaic."

Draw or trace a design onto item to be decorated (box, bottle, piece of wood, etc.). Working on a small area at a time, apply glue to design. Press eggshell pieces into place until flat and glue adheres.

New Rite For Eucharist Is Topic Of Guest Speaker

Eight members were present at the March 16 regular monthly meeting of the R.E.O. Branch Anglican Church Women held in the R.E.O. Centre.

President Donna Baker was chairman. In the absence of the secretary, the minutes were read by Mrs. Kathleen Brown. Mrs. Baker gave the treasurer's report for Mrs. Hazel Carroll.

Correspondence included two letters, one from Diocesan President Mrs. Winnie Smith regarding the annual Diocesan ACW meeting to be held this year in Saint John at St. Luke's Church.

The second item, from the constitution committee of the Diocesan ACW, also contained the newly-revised 1977 constitution.

Several committee chairmen presented reports. Mrs. Margaret Murphy reported on the Girls' Day of Prayer, and a financial statement was received from the social action chairman, Mrs. Gloria Knowles.

Mrs. Murphy was elected to the Christian education committee of Synod, following motion by Mrs. Maxine Goodspeed, seconded by Mrs. Sybil Hills.

It was agreed that Mrs. Good speed be given authority to purchase cards to be sent to sick and shut-in persons.

May 14 was set for the spring rummage sale to be held in the church hall at 1 p.m.

Members were reminded that the April meeting will take the form of a bring-and-buy sale. Gloria Knowles will act as auctioneer.

Archdeacon R. H. Murphy, special guest for the meeting, spoke on the new Canadian rite of the eucharist for the "people of God."

This rite may be used as an alternative to the prayer book rite, at the discretion of the rector. The new rite was used at the corporate communion service for the REO-ACW, Young Adults and G.A. at 9 a.m. on March 27.

Following Archdeacon Murphy's careful explanation and considerable discussion, the meeting was adjourned, preceded by prayers led by Mrs. Baker.

After adjournment, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Knowles provided refreshments and the vice-president Mrs. Goodspeed conducted a Bible quiz.

A dinner was served at 7 p.m., after which a social evening took place, including singing with Glen Hatheway supplying accompaniment on his guitar.

A long-time friend, Raymond Deschenes, was in charge of the signing of a large birthday card drawn by their daughter-in-law, Sharon Olscamp.

Micro Wave Draw Apr. 16

The drawing on the Micro Wave oven by the Bathurst Jaycette Club has been postponed a week and will take place on Saturday April 16.

The decision by the Jaycettes to hold the drawing at a later date is due to the fact that many people would be away during the Easter weekend.

Quality Beef For Canadians

A consistent improvement has been recorded in livestock quality over the years.

Canadian producers of meat animals are constantly striving to improve the output from their farms and ranches to meet the ever-increasing consumer demand for protein-rich delicious red meats.

The revised beef grading system, implemented in September, 1972 is a further effort to provide consumers with the type of beef most in demand.

Grading statistics indicate an increase in the proportion of youthful carcasses falling in the leaner categories. Hog producers are also extremely quality conscious, working to produce hog carcasses with an increasing proportion of edible meat.

The common wiping cloth only transfers bacteria from one place to another; it does not clean. The common wiping cloth should be avoided.

The South Side Story

Mrs. Gerald Imhoff and children Bradley, Christopher, Kimberley and Jody of South Teteagouche left this week for Basingstoke, Hampshire, England, to visit her parents, Mr and Mrs. J. W. Davis. Minerals: The Building Blocks Of Civilization

A revised and updated 1977 edition of the 64-page booklet "What Mining Means to Canada" has been issued by the Mining Association of Canada. The four-color publication, in text, pictures, drawings and maps, covers all facets of Canada's mining industry.

A condensation follows of sections of the booklet which indicated the importance of the industry to the country as a whole.

Mining is truly a national industry in Canada. Exploration, development and production are carried on from ocast to coast and reach into remote inland and far-northern areas of the country.

The industry generated, directly and indirectly, a large amount of economic activity that know no provincial, regional or local boundaries, bringing benefits to Canadians in all parts of the country.

Mining companies, because of the non-renewable nature of the mineral resources, tend to re-invest very substantial sums out of revenues in order to ensure continued development of Canada's mineral wealth.

These two major characteristics of mining illustrate why the industry occupies an integral, even critical, position in the overall national economy.

WIDE IMPACT

A successful mining operation sends out ripples into the economic mainstream, creating jobs, activation and supporting vast transportation and communications networks, providing markets for a wide variety of Canadian-produced goods and services, causing increased flows of tax revenues to all levels of government. And, since Canadian minerals are exported around the world, mining is a major earner of trade dollars for the country.

While a successful mine multiplies its impact throughout the economy, it also leads to still more mineral development. A mining organization cannot stand still because a mineral deposit under production is a depleting resource. Hence, most mining companies plow back substantial amounts of profits into exploration and further development. Even those dividends that are paid out of profits often are re-invested by recipients in new mining ventures.

New communities arise, old ones are sustained and expanded through the mining, smelting and refining of Canadian minerals.

Canada leads the world in per capita annual mineral production. Directly and indirectly, mining generates employment for more than nine percent of Canada's total labor force, and wages are the highest of any industrial segment.

As the Western World's second largest producer of major metals and minerals, Canada will depend in the future on the ability of the mining industry to compete in world markets. This international competitiveness can only be maintained if the necessary encouragement is provided for mineral development in Canada. Such encouragement would in turn ensure that Canadians will continue to enjoy the widespread benefits flowing from mineral production and export trade.

ROLE OF MINERALS

The products we need and those that make life more comfortable - nearly all depend directly or indirectly on minerals taken from the earth.

Minerals are the often unseen life-support system of the modern world. Without them, the way of life we know would be impossible.

Food and water supply, shelter, clothing, health aids, transportation and communication, a wide variety of products used at home, at play and at work, all depend on the mineral industry.

We can see products made from minerals in the kitchen and on the dining table: stoves, refrigerators, toasters, utensils of various kinds and cutlery. Nickel, copper, stainless steel and silver are not only necessary to good eating habits but add to our convenience and enjoyment as well.

But that is only the contribution of minerals at the end of the food chain - the long, complicated road that starts with the seed in the ground and ends with food on our table.

Plants supply all our food, either directly as plants, or indirectly as food for animals which, in turn, provide us with dairy products and with meat. Growing plants depend on minerals in the soil - potash, phosphate, sulphur - which are called fertilizers. Mineral plant fertilizers, or plant foods, are necessary to produce abundant crops.

That is just a start. The farmer's truck, tractor, cultivator, harvester and other machines are made from steel and other metal products, and many are powered by mineral fuels (petroleum products such as gasoline and oil). And food products from the farm must be shipped to processors or to markets, and they move in trucks, railway cars and planes made of steel, stainless steel, copper and titanium. Food processing is done in metal equipment, using metal machinery and food packing often consists of metal containers.

MANY USES

Back at home, we obtain instant water by turning a tap, sanitary water for good health, cleanliness and comfort. While most of the water-supply pipes, plumbing parts, pumps and reservoirs, as well as the waste disposal system, are hidden from view, they are made almost entirely from mineral materials.

Our clothing, too, depends on the production of minerals. Natural fibres must be grown with the aid of mineral fertilizers. Synthetic textiles are derived from coal, petroleum, salt and other materials taken from the earth. Many pigments and colouring dyes are also dependent on mineral materials.

Homes, apartments, office buildings and factories - all the structures that shelter us - are not only built from the mineral products of pits, quarries and metal mines, but can only function efficiently with the use of equipment made possible by minerals. Modern buildings use pipes, electric cables and telephone wires, metal ducts, air-conditioning and heating units, motors and pumps, chairs, desks and many items of hardware that depend in whole or in part on minerals.

Perhaps the role of minerals is nowhere more dramatic and exciting than in transportation and communication. Mineral-based technology has shrunk the world in size - we travel more easily and faster, and are in touch with all corners of the earth as never before.

Huge amounts of copper, lead, zinc, nickel, iron ore, titanium, and of non-metals such as concrete, sand, gravel and asbestos, and of petroleum fuels from the earth are used in man's highly complex and far-ranging network of roads, rail lines, air routes, radio and television facilities that have made the world a "global village". A highly specialized metals and fuels have made possible explorations in space and journeys to the moon and beyond.

As we can see, the products of our mines go directly to make usable equipment or consumer products; they are also used in combination with one another for special purposes, and they are often combined with non-minerals materials.

Each and every product, of course, does not necessarily come from minerals. But it is the output of our mines that makes just about every other product possible, from wood to plastic. Modern industry, no matter what is being made, is housed in buildings constructed of mineral products (structural materials and metals); industry uses machines (made of metals) and its power comes from other minerals (coal, petroleum, uranium).

We depend on minerals. They are the "building blocks of civilization."

City's Impact Study Presented Cabinet

Mayor John A. Duffy, on behalf of Bathurst City Council, this morning presented the following brief to the New Brunswick Cabinet concerning the Bathurst Impact Study and Future of Northeastern New Brunswick. In addition to delegation of councillors City Manager Pierre Marquis and Engineer Geoff Greenough were also in the capital for the presentation.

Mr Premier and Honourable Ministers:

We would like to express our gratitude to you for meeting with us today to continue our constructive dialogue on the future of Bathurst and Northeastern New Brunswick. As we will indicate in our brief presentation today, we believe that the future of these areas are measurelessly intertwined. Furthermore, we are confident that what we have to say regarding this part of the Province and our proposals for joint action here, are immediately relevant to all or most other communities in New Brunswick.

CONTEXT AND PURPOSE

Following a number of discussions of the Bathurst Tri-Level Committee in early 1976, it was decided to commisssion a study to determine the best approach to manage future growth impacts on the City of Bathurst and its region. Specifically, the project was designed to produce an implementable report to show how the people of Bathurst and region have been affected by growth, how future growth and its allocation will affect them, and how the growth should be managed.

The project covered a great diversity of subjects related to Bathurst's past, present and future including regional economic development itself, housing, commercial floor-space needs, the viability of Bathurst's central business district, the regional role of the City, municipal finance, urban form and the underlying planning process. While some eighty-three (83) recommendations were made they may be collapsed into one general proposition which we endorse, and which we would like to place before you today. That is:

That the future prosperity and quality of life in Bathurst and the communities throughout Northeastern New Brunswick should be planned together in a cooperative process between the Province, Bathurst and these communities and that the Province should expedite in every way possible, through its policies, funding and agencies, the well-being and regional role of Bathurst as the ecoromic and social focus of Northeastern New Brunswick.

The way in which this can be done is set out in the study's report in a series of action-oriented implementation measures for the City of Bathurst and the Province, with selective participation recommended for federal agencies.

The recommendations fall into three major and basic sets of interrelated issues identified by the study:

1. Regional economic development;
2. The role of Bathurst as an urban environment and as a regional centre;
3. Municipal finance.

Following extensive investigation of these, a development alternative for Bathurst and the Bathurst region is proposed.

DEVELOPMENT ALTERNATIVE

The development alternative selected and fully supported by the City involves various policy packages and has five basic components:

(I) Focussing of regional economic growth on Bathurst.

This is a policy of focussing most of the manufacturing, commercial, and all major institutional development in the regional center. More resource based industries, some recreation activities, and personal service activities will automatically locate where their markets are. Aside from this, the growth anticipated for the Bathurst region over the next decade is not very substantial and the provincial government must adopt a specific economic location policy to focus the major part of regional economic growth in Bathurst to purposely harness this growth in order to stimulate and compliment the growth and advancement of the region as a whole.

(II) Redevelopment of the City's Central Business District.

The success of Bathurst as a recognized urban opportunity is intimately bound up with the concentration, vitality, and attractiveness of the central area. Although the size difference between Bathurst and the next largest center is considerable, magnifying its regional importance, and assuring its role as a regional center, there currently is very little in the central area to attract and hold city residents, let alone regional residents, for social, civic, and cultural events. Bathurst's waterfront location offers unique opportunities for redevelopment.

(III) Rationalization of the Structure of Development in Bathurst.

The curtailment of Development in the fringe areas and concentration of growth in the infill areas is a necessity long recognized by the City but politically impossible within the current context of planning around the City.

(IV) Sucization of the Regional Settlement System.

Urban settlements must be restricted to the major villages. This would rationalize regional development and increase the functional status of these villages creating better prospects for middle order commuercial and personal services to the public.

(V) Selected Amendments in Municipal Finance Procedures and Supporting Grants to the City of Bathurst.

The implementation of these policies would lead to a reduction in the level of necessary transfers to the City from the Province over the longer term. However, the economies associated with the present development policies and the high costs to the City of providing basic municipal infrastructure (water, sewers, and road improvements), for the area annexed in 1966 jeopardize the City's financial ability to catch up on the backlog of community facilities which would serve both local and regional needs.

As previously stated, the study covered a wide diversity of subjects and recommended action-oriented measures for both the City and the Province to implement. Here we will highlight some of these recommendations which we feel to be particularly important and which require an early commitment from the provincial government.

Regional Economic Prospects

1. There is little prospect under the most likely conditions of regional economic growth for substantial improvement in the unemployment situation in the Bathurst region. The rate of growth of employment over the next five years will be relatively small. Therefore, the regional development efforts by the federal and provincial governments should be vigorously expanded in order to reduce the rate of involuntary unemployment in the Bathurst region.

2. The focus of economic development efforts by the Province, the federal government, and regional promotion authorities should be upon urban based economic sectors with increasing emphasis on government services, commercial services, and major retail and wholesale enterprises. The federal decentralization project which will be locating the Unemployment Insurance Commission Annuities Branch in Bathurst is a prime example.

3. Access to Bathurst from the region, the province, and the country is one of the major obstacles to the City's role as a regional center. Linear sprawl along the highways leading into Bathurst, two 2-lane bridges entering the central business district, and the lack of air service are major problems. Upgrading of highways, and bridge crossings in Bathurst and the region, and air service to Northeastern New Brunswick through Bathurst are priorities.

Housing in Bathurst

4. The Department of Municipal Affairs, New Brunswick Housing Corporation, and the City must investigate means of increasing the City's capability of controlling the rate, nature and location of development in the City. These investigations should concentrate on positive incentives to encourage development which will comply with the locational policy.

5. The N.B.H.C. and the City must initiate a land assembly program in defined "infill areas" to:

(A) Bring more land on the market,

(B) Initiate concerted development of the infill areas,

(C) Make Bathurst more competitive as a residential location,

(D) Provide more residential assessment, and

(E) Support the commercial and cultural redevelopment program for the central area.

Water and Sewage Services

6. The City, since amalgamation, has concentrated on satisfying domestic demands to the annexed areas without adequate assistance. Major expenditures are urgently required, particularly on the water system to ensure an adequate and reliable supply sufficient for institutional, industrial, and fire fighting purposes. Presently, the City is calling tenders for the expansion and improvement of the water treatment plant facilities and have made application to the Community Improvement Corporation for funding. Other major system deficiencies are noted in the water supply for the Industrial Park, L'Ecole Nepisiguit, Chaleur General Hospital, and the Village of Beresford. The province and federal governments must assist the City in providing the necessary major water system improvements, and the completion of watermains and sanitary sewers to meet the domestic requirements of built up residential areas.

Commercial Development

7. The provincial government should adopt a policy to locate their leased space or new buildings of commercial or office development in the City's central business district.

Recreation Facilities and Urban Amenities

8. Regional recreation facilities and general urban amenities should be given priority and expanded in Bathurst and should include an athletics complex with an arena, swimming pool and indoor facilities for handicrafts and senior citizens.

9. The management and development of major urban amenities should be a shared responsibility of the provincial and municipal governments.

10. Municipal financial issues are of great concern throughout Canada. The most recent evidence of this is to be found in the Report of the Tri-Level Task Force on Public Finance (February, 1976). In New Brunswick, municipal finance continues to be the subject of debate and on-going research. The investigations from this

RETIRES AFTER 38 YEARS OF SERVICE

Rumble Olscamp (left) is congratulated by M.R. Cater, woodlands manager of Bathurst Division, Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd., as he officially ends almost 40 years of continuous service with the company.

The occasion was a social function held last week at the staff house where fellow-employees and other woods industry people gathered to wish Mr. Olscamp a happy retirement and present him with tokens of appreciation.

Some 38 years ago, Mr. Olscamp left Consolidated Paper (now a parent of C-BL) in Grand'Mere, P.Q. after 9 years for the Gaspe Coast as a scaler for the then Bathurst Power and Paper Co. Ltd. That means 47 years in the sealing business.

In the early days of his career, Mr. Olscamp was called upon to act as first aid man, clerk, store keeper as well as scaler for some 130 men. Today, the scaling department's responsibility is to measure quantities of wood for pay and inventory purposes.

In 1952, Mr. Olscamp came to Bathurst as chief scaler with his wife Marie-Ange, and remained in that capacity until the end of March. Among his associates he was well-known as a fair but firm man who was not afraid of hard work.

With him, Mr. Olscamp takes his chair (an antique from Montreal office) plus the admiration and friendship of his employers and colleagues.

Mr. Olscamp will keep active at his camp and in his fur-trading business as well as following the progress of his family of five children and seven grandchildren. The Olscamps have three sons, John, Moncton; Denis, Sept Iles, P.Q.; Gilles, Bathurst, and two daughters, Claire, Mrs. Joe Hudgins, and Celine, Mrs. Ian Jamieson, both of Bathurst.

Harvey Coming To Town In May

Community Theatre Inc. announced this week the performance dates for its latest undertaking, a three-act comedy written by Mary Chase.

"Harvey" will be presented at Nepisiguit High School Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 10 and 11, beginning at 8 p.m. each night.

The play, which has a cast of 12, is directed by Lynn Draper who is assisted by Steven Jamieson.

Meanwhile, the group is still looking to rent warehouse space for the building of sets, and to borrow furniture from the 1940 period. Anyone who can help in this regard is asked to phone Steve at 548-4820 or Gail at 548-8004.

POND FAREWELL

The death of a former Bathurst resident, Robert Asprey, 29, which occurred suddenly on Feb. 19, curtailing a useful current career and a promising future was the source of much sorrow and regret.

Many messages expressing such sentiments were received by his wife Helen and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Asprey, now of Shawville, P.Q.

One of the most impressive tributes to the manager of the Maritime Better Business Bureau was from Dorothy Grant of the Halifax CBC "Information Morning" show, which has recently come to our attention. It was part of the program's Feb. 22nd broadcast and reads as follows:

"During the last three years hardly a week passed that I haven't talked with Rob Asprey. It had become almost automatic to pick up the phone and call him whenever I had concerns about a wide range of consumer-related matters.

"Almost from our first meeting I liked and respected Rob. And no matter how busy he was, he would always take the time to give me pertinent information and further sources of help.

"I knew his work was extremely demanding and frequently frustrating. On many occasions he told me candidly how much he wished it was possible to resolve all the problems that arrived at his office.

"But he never gave up attempting to help consumers and the business world resolve their differences amicably. And he was keenly aware of the need to educate consumers so fewer of us would be victimized in the market palce.

"Rob was a kind, gentle man, who gave long hours to his work. For me he was special because he truly cared. I'll miss him very much because he had become a friend as well as a colleague.

"But his death has far greater ramifications for me because it means we have lost a capable and dedicated spokesman who did his level best to make each of our lives just a little better!"

BALLOT BOX SCORE

As the deadline nears for filing of nomination papers for the May 9 municipal election - it's this coming Sat., Apr. 16, at 12:00 o'clock noon - several more present city councillors have indicated their intentions of re-offering.

The latest to inform The Northern Light of this fact is Jim MacLaggan, of Burns Ward; and Bob Hodgins and Val Saulnier, both of Hachey Ward.

A third contender in Hachey Ward is Wayne Lambert, originally of Toronto. He is the owner and operator of Wayne's Hide-Away, a beverage room located on Miramichi Ave., and is married to the former Mary Caissie of South Bathurst.

So, as it stands now, there are three candidates for the mayoralty: Incumbent Mayor John Duffy; Deputy Mayor Pat McLaughlin and Conrad Coughlan, a school principal who previously served as a city councillor.

Running again are Councillors Douglas Williamson, in Coffyn Ward; Joe MacNeil in Kent Ward; and Henry Murphy in Ryan Ward. A newcomer in Coffyn Ward is Hugh Campbell, and seeking a return to the council table after an absence is Hilaire Brideau, of Michaud Ward.

Coun. J. P. Lavoie of Kent Ward has yet to make a declaration one way or the other, while Coun. Terry Lenihan is stepping down as representative of Michaud Ward, where he no longer resides. Also, he has no political ambitions at this time.

Adding it all up, there are openings for additional candidates in Kent Ward and no contests are yet assured in Burns, Coffyn, Michaud and Ryan Wards.

At time of writing nomination papers have been filed by only two candidates: John A. Duffy and Wayne Lambert, although it is understood that forms had been issued to numerous other persons.

Home Improvement Funds Yet Available

Residents of Ryan Ward have been urged by Bathurst City Council to apply for the available funds under the Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program before the monies are delegated to Neighbourhood Improvement Program areas in other cities.

Reporting on the Six Cities committee meeting with Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellette recently, Councillor Valmond Saulnier stated there is $300,000 available to those wishing to improve their properties in the NIP area, located in Ryan Ward, but the money will go elsewhere if not used.

"Other cities in New Brunswick are very hungry for R.R.A.P. dollars, and there is a $520,000 buffer reserved and available to those communities who get there first. Only about $57,000 has been applied for in Ryan Ward, and the residents should go after the remainder."

He stated the problems encountered in getting a co-ordinator for the program had been pointed out during the meeting with the minister, and it was hoped this would be taken into consideration.

Elaborating on the subject David Brewster, local NIP-RRAP co-ordinator, revealed the following facts:

The Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program began in May, 1976, and loans were approved to an amount of $71,000 between August and December 31, 1976.

On April 1, 1977, Bathurst received a $300,000 allocation for loans during 1977. To date nearly $80,000 of this amount has been approved.

Loan applications are increasing steadily with the approach of the construction season.

And, reiterating Coun. Saulnier's advice, Mr. Brewster emphasized that homeowners within the NIP area, or Ryan Ward, (South Bathurst) are encouraged to make use of these funds while RRAP is in effect.

TRUE TO TREND

As darkly predicted after the Rene Levesque victory last fall, Quebeckers are pulling out. It's described as not quite an exodus but more than a trickle.

And, incidentally, applications for employment are being received by Bathurst industrial organizations from French as well as English-speaking residents of La Belle Province.

One person who drove here last week for a personal interview told a company official that both he and his wife are fluently bilingual. However, they did not want to bring up their children in an environment where indications are it will only be possible for them to learn one language.

And while the move of head offices and Montreal's decline as a financial centre continues, there is still a feeling among the heads of large corporations that the PQ will not be "so myopic" as to drive them out.

Says Bill Turner, president of Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd.: "They need us more than we need them." However, they could be pushed to leave if English is removed as the principal language of work in a head office.

Jean de Grandpre, chairman of the board of Bell Canada says: "To deny this self-evident economic fact is to doom Montreal to a more or less lingering sclerosis."

New Community Groundwork Laid

Lorne has been thinking about development for the future for a long time, according to Rev. Fernand Albert, resident pastor, at the community forum in February.

Over 100 citizens attending decided it was time to do something concrete about it. They drew up a symbol for Lorne depicting its past, present and future, and titled it "United we stand - together we will work".

This week the people of Lorne are taking a major step forward in achieving the development with the help of 75 professionals from all over Canada and the US. The citizens are taking a look at the village to decide what they want for its future.

Five areas of development are being studied: education, community life, services, business and industry, and agriculture.

A major step in the self-study process is determining what the problems are that have prevented the accomplishments of these dreams. "This is probably the most painful step as you look at yourselves," said Steve Allen, of the Institute of Public Affairs, the sponsoring agency for the week-long consult.

When the problems and their causes are determined, the solutions will be proposed by the consultants and the citizens.

Part of the Institute staff will then remain in Lorne for two years to help the citizens implement the solutions.

The idea of consults was formulated long before any of the Institute staff arrived in Lorne. "Eighteen months ago we decided on a plan to help humanity by working with the human factor at the local level.

"We chose 24 sites, one for each hour of the day, in which to establish a human development project and set three years as a goal for implementation of the programs in each community.

"Lorne is number 20 and it looks like we will have all 25 at the end of 24 months. The program deals with building from the bottom up. It's no good to have outsiders come in and impose a program. Human development is futile without the participation of the local people", Mr. Allen concluded.

The citizens of Lorne have been turning out all week to participate in the consult and give their input. The consult began with Sunday night welcoming with over 700 in attendance.

Maurice Harquail, MP, Barry Hickey, Allan Young and Father Albert welcomed the consultants and the citizens. The enthusiasm was at a high point when the flag was presented by Lorne by Mr. Harquail.

Issues Appeal For Volunteers

The Bathurst Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada today issued a plea for volunteers for the 1977 MS Carnation Day fund drive which will be held the week before Mother's Day, May 8.

Miss Lucille Arseneau the chapter's campaign chairman, said, "We need volunteers to sell flowers at shopping centres, and in the downtown areas and to help deliver bouquets to those who have already ordered for Mother's Day."

Miss Arseneau pointed out that the Bathurst Chapter this year hopes to raise $500.00 as part of the $715,000 goal set by the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada for medical research. She said that last year the Society had raised a substantial amount above the previous year, but that the growth record would have to be maintained if science is to find an effective control for MS.

Right now, Miss. Arseneau said, we don't know the cause of MS, or a cure for it, but many researchers feel science is getting closer to some answers. Anyone wishing to volunteer for the campaign should call the Bathurst Chapter at 546-2638.

Multiple Sclerosis is a chronic, potentially crippling disease that most often strikes between the ages of 20 to 40.

City's

study indicate that, even within an environment of considerable municipal financial problems, Bathurst has its own particular pressing concerns relating to the effects of annexation, and its regional role in Northeast New Brunswick. These must be addressed through a mixture of stimulation grants, amended formulae (especially density related) and general development agreement funding for future strategic development purposes.

11. The Province should consider the establishment of a central authority responsible for the provision of water and sewer utilities, the fastest growing municipal expenditure.

12. Total debt outstanding for the City of Bathurst must not increase at a rate faster than the long-run growth of assessed valuation.

13. The Province must review its method of calculating approval for net municipal expenditure and incorporate the latest municipal budget estimates for unconditional grant purposes.

14. The Province must reconsider the application of its grant formula (including annexation grants) to low density areas such as the City of Bathurst.

15. All lands located within defined infill areas must be assessed at true market value reflecting the increased residential development potential conferred by access to trunk services and municipal policy through zoning.

The Role and Urban Environment of Bathurst

16. It is recommended that the Province designate Bathurst as the strategic regional center for the Bathurst Region.

17. The Province must expand its commitment to regional planning through the preparation and announcement of a provincial-regional planning program, the allocation of resources, and the recruitment of senior planning staff.

18. As part of a nucleated development program for the region, all aspects of the General Development Agreement and all provincial and federal agency policies and programs must support the process of selective, nucleated growth.

19. A full, candid identification of the public costs of dispersed rural development must be made public and widely publicized. In a poor province such as New Brunswick where public funds are restricted, it is extremely important that we make the best use of these funds.

20. The Province must consider the regionalization of taxation for selected major urban services and — or selected shared cost programs in recognizing the regional role Bathurst plays. Increasingly, Bathurst will be providing commercial, social services, recreation and other facilities to serve the Region, while at the same time the major potential revenue sources for Bathurst such as mining and other resourced-based industries and much of the residential construction is increasingly incurring beyond the municipal limits.

21. Outside of residential rehabilitaton for farm buildings, federal — provincial Housing assistance must be exclusively concentrated on the identified key villages and the city.

The Regional Center - Bathurst

22. Sufficient funding must be provided for a Central Business District redevelopment scheme. The announcement of 500 to 600 new jobs to be located in the heart of Bathurst's central business district as part of the federal government's decentralization program, offers much potential for private investment in the redevelopment of the area, this has been recognized by the Tri-Level Committee and, more importantly by the merchants and property owners in this district who have agreed to share in the cost of such a scheme with the three levels of government.

23. The Province must jointly study with the City the location for the replacement of the Nepisiguit River Bridge. The community plan, which was adopted in 1971 after consultation with the then Department of Highways, indicated that the Nepisiguit River Bridge should be relocated further north providing a direct link to the central area, avoiding the congestion of the built-up residential area of Murray Avenue and the passage through the Consolidated-Bathurst industrial complex. The Province has indicated in writing on two occasions that this bridge would be replaced in 1977 and although we realize that this will not happen, it is none the less an immediate requirement. An immediate decision on the bridge location is of major importance to the central business district.

THE BASIC STEPS

These selected recommendations directed as they are in the main, toward the provincial government, may be summarized into a small number of basic steps.

First, a commitment to encourage further substantial economic development in the region, and to focus growth on Bathurst through ennunciated policy and concerted public programs.

Second, a provincial constraint on scattered developments immediately beyond Bathurst's boundaries and outside of selected major villages.

Third, provincial initiatives in municipal finance to redress the imbalances in Bathurst's expenditures pursuant to annexation and to assist the

Good Timing

For making its recent announcement of a substantial rate increase, the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission could not have chosen a more opportune time.

On the very same day, either by accident or design, the NBEPC counterpart in Nova Scotia announced an increase so outrageous and so punitive to the consumer that our own 16 percent rise seemed almost benign by comparison.

But while higher costs are relative to the problems in other jurisdictions, so is the question of electrical rates in terms of what consumers can pay and what they should be prepared to pay. In the case of electricity, enough is already too much.

For, while public power officials are content to shrug and express the attitude that consumers cannot expect the impossible of them and their systems, the fact is that our society as it exists today was built on both the premise and the promise of power that was at least reasonable in its availability.

Now, that this is clearly no longer the case, it behooves the regions's leaders to do more than express their sympathy to those who may soon be unable to afford basic heat and light.

There must be planning and action befitting the emergency nature of our energy plight. In this direction, solar, wind and tidal power must all be examined. Not in the lackadaisical manner they have been in the past, but in terms of meeting a genuine crisis head-on.

Faced with other pressing cost increases for food, gasoline and shelter, the Atlantic Provinces' consumers should expect more concern from those people they have elected.

Matter Of Choice

Isn't it amazing how often Canadians select the wrong persons to do things?

In New Brunswick, we have the Conservatives in power and they are making a mess of administrating, according to the Opposition.

The same applies to the Federal Government. If Pierre Trudeau would only step aside, all our problems would be solved either by Joe Clark or Ed Broadbent.

At least that is what people are led to believe when listening to the PC and NDP leaders or their supporters.

Why, we even sent the wrong person down to Washington when Mr. Trudeau went to speak to the United States House of Representatives.

Plans for the PM's visit were made with great care well ahead of time. His speech was carefully written and delivered exceptionally well.

Mr. Trudeau performed admirably in every way, but was he the proper person to send? Perhaps we should have commissioned Brian Davies, head man of the anti-seal-hunt gang.

Without any publicity or fanfare, Mr. Davies went to the Capitol and was able to persuade the US House of Representatives to pass a resolution censuring the seal hunters of Newfoundland.

Yes, Canadians, it would appear, frequently select the wrong person to do a job. We should have airlifted Pierre Elliott to the ice floes with Brigitte to look lovingly at the little seal pups, and Brian Davies should have gone to Washington to speak for Canada.

Who Benefits?

Jack Fenety of Fredericton is the president of the Miramichi Salmon Association. From time to time he suggests ways that the salmon may be saved. He has spoken out against commercial fishing of salmon in the rivers and bays of the Atlantic Provinces. He has condemned the poachers.

And now he advocates that commercial salmon fishing by the fishermen of Newfoundland must be stopped. This, he maintains, is a greater cause for depletion of the salmon stocks than poaching.

It is a well-known fact that the salmon stocks have been depleted and that steps must be taken to remedy this unfortunate situation. Hearing Mr. Fenety travelling near and far to urge all people to join in the salmon-saving program, fosters admiration for this man who is willing to give so much time to such a worthy crusade.

There is only one thing that does not add up as it should. This is the fact that Mr. Fenety, in all his campaigning to save the salmon, does not mention the salmon that the sports fishermen catch or that sports fishing of salmon should be banned for a time.

This jars people just a bit but not quite as much as finding out that the organization which Mr. Fenety heads the Miramichi Salmon Fishing Association, has its headquarters in New York City.

While Mr. Fenety is undoubtedly working to save the salmon, the question which comes to mind is this: Who for?

Interference From CB Radios Rapped

Bathurst, N.B.
April 4, 1977

Would you please allow me space in your valued newspaper for a few comments and criticisms about CB radios in this area.

I used to live in Ryan Place, or the old hospital, and television programming from CHSJ and CHAU was interrupted each and every night from about 7 p.m. to midnight by these radios.

I understand, Mr. Editor, that some clown put an antenna on the roof at Ryan Place to make sure no one but he got any reception whatsoever. I believe the rest of the tenants took it for granted that reception in general was poor.

Is it fair for people to spend six or seven hundred dollars for a T.V. set to improve reception only to have these so-called CB radio idiots disrupt our television channels?

Shippegan Bridge Issue Is Revived

Shippegan, N.B.
April 9, 1977

According to the report of the members of the Town Council of Shippegan at their monthly meeting held on the 4 of April last the Mayor Jean Chiasson seems to bring much importance to the project of an eventual bridge to be built over the deep waters of Saint Simon inlet thence making the link between Lower Caraquet and Shippegan mainland on a distance of more than a mile.

The Mayor fades into oblivion by not realizing that he is the defeated Progressive Conservative at the last general election of 1974 with the alternative to be a candidate under the same political banner at the near future election in the Electoral district of Shippegan in which circonscription is Miscou island badly in need of a bridge which will make the link with the neighboring island already linked to the mainland Shippegan.

This bridge has been promised by both political parties for the past thirty years. Miscou with its isolated population from the rest of the world twice a year in the spring and fall has a great potential, is a fishing centre with three fourths of its surface being of first quality peat moss.

Further, Miscou has more attractions for the tourists every summer because of its lakes, and seashore and its historical sites.

More Promotion For Natural Beauty

Bathurst, N.B.
April 12, 1977

With your permission, I would like to come back with more suggestions concerning the beautiful place we live in.

Last week I mentioned the unique beauty of our beaches. Now I will try to create a picture of our harbour which is a beauty in itself.

If only we took the trouble to plant trees, flowers and lawns, instead of meters, Harbourview Boulevard would be a "thing of beauty and a joy forever."

I can envision this harbour before the advent of sawmills and pulp mills. It must have been a real beauty.

A lot of people travel to Europe or thousands of miles in search of beauty. I still think we have it right here. Our developers or planners should concentrate more on beautifying the contours of this harbour, and develop all the empty space we have for building inland.

In one site in particular, from the Teteagouche River to the Yacht Club, there must be approximately 100 acres of beautiful land to build on, with roads overlooking the water in the harbour. A lot of people do not know it even exists. We have been told that a sewer treatment plant was to be built five or six years back, and we are still dumping in the harbour.

When will we learn that we cannot dump forever and not pay the penalty? If this keeps on much longer, we will have to go live on the moon.

We also have four beautiful rivers and many brooks that flow into the harbour, then on to the bay. This makes it unique in the world. This harbour of ours is full of large beautiful clams which we cannot eat.

Trout, salmon, smelts and other fish move in from the bay to the rivers and brooks to spawn. If government officials would look into the matter, we could have a fortune in fish only. Salmon and trout could go up all rivers to spawn, even to the lakes, if they could bypass the falls.

Also, there are leaks from the mines that could be stopped if someone took the trouble to look into it. There are leaks in Nepisiguit River and Little River that I know of, and if there weren't so many we would be living in paradise.

BOOKED FOR INTERNATIONAL EVENT IN WALES

Arrangements have now been finalized for The Young Acadian Singers of Moncton under the direction of Sister Lorette Gallant, to participate in the 1977 International Music Festival at Llangollen, North Wales, commencing July 5th.

The choir last took part in competition in Britain in 1974 when they captured an unprecedented 3 first place awards. Since then their achievements have included being chosen Stars of the 1975 Moncton Music Festival; performing for the 1975 Conference of Atlantic Premiers and New England Governors at St. Andrews; receiving star designation at the 1976 Moncton and New Brunswick Music Festivals; being Atlantic Regional Winners in CBC Radio's 1976 Youth Choir competition while placing second nationally in the same competition; performing for H.M. Queen Elizabeth II at Woolastook Park and later representing The Province of New Brunswick at the XXI Olympiad in Montreal.

At the present time adjudication of the British Broadcasting Corp's. International Competition "Let The People Sing" is awaited. Several performances have been aired nationally on both radio and television. The choir's second long playing record "Christmas Reflections" was released in 1976 and was a rapid sellout.

Former New Brunswick premier and now Senator Louis J. Robichaud has long taken an active personal interest in the choir and in 1975 agreed to act as its patron.

The choir presently consists of 52 Moncton area girls ranging in age from 19 to 22 years. Their costs associated with the Wales competition will be approximately $75,000 of which almost $50,000 has already been raised. Projects to realize the remainder are now in progress or planned and these include a tag day, flea market, dance, lottery, concert, directing a personal appeal to friends and supporters and the release of a new long playing record. Interesting parties are invited to write Young Acadian Singers, 200 Lutz St., Moncton.

Speaks Out For United Canada

Canada was founded on two languages and two cultures and all Canadians must work with government to preserve the nation, Lt.-Gov. Hedard Robichaud of New Brunswick said last week.

"As a French Acadian from New Brunswick, I think we are much better off in a united Canada than if Quebec were to separate," he said in an interview.

"There is no question that both Quebec and the French population in the Maritimes would suffer as a result of separation.

"We need a strong and united Canada where our rights are protected."

Lt.-Gov. Robichaud, in Halifax for a business meeting, said he believes there is room for amendments to the constitution to give greater protection and recognition to the French language and culture in Canada.

And, he said, the time has come to bring the constitution to Canada from England.

Canadians handle finances well, senior banker says

Consumer credit levels now are no higher than they were 10 years ago when compared to income, a spokesman for the banking industry says.

Rowland C. Frazee, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association (CBA), told a Senate committee that whether credit totals are considered too high, too low or just right depends on many other factors.

One of the best comparisons is to personal savings, he told a banking, trade and commerce committee hearing on the Borrowers and Depositors Protection Act.

"In the period from 1967 to 1975, consumer credit in Canada increased at an average annual compound rate of 13.2 per cent while personal savings increased 19.1 per cent.

"In other words, while Canadians increased their consumer credit, they have also increased their savings and their ability to repay to a much greater degree."

Mr. Frazee said consumer credit as a percentage of personal disposable income (income less taxes) was about 20 per cent in 1967 and now has returned to that level after a slight rise in 1973-74.

"This illustrates that Canadians are not increasing their consumer credit disproportionately.

Rowland C. Frazee

They are, in fact, responding to general economic conditions from year to year in their savings, expenditures and borrowings."

Mr. Frazee said that based on experience, bankers still believe that "by and large, Canadians manage their finances with greater wisdom than appears to be popularly believed," as stated by the Royal Commission on Banking and Finance some years ago.

Which is which?

Excess revenue/excess profit . .

"For gosh sakes, stop calling Martha, Marsha," Reed Scowen, director general for prices and profits at the Anti-Inflation Board told reporters recently. "We control excess revenue and not excess profit."

The difference between controlling excess revenue and excess profit is the difference between apples and oranges.

There is no such thing as excess profit under the AIB. In fact, nobody in Canada has ever made a rule about how much profit anybody can make. There are all kinds of rules that say fair play must govern profits. And the tax rules say the more profit, the more you have to share with the government. But there's no rule limiting profit. The flexibility of profit is one of the cornerstones of the Canadian supply and demand, free marketplace society.

So if you can make nine rings for a nickel and sell them for a dollar, it's 95 cents profit. But there is always the danger that nine rings may sell for a nickel some day if nobody wants them.

The excess revenue the AIB controls is based on the saying, "It's all relative". A company which has to abide by the Anti-Inflation Guidelines must hold its profit margin to 85 or 95 per cent of the profit margin it had in the years prior to the AIB.

If a company is a distributor, such as a retail store, its profit margin cannot be greater than 95 per cent of its performance during the period just before the program began. If the company is not a distributor (for example, a manufacturer), it must have no more than an 85 per cent profit margin.

Any money a company earns above its permitted profit margin is not 'excess profit' because, by definition, profit is something a company gets to keep. BUT, the AIB won't let a company keep this money. The AIB makes the company develop a compliance plan to refund this 'excess revenue' back to the consumer.

BATHURST SPORTS FIGURE HONORED

A Bathurst educator, Lorne Whalen was recently inducted into the St. Francis Xavier University Sports Hall of Fame. Captain of the 1948 University and Dominion Intermediate Championship Basketball Team and a rugby star as well, Whalen was also honored for his contributions to the initial basketball program in Antigonish more than a quarter of a century ago. It is perhaps ironic that the program has stumbled from time to time, but last year culminated in a Canadian mini-championship for Antigonish. Whalen cited his ties to the University and noted that the Alumni Association seems to provide an inviaible bond that other institutions don't have. His is a native of Newcastle, New Brunswick. Mr. Whalen is phys.-ed. supervisor for School District No. 4.

Piano Virtuoso Due In City April 19

RICO SACCANI

Pianist Rico Saccani will make an appearance here on April 19 under the auspices of the Bathurst Community Concert Association. The performance is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in the Auditorium of the l'Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit on St. Anne Street.

Mr. Saccani's local engagement is one of many concert and recital dates this twenty-five year old artist will perform during the current season that will take him to over fifty cities throughout the United States and Canada.

This busy young musician has just made his recording debut in a performance of the Greig Piano Concerto with London's Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Paul Freeman.

Last season Saccani's equally strenuous schedule was highlighted by his performance of the Greig Piano Concerto with the Tucson Symphony under the baton of Arthur Fiedler.

Returning to his native Tucson for this concert, Saccani played to an enthusiastic, sold-out house and received equally enthusiastic reviews. The Tucson Daily Citizen found him "playing with more sensitivity and clarity than ever" in "a truly excellent performance" and noted that this young pianist "while still plenty romantic, can be absolutely crystalline".

This outstanding performance led to a second concert with Mr. Fiedler, this time to a sold out house in San Francisco with the city's symphony orchestra, then to an appearance with the Glendale Symphony and to recitals throughout the western United States and as far south as Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Rico Saccani began his musical studies at the age of seven with the late Winifred Knight and, at sixteen, he undertook intensive study with Ozan and Patricia Marsh at the University of Arizona.

Local recognition was quick to come and he soon appeared with the Tucson Symphony and the University of Arizona Orchestra on numerous occasions. He was the winner of the First International Southwest Pianists Foundation Competition.

Shortly thereafter, he was invited to study at the Fontainebleau School in France under Nadia Boulanger; while in Europe he also worked with Mme Gaby Casadesus and Mme Jeanne-Marie Darre.

In 1970, Mr. Saccani was the first prize winner of the National Young Artists Competition and that same year he won first prize in the Young Artist Contest in Austin, Texas.

He went on to win more regional and national competitions the following year, including the National Chatauqua Competition where he also appeared as soloist with the Chatauqua Symphony under the direction of Donald Johanos.

His concert schedule for the following season included an appearance as soloist with the World Youth Symphony at Interlochen, Michigan, and he won yet another competition when he was awarded first prize in the Rena Aldredge National Piano Recording Competition.

Numerous recitals filled the following year, but the highlight of that season was a tour de force performance of three major works for piano and orchestra with the Arizona Festival Orchestra: Liszt's Todtentanz, Liszt's First Piano Concerto and Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue.

This appearance of Mr. Saccani will bring to a close the current season sponsored by the Bathurst Community Concert Association. The membership drive for the coming season has been extended at the request of many interested persons. Those wishing information or memberships may call Mrs. Kumari Sundaram at 548-2243 or present themselves before curtain time on April 19 at the Nepisiguit Auditorium where memberships will be available.

New members who have joined the Community Concert Association for the coming season may also attend this concert as a bonus event by presenting their receipt stub at the door.

Milk To Cost Still More?

New Brunswick consumers may have to pay higher milk prices as a result of the new federal milk policy, but it is unlikely a price hike will be confirmed until dairy farmers meet with federal officials.

Bill Sherwood, president of the province's milk marketing board said April 6 comments by Agriculture Minister Mal Sterry MacLeod suggest the policy could cost the industry about $300,000 a year in this province.

MacLeod said Tuesday a 25-cent a hundredweight decreased levy on industrial milk would more than offset a 15-cent-a hundredweight decreased levy on industrial milk and producers could lose $300,000.

Sherwood said the 25-cent increase on fluid milk was an average figure and could range from 15 cents to 35 cents a hundredweight, depending on a decision by provincial officials.

The exact assessment in New Brunswick would not be known until after a meeting with federal officials, he said.

DESIDERATA

Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story.

Avoid loud and agressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspiratons, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul.

With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

Report's Findings Were Correct Says Scientist

A pharmacologist who helped write a scientific article on the insecticide poisoning of a laboratory technician said in Halifax last week that Natural Resources Minister Roland Boudreau was wrong when he said part of the report has been proven incorrect.

Dr. Donald Ecobichon, co-author of the article in which a team of Halifax researchers documented the illness of the technician who was exposed to fenitrothion - the principal chemical used in annual spraying of New Brunswick forests - said that a later biopsy on the patient did not contradict the paper's findings.

Mr. Boudreau had earlier told reporters that the biopsy contradicted a statement in the article by proving that the chemical was not stored in the technician's body.

Ecobichon said the biopsy was performed two years after the technician was exposed to fenitrothion and had nothing to do the the accidental poisoning because the patient was ill with a different problem.

"Mr. Boudreau is not being honest to either us or himself when he says the biopsy showed no fenitrothion had accumulated in the woman's body."

The original article said recurring symptoms in the woman for several months after the contact with the insecticide indicated the chemical was stored in body tissues.

The minister said in an interview last week he would not argue with the doctor, but he had been told the biopsy was part of the study.

The Concerned Parents Group Inc., an association opposed to the annual spraying of New Brunswick forests to kill spruce budworm, called April 4 for cancellation of a proposed 4.4 million-acre spray program this spring because of evidence of danger to humans outlined in the paper.

Ecobichon said he does not believe the spray program should be scrapped as a result of the findings in the article.

He said the lab technician became ill after wiping up spilled insecticide with her bare hands and facial tissue. The study showed that fenitrothion may be dangerous to those who handle it, but did not prove it was dangerous if sprayed, he said.

A team of Japanese scientists recently began a study of the insecticide using monkeys and apes. Ecobichon said. He expects to discuss the study with the Japanese scientists at a conference in Ottawa later this month.

Combined Highway Safety Program Set

The governments of the four Atlantic Provinces have announced that they will initiate a joint highway safety campaign this coming summer.

The announcement, made simultaneously in Halifax, St. John's, Fredericton and Charlottetown, noted that this is the first time that a combined highway safety media program has been attempted by the four jurisdictions.

The campaign, in the planning stages now, will use the theme "What Are You Doing With the Best of Your Life". It will be designed to focus on major problems relating to traffic fatalities, including such areas as the drinking driver, the inattentive motorist and excessive highway speed.

The rational of the campaign is to effect a united approach underscoring the importance of highway safety, coordinated so that no matter where a person travels in Atlantic Canada he will be exposed to the same series of safety messages.

It is believed that a planned use of the media throughout the Atlantic Provinces, especially during the summer months, will present an effective vehicle through which to heighten public awareness of the importance of safe driving practices.

The governments of the four provinces believe that by mutual cooperation the overall impact on motorists will be enhanced, the public will be educated to safer driving practices and that the necessity to think and react intelligently when in traffic will be recognized.

An underlying intent of the program is to reach not only the residents of the Atlantic area, but the thousands of tourists who travel throughout the region during the summer months.

Announcement of the joint campaign was made following a series of meetings in Halifax and Moncton attended by senior government officials of the four provinces.

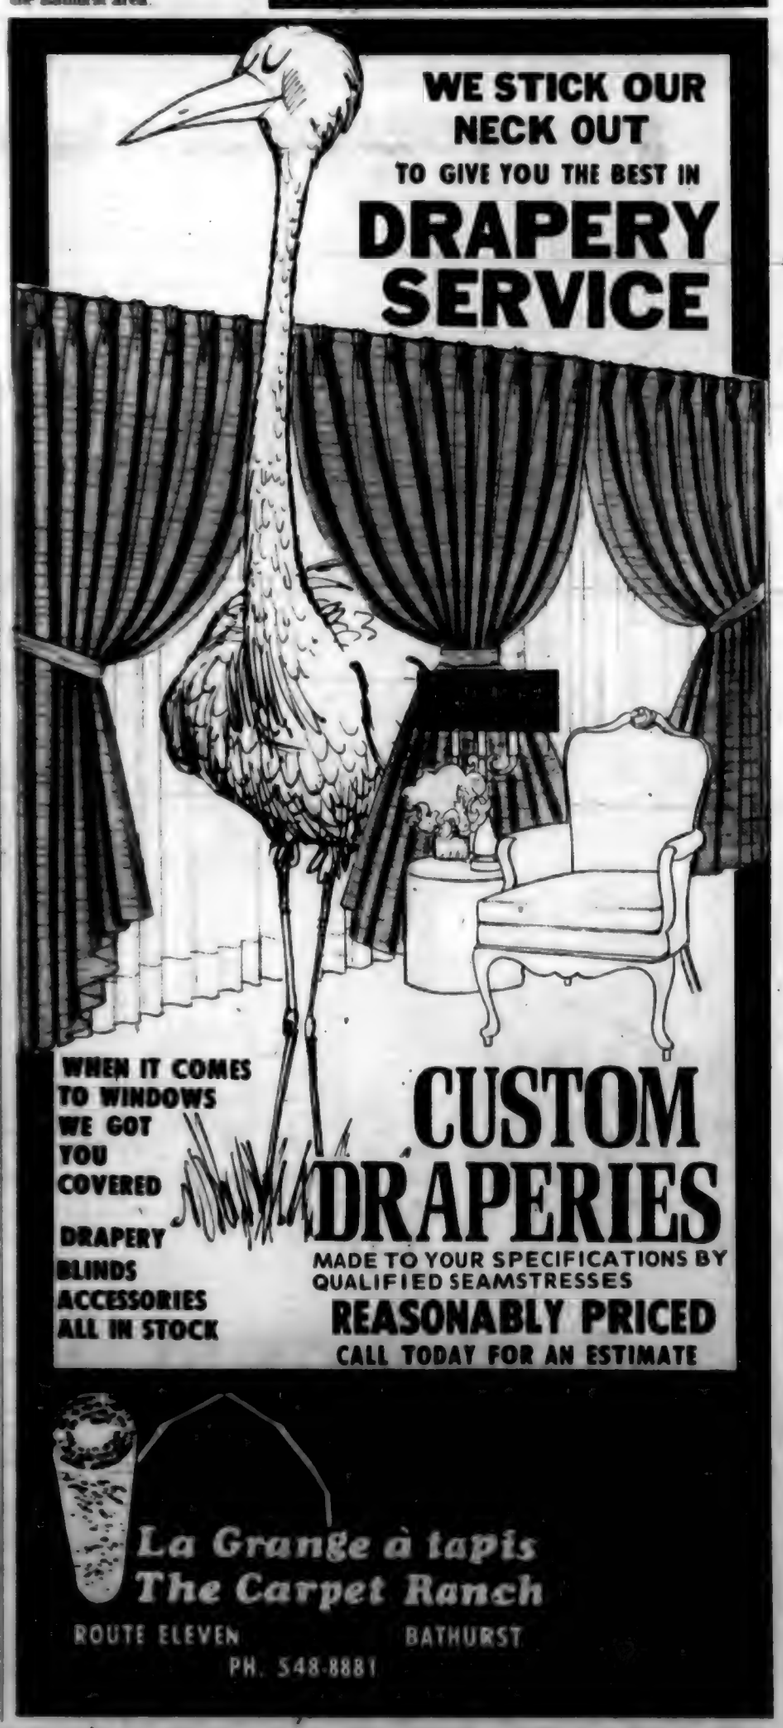
On Sales Staff At Royal Trust

David J. Lyman, manager, Royal Trust Real Estate Sales, Eastern New Brunswick, is pleased to welcome Mrs. Karen McDermott to the company's sales staff.

Mrs. McDermott who resides in Bathurst with her husband, Frank and their three children, will be happy to discuss real estate needs with residents of the Bathurst area.



The Glynns needed a mortgage to open the door.

They got action. Niagara was their key.

Happiness. To the Howard L. Glynns it was a 6-room, three-bedroom, bungalow with enough property for two young children and one very large dog. Niagara knows a lot about the Glynn's kind of happiness. We also know a lot about money. That's our business. Mortgage money to purchase a new home, money for home improvements, a new car, money to consolidate bills or refinance an existing mortgage. If what stands between you and a thing called happiness is a thing called money, come in and sit down with the people you've come to know at Niagara. We'll show you how sometimes all it takes to be a little happier is to put a little money into action.

Making the draw are, from left, James Fournier, vice-president of the North Teteagouche Recreational Council; Leo Hannan, manager of Save-Easy; and James Christie, mall security guard. Boudreau Successful In Tabling Documents

A partial tabling in the legislature by Natural Resources Minister Roland Boudreau of documents requested through notice of motion by the opposition touched off a brief, lively debate April 6.

Sought by a motion from Adjutor Ferguson (L, Tracadie) were documents, memoranda, a report and other documents related to a small sawmill survey project initiated by the government over a year ago, using the L. N. Boudreau Mill (no relation to the minister) on the N.B. Forest Authority's million-acre pilot forest site in Gloucester County.

When the resolution was called Boudreau announced he would table an agreement and other papers but not all the requested for three reasons.

Information had been given government from sources outside government.

There was a chance of jeopardizing some people through release of all documents.

In an agreement with the mill company the government had agreed to keep the matter confidential so that the firm would not be implicated nor its business affairs made public without its written consent.

The information contained in the survey carried out by personnel from government departments was to be made available to the provincial and federal governments for planning purposes only.

The initial estimate of the cost of the study was $80,000 but after an agreement was signed with Ottawa under the forestry sub pac of the General Development Agreement federal money came in and the cost was upped to $280,000, of which $196,000 has been spent.

Outside the house Boudreau told reporters that the company had not given its consent for tabling apparently because it did not totally agree with the final report and wanted to reserve the right to make further representations.

He explained that the Boudreau mill on the pilot site was a good medium sized operation which had upped its production from 1.5 million board feet annually to 5 million but was experiencing troubles with wood rot, size of wood and money problems, much the same woes which forced the closure of the British Columbia-built Brunswick Mills operation in the same general area.

His stand brought a storm of protest from the Liberal benches as members charged another example of government coverup and hiding information from the public - information which had been paid for with public money - and they charged Boudreau had in the past promised to make the results public so that other small mill operations could benefit.

The motion's mover, Ferguson, charged that public money had been squandered for political interest and called for tabling in light of earlier statements from the minister.

Norbert Theriault joined in the protest, charging public money had been given a private company and all information should be made public. Moreover, he added, how could other mills benefit from the study if they could not get the report.

He deplored the fact more and more private firms are running to government for money and they should realize that when they did that "they should be made aware that they will be the focus of public attention. He charged the government was "sick" and asked if $300,000 had been given a friend of the minister in his own riding. Other sawmills were in trouble because they had to compete with Brunswick Mills before it closed and the "mill you have subsidized" he said.

The motion's seconder, J. A. Roussel (L-Restigouche West), named Boudreau was getting arrogant and argued the money which went into the Boudreau mill at Nigadoo must be at Nigadoo must be accounted for. He expressed concern over the entire operation of the N.B. Forest Authority and charged when the mill operator received the first $90,000 he closed the shop and "took a little trip".

Frank Branch (L-Nepisiquit-Chaleur) opined a dangerous precedent was being set by not releasing the report and that the government was not being accountable while Alan Graham (L-Kent Centre) said if the government was in earnest about the study it should table the required information.

"If you don't table everything you've got something to hide" he snapped.

Andre Robichaud (L-Shippegan-les-Isles) noted that the spending of public money should mean full disclosure and he said that a clause guaranteeing confidentiality should never have been written into the agreement.

The natural resources minister was upheld in his stand by Labor Minister Paul Creaghan who said that Boudreau's "reasons were valid reasons."

Ferguson closed the debate, charging Boudreau had never said in the house he could not release the study, rather he had promised that every MLA would receive a copy of the preliminary report and had said so in the media.

The resolution went down to defeat twice - once on a voice vote and again after a requested recorded vote with 28 Tories voting against the tabling and 25 Liberals in favor.

This year Landry's Esso Oil Kings has enjoyed the most successful season in the history of Bathurst Basketball. Their record was 27 - 3 as the team outscored its opponents by an average margin of 35.5 points per game. The three losses came against Fredericton Hermits (81-62), Restigouche Bruins (108 - 94) and Petitcodiac Falcons (82-71).

Here is a look at the 1977 edition of the Bathurst Oil Kings.

Coach: Danny Kelly is in his second year as head coach of the Kings. His two year record is 36 wins 6 losses. Formerly a star with N.B. Institute of Technology, Danny is a knowledgeable coach who strives and more often than not succeeds in getting the most out of his ballplayers.

Forwards: Coach Kelly alternates between Bob Sullivan, Dave Ross and Stephen Ellis as starting forwards thisyear, as the trio combined for 38.3 points a game and 30 rebounds. Sullivan's assets include strong rebounding on both ends of the court, hustle, and agressive defence that has earned him the nickname "meat grinder" from opponents. Ross, a great leaper, specializes in the blocked shot, while also helping out on the boards and also with outside shooting. Ellis, who also plays guard, has been the surprise man for the Kings this season. Steve's excellent outside shooting and agressive defence along with his all-round ability has earned him respect from opposing players. Ron Kelly, a late addition to the ball club, has added to Bathurst's rebounding strength and team spirit. Jim Nicol has also made a contribution with his agressive play and hustle. Mike Power, a quick forward who can go inside or outside, can grab the big rebound or score the big basket.

Centre: John Nicholson in his first season with the Kings, and he has been the difference in many close games thisyear. For instance, in Bathurst's victory over the highly-rated Fredericton Siestas. John hooped over 19 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and held his man to only 6 points. His all-round capabilities include blocked shots, rebounding, strong defence and keen outside shooting. The centre position is shared with Mike Calnan, a fine shooter and rebounder. Mike's 6'5", 210 lb frame enables him to physically intimidate opposing players. He is the man to watch in the pre-game warm ups when he shakes the rim with dunks from all angles.

Guards: Starting guards once again this year's Bathurst club are co-captains Jim Cormier and John Farine. This backcourt has been exciting to watch this year as they've combined for 32 points a game and mixed in well with the rest of the team. Equally adept at guards are Mac Fraser, Buzz Grebenc and Stephen Kelly. Fraser is in his first year with the Oil Kings and all agree that he is the best pure shooter on the team. Grebenc possesses the quickest hands on the club and he was the man who most often stole the ball from opponents. Stephen Kelly's shooting has really come along this year, as he has widened his shooting range to about 20 feet. Steve also adds to the backcourt strength by way of his playmaking. The Kings' obviously strong 1977 squad can play ball with any team in N.B. as they've proven all year, and this tournament will prove this point.

Last week, the Oil Kings hosted C.F.B. Chatham in the final game before the provincial championships. The Kings won easily, 88 - 65 as five players hit for double figures. Jim Cormier was high man for Bathurst with 20 points, while centre John Nicholson added 16. Bill Sergeant hooped a game-high 30 for the Hawks.

CFBC - Pollock 8, Doucette 14, Sergeant 30, Black 6, Sullivan 7. Total 65.

OIL KINGS: Sullivan 10, Ellis 14, Nicholson 16, Farine 12, Cormier 20, Fraser 2, Ross 6, S. Kelly 2, R. Kelly 6. Total 88.

MOUNT CARMEL WINS ANNUAL CUB HOCKEY TOURNAMENT

Mount Carmel Cub Pack (East Bathurst), won the second annual Bathurst District Cub Hockey Tournament by virtue of a 5-2 win over Holy Family Pack A April 7 at Bathurst arena.

The tournament was to begin on Saturday Feb. 26 at the Holy Rosary rink West Bathurst but due to inclement weather, was postponed to Febr. 27. Again inclement weather forced postponement after two games. The remainder of the tourney resumed March 6 and due to the mild weather experienced that weekend, all out-door ice surfaces were ruined. Thus forcing postponement of the tournament until indoor ice became available.

The following Cub Packs participated in this year's event: St. Alban's and New Bandon, First United A and B Packs; Holy Family A and B; Mount Carmel, South Bathurst; and Sacred Heart.

Following are the results of the tournament:

GAME 1: New Bandon-St. Alban's 1 – First United "A" 8. Soring for First United A: Alan Scott led the way with three goals, Doug Maltby with two, and single goals were scored by Lloyd Gander, Geoffrey Bujold and Andy Gallant.

GAME 2. Mount Carmel 12 – Sacred Heart 0. The big gun for Mount Carmel was Randy White 6 goals. Patrick Whalen notched 4. Other marksmen were Blair Lavigne, and Michael Babin with one each.

GAME 3: Holy Family "B" 1 – Holy Rosary 0. Scoring for Holy Family was Denis Hachey.

GAME 4: Mount Carmel 14 – Holy Family "B" 0. The big gun once again for Mount Carmel was Randy White with 8 goals. Blair Lavigne notched 3, Michael Babin with 2 and Denis Chiasson with one.

GAME 5: Holy Family "A" 4 – First United "B" 1. Pierre Hache led Holy Family with 2 goals and single markers were Glen Power and Marc Blanchard. First United's lone goal was scored by Scott Smith.

GAME 6: Holy Family "A" 6 – First United "A" 1. For Holy Family, Gilbert Dunn and Pierre Ouellette each scored two. Single goals were marked by Pierre Hache and Eric Frenette. First United's lone goal was scored by Alan Scott.

GAME 7: Mount Carmel 7 – South Bathurst 0. Randy White led the way for Mount Carmel scoring 4 goals and Michael Babin scored the other three.

GAME 8: Championship game; Mount Carmel 5 – Holy Family "A" 2. Randy White again led the way for Mount Carmel scoring 4 goals. Stephen Whalen scored the other. Scoring for Holy Family were Pierre Hachey and Serge Gionet.

The tournament again this year proved to be most popular with the boys and with the many fans who attended.

Special thanks to the organizers of the tournament, Herman Pitre, Akela of Holy Rosary Pack and his assistant leaders.

Grant Project Crystal Clear

By STEWART MacLEOD
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

That $25,000 research project into "aesthetic motivation" would not excite me so much if I hadn't been figured by Revenue Canada for an extra $561.

The unexpected bill for the 1975 tax year came as I was beginning to fidget about last year's taxes - I am really fidgeting now - and you know how distorted events can become when you face financial ruination. I started becoming irrational about government waste and how this $561 would still be mine if we weren't - as Prime Minister Trudeau said - living beyond our means.

"Don't look at it that way", said my financial counsellor, an off duty fireman. "Just think how that $561 will help some small town hospital, help increase a veteran's allowance, or go to some foreign earthquake victim."

It didn't make me feel any better - I am not particularly charitable - but then I saw the details about this research into "aesthetic motivation". And I learned that the Canada Council, funded by taxpayers like me, gave out a $25,414 grant to find out all about this motivation.

Immediately I began to feel better about the $561. I had always wanted to make a personal contribution to a major study of aesthetic motivation.

But first I thought it might be useful if I found out what it meant.

SIMPLE ENOUGH

So I phoned a contact at the Canada Council. "Reduced to its most simplistic terms," he said, "it really refers to what we like to look at and why".

I got an even better explanation from John Reid, the Liberal MP for Kenora-Rainy River who once studies subjects like this. "It's really what turns you on in art" he said.

Now, familiar with what the Canada Council was spending $25,000 to learn more about, I went back to what the authors of the study had to say about their work.

Through the Council, the authors said their work really involved three phases. "The first will extend the use of the analytic approach to a study of motivational reactions to sculptures from a variety of periods and cultures and to poems. The technique involves multidimensional scaling of similarity judgments and preference judgments, combined with verbal ratings of stylistic and other attributes and nonverbal measures of stimulus-seeking behavior and reward value."

There was more to phase one, but by this stage I was so impressed there was no point in reading on, and possibly becoming confused. I know a worthy cause when I see it.

CRYSTAL CLEAR

I went on to phase two. "The investigation of verbal and nonverbal responses, indicative of motivational processes, to Western and non-Western painting and to Western and non-Western music will be extended to other geographical regions. The purpose is to compare the findings with those obtained with local subjects, so that the universality and generalizability of previous results can be gauged."

Even if they can arrive at the generalizability of previous results I figure the money will be well spent.

I was getting really excited about donating to this cause now. And the third phase was still to come.

"Finally, it is proposed to investigate relations between personality traits, concentrating in the first place on introversion-extraversion, and aesthetic preference, measured through multi-dimensional scaling of verbal preference judgments and through a technique that uses manual responses to measure reward values."

I think it's simply marvellous how academics and bureaucrats can mold their talents like this to educate uninformed taxpayers like me about how our money is being spent on exciting new projects. I can scarcely believe that just a few days ago I was thinking about little things like pensions, hospitals and earthquakes.

Right now, I am off to visit a series of finance companies, eager to get $561 into governmental hands so work can proceed even faster on research into aesthetic motivation. First, of course, I'll be doing some cross-cultural research, involving stimulus - seeking reward value, into the universality and generalizability of interest rates.

City's

City in improving the quality of the urban environment for residents and the regional community

Fourth, provincial and city initiatives to rationalize and up-grade the physical environment in Bathurst, to facilitate a better use of land and public capital resources and to revitalize the central area as the commercial and social hub of the region

As was indicated in the report from this study, the mechanisms for effecting these measures are already available in New Brunswick. What we now look to is further discussion on these and the will to move ahead together to start on their implementation

ANNEXATION COSTS

While the entire public sector is working under conditions of increasing financial restraints and Bathurst's municipal financial concerns are no great exception in New Brunswick, or Canada for that matter, we believe that annexation in 1966 has set Bathurst at a great disadvantage and detracted measurably from the City and the region

The attached graphs indicate the origin of funding and the amounts and dramatise the unbalanced allocation of capital funds expended within the City since 1966. The amounts are accumulative from 1966 to 1976. Graphs 1 and 2 indicate the General Fund expenditures for the former town and the annexed area, respectively. Graphs 3 and 4 indicate the Utility Fund and Graphs 5 and 6 indicate the combined funds for the former town and annexed area, respectively. Graph 7 indicates the combined funds for the whole City. These graphs clearly show how the City, for the last ten years, has concentrated nearly all of their efforts on the annexed areas almost disregarding the old town completely. Also, these expenditures have been made primarily on the basic requirements for watermains, sewers and roads with virtually no expenditures on the social and recreational fabric of the community. Through annexation, the City inherited all of the problems created by lack of planning which occurred under county and provincial control prior to annexation and has had to bear the major part of the costs of upgrading these areas. Only one grant was made available to the City to overcome the special hardships of annexation. This was a Department of Highways grant of $150,000 in 1966, which diminished by $15,000 per year over the next ten years. Other standard assistance under the Highway ACT, FRED program and stimulation grants, the latter two only since 1974, have come after much of the work was completed.

Whether the extent of annexation was too great, whether grants were completely inadequate, or whether the City, as a municipality, should have phased the provision of services to the fringe areas out into the next decade, are open questions. They are now History. What is evident is that the City has specific and very real financial constraints directly attributable to the provision of utilities and road improvements to the new annexed areas. The available funds for other commonly accepted urban amenities, the physical upgrading of the urban environment and community services, are pre-empted, and will be so for the foreseeable future.

As we noted in the selected recommendations from the Impact Study Report, we request support and action from Province in carrying out our responsibilities as a major urban community and a regional center. Basic support in this respect requires additional assistance and a more favourable density grant formula. Additional support calls for some shared-cost process between the suppliers of regional services (I.E. Bathurst) and the recipients (I.E. communities and industries in the Region). Finally, Bathurst's strategic role as the center of potential economic diversification in Northeastern New Brunswick, indicates that federal and provincial "front end" investments should serve to facilitate the municipal financial capability of the City.

CONCLUSION

We would like to conclude our formal presentation today by reiterating our view that while we represent the City of Bathurst, we speak to you as New Brunswickers whose community aspirations are inextricably bound up with those of all of Northeastern New Brunswick. There will always be inter-municipal rivalry and pressing demands on your attention and for your favour. This is not undesirable. However, we are not here before you today in that context. We are here because we are convinced that there are common threads of interdependence between regional economic development in Northeastern New Brunswick, the municipal financial capability of Bathurst itself and the quality of the urban environment and the commercial-industrial base of this regional center.

Because of these interdependencies, we see no divergence between our objectives and provincial policies and aspirations for this part of the province. Indeed, we concur fully in the ennunciated need to concentrate effectively public resources, to make dollars count, to minimize duplication of services and facilities provision, to reinforce and build upon a record of urban-economic success with provincial and federal resources and to harness the best possible mechanisms for dispersing the benefits of increased social and economic opportunities. We believe that the Bathurst Impact Study and the City's and Tri-Level Committee's deliberations following this have demonstrated an approach to make these things happen. The City will be seeking, through the process of the Tri-Level Committee, to implement these recommendations, and it is urged that the provincial representatives be empowered to act.

We hope that from today's meeting we may look to a cooperative process which will rectify some basic problems in Bathurst and remove some obstacles which now restrain provincial and local community ambitions in this part of New Brunswick.

One might think he is killing time, but sooner or later time puts him out of the running

NBTel Wants More Money

NBTel announced April 7 it will apply again to the public utilities commission for increased rates to relieve an "intolerable burden" placed on the company by new tax legislation proposed by the provincial government.

J. A. Coombs, vice-president of finance for NBTel, said the new tax, coupled with other associated costs, would "place an intolerable burden on the company and make it impossible for the company to earn the rate of return on investment approved by the board."

Mr. Coombs said the company has asked the public utilities commission to recognize "the urgency of the situation" and that a hearing be held as soon as possible after the company files its application for increased rates and charges.

In its budget of March 15, the provincial government announced that it would levy the provincial real property and business tax on telegraph, telephone, cable television and electric power transmission systems. It was announced the tax would be calculated at five per cent of gross revenues, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1977.

The government also announced in its budget that it plans to increase the corporation income tax from 10 to 12 per cent on large businesses such as NBTel. The corporation income tax increase would also be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1977.

Mr. Coombs said NBTel will apply to the commission "as soon as possible."

Change In Immigration Procedure Is Announced

Manpower and Immigration Minister Bud Cullen announced March 21 changes in immigration procedures affecting the hiring of foreign academics.

As of April 15, persons seeking to come to Canada to take appointments at post secondary institutions, either permanently or temporarily, must have an approved job offer in addition to meeting the normal immigration requirements. Institutions seeking to hire foreign teachers will also be obliged to demonstrate that the positions they intend to offer to persons who are not Canadian citizens or permanent residents of Canada are thoroughly advertized in Canada. Exemption from this requirement will be made in the case of exchange programme participants and guest lecturers.

"Until now, these institutions, unlike other Canadian employers, could recruit abroad without reference to the availability of Canadians and landed immigrants", said Mr. Cullen. "This situation is no longer justified given the fact that the number of qualified candidates in Canada for these positions is now in excess of demand in many disciplines".

Mr. Cullen indicated that the new measures had been discussed with Provincial Ministers, as well as the Council of Ministers of Education.

"I wish to make clear", Mr. Cullen said, "that these measures will in no way interfere with the hiring of candidates on the basis of merit. It will remain entirely up to the universities to judge what candidates are best qualified to fill the academic jobs they are offering."

"However, in view of the large numbers of post graduates leaving our universities each year, it is only fair to require universities, before they resort to foreign recruitment, to ascertain whether qualified candidates are available on the Canadian market."

New Horizons Grants Made

Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde today announced the latest series of grants for New Horizons projects in the Atlantic provinces totalling $339,909.

This series covers 35 projects and involves 2,083 participants.

Since New Horizons was introduced, 640 projects have been funded in the Atlantic provinces for a total of $4,550,722.

New Horizons enables retired people to create projects of their own choosing. It offers grants to groups of retired people who will undertake activities for the benefit of themselves and others in their community. The accent is on local needs as seen by older people, and on their willingness to meet such needs.

The most recent grants include the following in the Bathurst area:

Allardville, Les Retraites d'Allardville - A second grant to complete the equipment and installations in order to present more activities and increase membership. The club is located in an abandoned school house out at their disposal by the community - $9,735

Bathurst, Club Anneau d'or - To equip and furnish a house turned over to the group by Consolidated Bathurst, of which most of the members are former employees. Social activities, music and dances are planned - $4,904.

Bathurst, Club Villa Age d'or - To organize a program of social and recreational activities in clubrooms situated in the basement of Villa Chaleur - $19,684.

Second Catechetical Workshop Is Planned

Catechists and anyone else interested in or concerned about the subject are in for a treat Monday, April 18 when a special catechetical workshop comes to the Knights of Columbus Hall, Douglas Avenue.

Dr. Thomas Francoeur, a professor at McGill University, Montreal who has worked on the Canadian catechism program and is a gifted speaker on religious topics, will be guest speaker.

The day-long program will begin at 10 a.m. with an address by Dr. Francoeur followed by a question period.

Lunch, from 12 noon to 1 p.m., will be a bring-and-share affair, and the guest speaker will then continue his talk with discussion and questions. The celebration of the Eucharist will take place at 3:30 p.m.

The workshop is the second of its kind, the first being held on November 27, 1976 with Sister Katherine McCaffrey as guest speaker. Those who attended the initial session will remember it for its interesting and uplifting qualities and organizers of the upcoming workshop are promising a similar experience and expect a good attendance.

Federal Aid Offered Moncton Law School

The Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission, has announced it has learned that the federal government, through the Secretary of State, is prepared to assist financially in the establishment of a faculty of common law at l'Universite de Moncton.

Contingent upon provincial cost sharing, assistance in the order of $850,000 will be available from the Secretary of State for the fiscal year 1977-78 and 1978-79. This represents 50 per cent of non-capital costs.

The federal announcement followed a study by the MPHEC of legal education in the Maritimes, a recommendation to the Council of Maritime Premiers that such a faculty be established, and subsequent discussions with the office of the Secretary of State.

In developing the specific recommendation to establish a faculty at l'Universite de Moncton the commission evaluated different approaches and their social and economic implications.

Several factors influenced the commission's recommendation.

For some programs, such as medicine, dentistry, agriculture, veterinary medicine, dental hygiene, graduate studies in nursing and social work, formal arrangements have been made with Quebec to provide access for francophone New Brunswickers. However, the legal system of Quebec, a civil law system, differs from the common law system, so legal training in Quebec cannot provide law education for francophone New Brunswickers.

L'Universite de Moncton has a role in providing a range of university-level programs for the francophone population.

Although not all fields can be developed at l'Université de Moncton due to human and financial resource limitations, certain disciplines with socio-political and professional importance and a relatively large student demand may warrent development.

By providing legal training in a familiar socio-linguistic setting, accessibility and participation are enhanced, says the commission.

After reviewing estimated costs for various approaches, the commission recognized that certain costs, such as additional faculty, course development and preparation, and translation of materials, would be incurred in any event. Additional costs strictly associated with establishing a new faculty of the scope proposed would be offset by resulting benefits. The facility will represent a national resource, it says.

The recommendation by the MPHEC to establish a law faculty at l'Université de Moncton resulted from an extensive analysis of legal education in the Maritime region. In 1975 several Maritime institutions expressed interest in establishing new or expanding existing faculties of law. In order to obtain appropriate data on which to base its considerations, the MPHEC retained Dean D.A. Soberman of Queen's University's law faculty to prepare a report on legal education in the Maritime provinces.

Following publication of Dean Soberman's report along with a preliminary position statement of the commission, briefs and reactions from interested parties were invited through the media. The commission then made several recommendations to the Council of Maritime Premiers, including the recommendation to establish a faculty of common law at l'Université de Moncton.

Leases for private campsites such as the one above are in jeopardy if government approves the proposed legislation.

Groups Will Indicate Opposition To Policy

The Bathurst Fish and Game Association and Bathurst Snowmobile Club held a combined general meeting Monday, April 4 with many members of both groups in attendance.

Topics for discussion included the annual meeting of the New Brunswick Wildlife Federation, scheduled for Fredericton May 6, 7 and 8. Three delegates from the Bathurst branch, namely John Labonville, Aurele Frenette and Purdy Good, were chosen to attend and will be stressing the adoption of two resolutions. These are the abolition or revision of Bill C-83 on gun control and the revision of the campsite leasing policy. The local branch has already indicated its strong opposition to the proposed policy change.

Also on the meeting agenda was the organization of a lottery for a sailboat which is being donated to the fish and game association by the provincial wildlife federation to help raise money for the construction of a new lodge.

The Snowmobile Club is sponsoring a Spring Fever Dance to take place at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Saturday, April 30 from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m. Derek Knowles will provide entertainment and tickets are available now from club members, with the main distribution centre being Good Brothers. All members interested in attending the dance are asked to purchase tickets as early as possible as there is a limited amount.

Lottery tickets for a snowmobile, sled and double trailer will also go on sale in July with the draw set for fall.

Executive members of the snowmobile club are to meet April 18 to begin writing a constitution, and a meeting will also be held April 24, if new information on the lodge construction is forthcoming.

A general meeting takes place every first Monday of the month at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall at 7:30 p.m. The next meeting is set for May 2.

Local Library Shows Drawings

Nepisiguit Centennial Library, beginning Wednesday, April 13 until Sunday, April 24, will present "50 Canadian Drawings", an invitational exhibition of recent drawings by 50 Canadian artists.

This exhibition is the first national contemporary exhibition offered by the Beaverbrook Art Gallery Extension and most ambitious of the six extension exhibitions organized by the Gallery for provincial circulation since 1972.

Although "50 Canadian Drawings" was conceived as an exhibition of contemporary work, it was not intended to exclude the work of those artists who were either advanced in their career or who worked in an area often considered unfashionalbe. Within the restrictions of size, date and category, selection was based on the quality of individual works. As a result the exhibition encompasses a wide range of works, some of which have only recently been categorized as "drawing."

Latest TNB Production One Of Miller's Best

"One of the most engrossing and entertaining plays that Arthur Miller has ever written". That was the verdict in early 1968 of Clive Barnes, drama critic for the New York Times when he reviewed Arthur Miller's The Price, Theatre New Brunswick's third play of the 1977 season. The show comes to Bathurst's Nepisiguit High School auditorium Thursday, May 5.

Mr. Barnes' judgement was praise indeed, considering that Arthur Miller's previous successes, as one of America's most outstanding playwrights, have included Death of a Salesman, The Crucible, After The Fall, and A View From The Bridge.

The Price is a humour - flecked tale of the tangled relationship between two brothers - one rich, one poor; one successful, one a failure - who are both haunted by decisions they made in their youth, decisions that shaped their destinies and kept stinging them all the years of their lives.

The action takes place in the attic of their long-vacant childhood home. They meet there after 16 years of estrangement because the house is to be torn down, and they must plan the disposal of the outmoded furnishings, dating from forty years earlier, that have been gathering dust in the once-prosperous Manhattan brownstone.

Since the brothers jointly own the ornate relics, they are to share the proceeds from whatever sale can be arranged with a second-hand dealer. More importantly, the furniture also owns them, with a persuasive claim upon the memories of their youth amid the then-new household effects.

The attic encounter opens up their rankling resentment of each other and the question that has long been gnawing each of them - was the price too high that each has paid for his life's decision?

Continuing his report on The Price, Barnes said of its Broadway premiere, "The cheers of the first-night audience seemed more than idle tribute. Behind them was the sincerity of theatregoers who had been deeply moved. It is a play that will give a great deal of pleasure to many people. Go expecting a great evening in the theatre. It emphatically delivers the goods."

The Price drew enthusiastic audiences in New York through two seasons, until its close on February 15, 1969. The run would have been longer but for the cast's having been booked to open in London on March 5, where it was equally successful.

"Arthur Miller writes with great vigour and exceptional clarity. In The Price there is little "action" or visible event to the drama, yet it is spell-binding in its intensity and it moves headlong from a lightly amusing beginning to an emotion-stirring conclusion." (N.Y. Daily News critic John Chapman).

TNB's all-star cast headlines Cec Linder, co-star of the James Bond film "Goldfinger" as Felix Leiter, Bond's CIA contact; Maurice Good, Irish-turned-Canadian actor-director and creator of the one-man show "John Synge Comes Next"; Larry Reynolds, last seen at TNB in How The Other Half Loves, and author of the Novel A Gamut Of Stones; and Aileen Taylor-Smith, radio, television and stage actress.

Mr. Good and Mr. Reynolds play Victor and Walter, the embroiled brothers; Cec Linder is Gregory Solomon, the furniture dealer who serves as a catalytic agent between the brothers; and Ms. Taylor-Smith is Esther, the embittered wife of the self-sacrificing brother.

Ronald R. Ulrich, Toronto-based actor-director, directs the gripping Miller drama; and the musty, cluttered attic of the soon-to-be-demolished home has been designed by Barbara Matis of Montreal. Ms. Matis last worked at TNB with Michael Eagan on the set The King and I when the newly renovated Fredericton Playhouse opened in 1973.

Ambulance Contract Awarded

Robichaud Ambulance Service, operated by Camille Robichaud of Tracadie, has been awarded a contract totalling $1,400 a month to provide ambulance service to the town.

At the regular Tracadie Town Council meeting April 5, council made public a decision made at a March 30 special session to award the contract to the Robichaud service, effective April 1, 1977 to December 31, 1977.

Council had earlier met with the owner of the previously engaged service, but negotiations failed to result in an agreement.

Jean-Marie Benoit said following the decision that he asked the town for a raise in a new contract but had been refused. He stated Mayor Henri Thomas and Town Clerk Zoel Arseneau had offered him $10,000 for a period of six months to continue his service. He told them he could not accept the offer but later that same day changed his mind.

"The next thing I knew", Mr. Benoit related, "I received a letter thanking me for my past services."

During the meeting, Coun. Raymond Robichaud requested that council retire to a committee-of-the-whole session to further discuss the ambulance matter.

He said he was quite clear on the subject but wished to go over some points of the March 30 special meeting as he had not been advised of the meeting and had not been present.

Mayor Thomas refused the request but later vetoed all discussion regarding ambulance service until council met in camera.

NBFL Questions Increase In Electric Power Rates

The 45,000 member New Brunswick Federation of Labour April 5 called for public scrutiny of recently announced electric power rate increases by the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission.

In a prepared release NBFL Secretary-Treasurer Alvin Blakely recommended that the provincial government refer the proposed rate increases for justification to a public commission comprised of a cross-section of consumers, expecially representatives of large consumer groups like organized labour.

"A rise of 16.6 percent in power rates is not only inflationary but also questionably in light of a 12 per cent increase April 1976 and several additional fuel adjustment clause hikes over the past year," said Mr. Blakely.

"To simply suggest that New Brunswick rates are still lower than those in Nova Scotia does absolutely nothing to moderate what is sure to be a substantial rise in living costs for consumers who have become highly dependent on electric power because of NBEPC advertising techniques," he noted.

"Workers will have no recourse but to attempt to recoup these higher costs through the only avenue open to them - the collective bargaining process, said Mr. Blakely "To keep workers in a legislative strait jacket in terms of wages therefore while prices in essential commodities escalate wildly is both unreasonable and unfair."

As for the unorganized, particularly the working poor, those on fixed incomes and senior citizens, an increase in power rates of the magnitude planned will make it extremely difficult for them to make ends meet on their already limited financial resources, he declared.

Criticizing the government's new five percent tax on power, Mr Blakely suggested, "just as this tax is being passed on the power customers by the NBEPC so too will the overall power rate increase be passed on to consumers by industry in the form of higher prices for goods and services."

"Workers being required to justify wage increases at the bargaining table, it seems only right and just that the Commission be required to publicly defend through public hearings its own rate increases," he said.

"We would hope that these latest power increases do not meet the same fate as the 1976 increases which were simply referred to the provincial Prices and Incomes Bureau and forgotten. To ensure as much we urge that the schedule increases be delayed until justified before a public commission," concluded Mr Blakely.

PET NEWS

Travelling With Pets

By Marguerite Morrison

The most important item to take on a trip with your pet when entering another international boundary is its certificate of vaccination against rabies and distemper. This is a must.

The law, which became effective April 1, 1977, states that a dog or cat must be vaccinated not less than 30 days before travel and no longer than a year.

Animals not showing the certificate will be quarantined for 30 days during which time vaccination will take place.

The best time for the vaccination is when your puppy is about two and a half months old as they are immune to disease before that. Your pup should be in good health and dewormed before the treatment.

It is a good idea to contact your veterinarian from the time your puppy is born about its general health.

The more you know about this and this,

When you look closer at what's inside every 1977 Ford of Canada car, you'll be sold on the value.

What's inside every 1977 Ford of Canada car is the most advanced system of corrosion resistance processes we've ever offered, compared to prior model years. These processes, which are part of the DURAGUARD SYSTEM, go into every 1977 North American built Ford and Mercury car sold in Canada. They are built in at the factory, and they're standard equipment on every model. And this SYSTEM is backed by a no-charge, 36 month, unlimited mileage warranty against rust perforation on 1977 cars.

Ford of Canada is the only North American car maker with a warranty like this, and it goes along with every one of our 1977 cars sold in Canada, including taxis and police cars.

WARRANTY
No-charge, 36 month, unlimited mileage warranty against rust perforation on 1977 cars.

This warranty, which is exclusive to Canada and is transferable to succeeding owners, covers the cost of both labour and materials for repair of perforations caused by corrosion, excluding exhaust system parts. The basic 12 month/12,000 mile warranty covers corrosion other than perforations, that is due to defective factory materials or workmanship. Your Ford or Mercury dealer has details.

The DURAGUARD SYSTEM anti-rust processes indicated above include:

1. Zinc-rich primer, a special paint primer that gets sprayed onto key surfaces to assist in rust prevention.
2. Precoated steel which provides a defence against corrosive elements.
3. Phosphate coating: The bare sheet metal of each car body is sprayed with a phosphate coating and later covered with a primer.
4. Vinyl coating applied under the paint, behind the wheel openings, to help reduce the effect of stone chipping and road abrasives kicked up by the tires.
5. Vinyl sealer which creates a plasticized barrier against rust. It's applied on some seams, between panels, and on the underside of wheel housings.
6. Galvanized steel – a well known rust inhibitor which protects the rocker panels, several critical underbody parts and other extra vulnerable spots.
7. Aluminized wax sprayed inside the lower sections of doors and tailgates, lower quarter panels and wheelhouses further isolates the steel from corrosive elements.
8. Three applications of acrylic enamel which are sprayed and baked into a weather resistant, glossy finish provide the finishing touch.

All Ford North American built 1977 carlines sold in Canada receive all of these processes in the DURAGUARD SYSTEM. Although not all carlines receive the same processes in corresponding years, every car receives a combination of anti-corrosion processes which is appropriate to its design.

the more you'll be sold on the 1977 Fords and Mercurys.

FAR FROM THE WINTRY BLASTS

This 55-lb marlin, pictured here with Glendon Eddy, who assisted in landing it, was actually caught by J. Harper Kent. The 1½-hour feat was accomplished March 26 when the two Bathurst businessmen and sportsmen were fishing off Pompano Beach, Florida. Other members of the party were Frank Johnson and daughter Judy, friends as well as winter neighbours of the Kents.

Illegal Lobstering Brings Suspensions

Grave concern has been expressed by the Federal Fisheries and Marine Service over the incidence of illegal lobster fishing occurring in the Maritime Provinces by licensed lobster fishermen.

H. Douglas Johnston, the Service's Director General for the Maritimes, said that most of the concern is in the Northumberland Strait area where the majority of some 30 suspensions of lobster fishing privileges were imposed during the past year. These suspensions were all for a 14-day period, beginning on the official opening day of their respective lobster seasons.

Mr. Johnston stressed that a constant effort is being made by fishery officers to restrict illegal lobster fishing and that violators will be prosecuted by the Department to the fullest extend of the law. He said that of the 115 lobster prosecutions last year, and some 20 so far this year, fines by the courts were becoming more severe especially for "organized poachers". In several cases, fines have exceeded $500.00 for individual violations.

Mr. Johnston cited the recent examples of one year suspensions being imposed upon licensed lobster fishermen following previous convictions and warnings - two from Prince Edward Island and another from Northern New Brunswick, for 1977. These were as a result of deliberate violations against the Fisheries Act or Lobster Fishery Regulations.

The same fishermen had previous convictions of a similar nature and had been previously suspended for a two week period. Seven other fishermen from the three provinces - 3 from Prince Edward Island, 3 from New Brunswick and 1 from Nova Scotia were recently deprived of their lobster fishing privileges for two-week periods for first-offence infractions. Any future violations by these particular fishermen may lead to permanent cancellation of their lobster fishing privileges.

Mr. Johnston further stated that it is hoped by the Department that such severe suspensions will deter other fishermen from violating these regulations, and asked for the co-operation of all responsible fishermen and citizens to report any illegal fishing activity to their local fishery officer in order that action may be taken to apprehend violators. He pointed out that the annual loss of lobsters taken illegally to the lobster fishing industry has been estimated in excess of 2½ million lobsters or $3,000,000. This loss represents a grave danger to the Maritime lobster industry which is already in serious condition in many areas, Mr. Johnston said.

AIB Board Maintained

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald's budget of March 31, re-affirmed that the Federal Anti-Inflation Program would continue into 1978. His speech to the House of Commons said that a beginning of the decontrol program "before October 14, 1977 ... would not be feasible or desirable."

Mr. Macdonald also said the government and the provinces generally favour a gradual phasing out of the program.

If controls were suddenly removed now, there is a danger that rates of cost and price increase would begin to escalate again. This would put in jeopardy the sustainable growth of output and employment. Mandatory controls over prices and incomes however cannot become a permanent feature of the economic life of this country. We need to create the conditions in which controls can be phased out without interrupting progress towards our economic goals.

Under the terms of the Anti-Inflation Act the Anti-Inflation Board was scheduled to terminate December 1978, although the government does have the power to effect an earlier termination.

Since the beginning of the program the AIB has received compensation plans covering 6.7 million employees. While the majority of the contracts submitted to the Board were within the Anti-Inflation Guidelines, the seven-member Board has ruled on more than 1,000 cases that exceeded the guideline figure.

Implementation Of Wage Increase Urged

The New Brunswick Federation of Labour April 5 strenuously questioned the lengthy delay in implementation of N.B. Employment Standards Advisory Board recommendations on a minimum wage increase.

"Recommendations of the board having been in the hands of the Minister of Labour and Manpower since late January. We fail to see the basis for requesting additional input from the Board at this late date," said Federation President Paul LePage upon learning that members of the board would be meeting Wednesday to consider revising their earlier submissions to the minister.

"We would hope that the government and Minister of Labour and Manpower, in particular, have not bowed to political pressure from employers and employer organizations at the expense of minimum wage earners in the province by refusing to implement the board's proposals as originally submitted," he stated.

"The board being equally representative of employers and employees, there is no reasonable basis for lengthy delays or reviews of its recommendations. Current employer calls for minimum wage freeze or re-introduction of minimum wage differentials based on age or occupation are simply unwarranted and discriminatory and we strongly urge members of the board to disregard these self-interested employer pressure tactics," he added.

"Further delays can only be interpreted as a deliberate move to prevent enactment of a minimum wage increase until after the summer tourism and student employment period has ended," said Mr. LePage. "The usual but, in our opinion, unacceptable practice of allowing employers 6 months public notice of any pending minimum wage increase only serves to reinforce this belief."

The recently announced increase in electric power rates clearly illustrates that employers, public or private, do not feel compelled to provide consumers with advance notice of price increases and the same policy should apply to increases in the provincial minimum wage, suggested the Federation leader.

"Economically speaking, an immediate increase in the minimum wage is more than justified considering minimum wage earners have not had the benefit of an increase since November '76 and most provinces have now adopted a minimum wage rate of $3.00 per hour, a rate that still leaves those workers affected making povery wages," he continued.

"Surely our minimum wage earners are not about to be accorded the same inconsiderate and abrupt treatment given unorganized workers this time last year," stated Mr. LePage.

"The manner in which the Legislative Assembly at the urging of employer groups railroaded through an amendment deleting Easter Monday as a closing day under the Closing of Retail Establishments Act is not about to be forgotten and similar successful pressure tactics with respect to the minimum wage recommendations of the Minimum Employment Standards Advisory Boards would make a complete mockery of the board's powers to make recommendations, concluded Mr. LePage.

Remedies For Economic, Political Ills Offered

By NORMAN DePOE

"Probably as serious and responsible an immigrant journalist as ever came to Canada" is a colleague's description of the author of The New Society, by Anthony Westell (McClelland and Stewart; 237 pages; $8.95).

The word "immigrant", spoken in jest, no longer applies. After serving an English apprenticeship and a time on Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard, Westell chose Canada 23 years ago.

First on the Toronto Globe and Mail, then as Ottawa editor of The Toronto Star (for which he still writes) and now teaching at Carleton University in Ottawa, he has spent those years watching, reading about, and pondering our Canadian facts of life, and how they fit into an increasingly complex world. He sometimes overawes his Canadian-born colleagues in the Parliamentary Press Gallery with his deep knowledge of his adopted country.

The book is a curious blend of the current "conventional wisdom" as John Kenneth Galbraith calls it. Westell's own professed socialism (though he finds trouble in defining precisely what a modern democratic socialist is) and some of his own predictions of future trends and his own proposed remedies for the political and economic ills that assail us.

The book, based on wide reading and extensive quotation (there's a "partial" bibliography that runs to three-and-a-half pages; is never less than information, and often provocative.

RADICAL CHANGE

Some of his main conclusions or proposals:

Parliament as we know it is an obsolete and increasingly irrelevant institution in modern Canadian society; mere tinkering with rules and procedures is not the answer; radical reform is necessary.

All of our nationalistic yawping about foreign control is equally obsolete; the multinational enterprises will inherit the earth, and we should adapt ourselves accordingly.

Traditional free-enterprise ideas no longer apply to the society that has evolved over the past few decades. We're so far down the road to collectivism that there's no turning back, and we can't even say "Stop where we are." The trend will continue, and we had better adapt ourselves to that, too.

The "work ethic" is still with us, but it has changed in quality. The new, young work force demands more job satisfaction than the old generation, more of what it conceives as human dignity and self-respect. Some form of industrial democracy must evolve.

HEAD OF STATE

Canada should, perhaps with regret, abandon the traditional relationship with the Crown. The Queen could stand as Head of the Commonwealth, but the head of the Canadian state should be, of all persons, the Speaker of the House of Commons.

We're heading into a new society which would be, at least initially, a (Western-technolo

[illegible] World Federal [illegible] present nation [illegible] some [illegible] sovereignty. In [illegible] Canada

[illegible] despite our affluence [illegible] as alarming proportions [illegible] our people living in [illegible]. Westell suggests a [illegible] redistribution of [illegible]

[illegible] on and on and on. Many of his ideas are second-hand, [illegible] author throws them out [illegible] sparks, which often start [illegible] fires, and he clearly [illegible] that this is his intention [illegible] to provoke thought and discussion [illegible] before it's too late and [illegible] Canadians find themselves [illegible] up in a worldwide political, economic and technological torrent without even the [illegible] to steer their own canoe [illegible] own best interest.

HALF AND HALF

Every country that has tried it has suffered through fragmented legislatures and unstable governments. Try the Third and Fourth French Republic. And your reformed Senate of Canada with 60 members half federal and half provincial, with the provincial members being the premier, the provincial treasurer and the leader of the provincial opposition from each province, and their responsibilities being broadly, to set economic policy for the nation. Does Westell really think that provincial premiers and provincial treasurers whose work load is already crushing could set aside four days a week to attend upon the Senate?

Norman DePoe covered national politics for CBC News for many years.

Alberta To Set Business Pace

Montreal, April 6 - The Bank of Montreal's April business review forecasts that Alberta will set the pace, for Canadian business activity in 1977 with Ontario and B.C. at about the National average, Manitoba-Saskatchewan and the Atlantic Provinces slightly under it and Quebec well under.

In a province by province study of 1977 business prospects, which for Canada as a whole are not expected to measure up to last year's 4.6 per cent average growth in the gross national product, the review found that:

In Quebec, "indications are that the separatism option will slow investment significantly as business takes a 'wait and see' and this factory will pull Quebec's growth rate well under the national average. Without this important negative, the province might have recorded growth above the national average."

Otherwise, prospects look fairly good for most industries as pulp and paper sales should increase, clothing and textile firms will have a more protected market, aluminum production will rise, iron ore production will jump, asbestos demand will again outstrip supply, the milk production sector has stabilized and poultry and livestock producers will pay less for feed.

In Ontario, where manufacturing is the key to the province's economic progress, auto industry prospects look good but other manufacturing sectors are not so strong. Investment is week and capital goods manufacturers will have to reply on replacement demand if they hope to build sales. Slow growth is forecast for both the construction industry and the mining sector.

In Alberta, a "somewhat gloomy" agricultural picture is offset by strong construction activity and rising prices for oil and natural gas. While cattlemen are expected to hold their own as feed costs drop and beef prices may rise later on, grain producers face low prices due to last year's record world harvest. And current dry

Was Woodworth A Consultant?

The Opposition wants to know whether Allan Woodworth, the man alleged to have been part of a Progressive Conservative party kickback scheme, was ever paid for services as a government consultant.

The matter was raised March 30 in the Legislature by Andre Robichaud (L-Shippegan les Isles) who noted that Woodworth was listed in the Fredericton city directory as a government consultant.

Mr. Robichaud said that Woodworth, in the same directory, is also listed as the person in charge of the Progressive Conservative party office.

Premier Richard Hatfield replied that he had no knowledge of Woodworth's listing in the directory and took as notice Robichaudd's question as to whether Woodworth was ever paid by the government for consulting work.

Opposition leader Robert Higgins charged March 3 in the Legislature that Woodworth, who worked for the supply and services department from December 1971 to January 1973, had supplied the Progressive Conservative party with "pertinent information" about companies proposing to deal with the government.

Woodworth, who now works out of an office on King Street, has refused to comment on the allegations.

Hatfield has denied any knowledge of the alleged kickbacks and has expressed confidence that an RCMP investigation now under way into the party will be "thorough and exhaustive."

Director Is Dinner Speaker

An interesting outline of the progress made in New Brunswick through various programs for the visually handicapped, especially with regards to rehabilitation, was given by Guy Woodland at the annual meeting of the Gloucester County Advisory Board, The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, on March 30.

Mr. Woodland, assistant director of the Maritime Division, CNIB, Fredericton, was guest speaker at the dinner meeting held at the Legion Hall.

The assistant director pointed out that the adjustment training course given for blind persons in New Brunswick is "second to none in Canada".

The speaker noted this program had already enabled several visually handicapped persons become self-supporting through employment. He added that Manpower had paid the cost for two employment service counsellors in New Brunswick, amounting to $35,000 a year, and this program had enabled 30 blind persons to be engaged in full-time employment and 55 others to have part-time employment, thus saving the Department of Welfare in the province more than $167,000 annually.

Mr. Woodland said the CNIB is the only nation-wide organization for the blind and noted there were eight divisions in Canada. There are ten advisory boards in New Brunswick which include 300 volunteers.

The provincial office in Fredericton is responsible for the CNIB throughout New Brunswick and for Canoe Plum Services.

Mr. Woodland stated eight to ten thousand people across Canada are using cassettes and talking book machines through regional libraries. He noted a Miss Garnet, a sighted person, is the first mobility worker for visually handicapped in New Brunswick and the Maritime Provinces. Other assistance comes from special eye services nurses.

An estimated 50 per cent of blindness can be prevented, said Mr. Woodland who also noted the government recognizes that the CNIB is an agency to help the blind and through its programs and services, had placed clients in various spheres of employment.

Mrs. F. J. Hay expressed thanks to the special guest on behalf of the board.

... the value of the Canadian dollar on foreign exchange markets - from about $1.03 (U.S.) in November to less than 96 cents recently - have given the industry a welcome boost.

On each dollar of foreign sales, this represents an additional return of about eight cents - undiluted by any additional cost, and beyond the reach of anti-inflation controls, which don't apply to export earnings.

The turn-around in the Canadian dollar also strengthens the forest industry's position in the domestic market, by making imports costlier and less competitive.

Plywood, particle board and ... paper stand to benefit the most from this improvement in the domestic market.

INVENTORY VALUE

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald's recent budget provides that industries will be allowed to deduct three per cent of the year-opening value of their inventories, when they calculate business income for tax purposes.

"All forest-product companies have very substantial inventories, including high log inventories," says analyst R. D. Falconer of Wood Gundy Ltd.

"For all companies, this will be an important benefit, as costs of carrying these inventories was a heavy drain on their working capital requirements."

The purpose of this three per cent inventory write-down is to recognize part of the impact of inflation. Industry has for many years been seeking relief from tax liability on so-called profits resulting from inflation of the dollar value of their inventories, claiming that the profit is illusory because the inventories have to be replaced at inflated prices.

"One uncertainty that must be resolved," says the Wood Gundy analyst, "is whether provincial governments will go along with this proposal."

INVESTMENT CREDIT

Another highly favorable budget announcement was the three-year extension of the five per cent tax credit on new capital investment, which was to have expired June 30.

Not only is it to be retained, but it is also being broadened in ways that work to the particular advantage of the forest industry.

For one thing, it is being increased to 7.5 per cent in Northern Ontario and parts of Quebec (among other areas), and to 10 per cent in the Maritimes. Operations of the Eastern forest industry are concentrated in those areas, and substantial amounts of capital are being invested each year to increase capacity and to replace obsolete equipment.

For another, the scope of the investment-tax credit is being widened to make scientific research expenditures eligible.

"Most forest companies are spending more on research lately due to changes in pulping technology," Falconer points out.

ASK THE WOMAN WHO OWNS ONE.

"For a single girl, or single guy, who wants good transportation, reliable transportation that's cheap, I would say get the Honda Civic. It's great." Donna Murphy, Kitchener, Ontario.

"I can sneak in places where I shouldn't. Sometimes there's a truck or car waiting to get into a parking space where there's another car pulling out. And I'll sneak in there. You'll always find a place to park." Edna Tyens, Calgary, Alberta.

"They're a very easy car to park. And I found even when I go and do the grocery shopping, it's very easy just to throw the groceries in the back part of the car. You can lay down the back seat and carry a lot of things around in it. I think women find it much easier to handle and it's not scary for them to drive." Donna LaBranche, Peterborough, Ontario.

"I'm sure the salesmen down there don't have too much of a hard time selling a car. The Honda car sells itself. You don't even have to wonder about it. Just go out on the highway and every second car is a Honda. We have our little signals, too. We honk when we meet." Lillian Hazel, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

An unusually high percentage of Honda registrations are made out to women's names. There must be practical reasons why Honda is so popular.

There are. The ease of parking. The low purchase price and maintenance costs. The spacious interior for children or parcels or both. But women also want emotional involvement.

Honda offers that, too. Women like the lines of the car. They like how it steers, how it corners, how much fun it is to wheel around in.

Stop the next female Honda driver you see getting out of her Honda and ask how she likes it. Better yet, test drive a Honda. And see how you like it. HONDA

Friends of Miss Mary Carmichael are pleased to learn she is home again, after undergoing surgery in Soldiers' Memorial Hospital at Campbellton.

A welcome is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Allard Guitard, formerly of Green Point, who have taken up residence here. They have two children, Denise and Norman.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Andy Hickey, Sunnyside, on the recent arrival of a baby girl, born at St. Joseph's Hospital, Dalhousie.

The many friends of Mrs. Chester Winton regret to learn she is a patient in Chaleur General Hospital, Bathurst, and extend wishes for her hasty recovery.

UCW MEETING

Mrs. John Smearer was hostess at her home for the regular monthly meeting of the Archibald United Church Women Apr. 4, when it opened with members repeating the UCW Purpose.

Mrs. Irvin Archibald led the devotional period, the theme being Consider The Lilies, opening with call to worship as follows:

God's golden promise
reassures today,
A glorious life if we follow
His way.
Glory be to You, O Living Lord.

Our Lord is risen, true to His word.
Yes, He is risen! He is Risen indeed!
Caring for us, our spiritual need;
Faith, hope, love are ours to share.
Let us respond in gratitude – prayer.

Prayer was followed by Scripture reading taken from Luke 24-1-9, given by Myrna Smearer. A poem, Easter Lily, was read, followed by the hymn, What A Precious Lord Is Jesus.

Muriel Archibad delivered the meditation and Scripture reading. Verses 25 - 34 from Matthew 6 were read by Debbie Smearer and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison followed.

Roll call was answered by seven members giving a verse of Scripture. There was one visitor.

After reading of the minutes which were approved, Jean Smearer reported on cards sent out and visits made to sick and shut-in persons. The treasurer also submitted the financial report.

The evening concluded with a lunch served by the appointed hostesses.

Following are the lines of the devotional theme:

EASTER LILY

Easter lily, blessed flower,
Beautiful at this worship hour.
Glowing there so eloquent,
Simple, pure and heaven sent.
As it brightens up the altar
May our praises never falter.
Silver trumpets bowed in prayer
Whisper to us, "He does care".

MR. AND MRS. NICHOLAS GODIN

Family Gather In City For Parents' Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Godin of 1030 Clearwater Avenue celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on April 3, the family gathering being held at the home of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Babineau, Dunlop.

A special surprise was the sudden appearance, at the family dinner served at 5 p.m., of their son Gerard and wife Donna whose arrival in the city the previous day from St. Catharines, Ont., had been concealed from their parents.

Nicholas Godin, a native of Maisonnette, and his wife, the former Marianne Landry, were married in her native Caraquet on April 5, 1942.

Besides a son, they have four daughters, Mrs. Rodney Boucher (Annette) of Bathurst, Mrs. Paul Babineau (Monique) of Dunlop, and Angela and Claudette, both at home, all of whom attended the function.

The Godins regretted that many relatives and a number of friends from the Caraquet and Maisonnette areas and other points in Lower Gloucester County who had planned to join the party were unable to be present due to the unusual seasonal reason, a snowstorm.

Congratulatory messages and gifts were received by the honored couple. An engraved silver tray commemorating their anniversary was presented on behalf of the children.

The evening was spent in music and reminiscing.

Residents of Bathurst for over 30 years, Mr. Godin is employed with Consolidated-Bathurst Limited, and is a member of the company's Quarter-Century Club.

TRIMMING FOOD COSTS

Food costs depend upon many things - where you live, what foods you buy; whether or not you grow some of your own fruits and vegetables; how well you plan and buy. You may not be able to control all these things, but you can make your food money go further by trying some of these tips.

Skim milk powder is much cheaper than fluid milk use it in baking and for drinking (or mix milk made from skim milk powder half and half with 2 per cent milk).

Buy fresh fruits and vegetables in season when they are freshest and cheapest.

Shop at farmers' markets for good buys.

Canned and frozen fruits and vegetables are just as nutritious as fresh and often cheaper.

Frozen vegetables with special sauces are expensive - make your own at home.

Know your food grades - Canada Choice and Canada Standard canned and frozen fruits and vegetables are cheaper than Canada Fancy but just as nutritious.

Serve meat only once a day. For your second meal use another protein food like cheese, eggs, peanut butter, dried beans, peas or lentils.

"Stretch" your meat by serving small amounts with macaroni, noodles, or spaghetti e.g. hamburg-tomato macaroni caserole.

Liver, heart and kidney are economical and rich in vitamins and minerals.

The cheaper, tougher cuts of meat are just as nutritious as the more expensive tender cuts - and just as tasty when pot roasted or stewed.

Utility grade chickens and turkeys are cheaper than Canada A or B grades but just as nutritious.

Save chicken, turkey and other meat bones for homemade soups.

Buy day old breads and rolls rather than fresh.

Look for packages of bread, rolls, flour, spaghetti, macaroni noodles, etc. . . marked "enriched" (these contain extra vitamins and minerals to keep you healthy).

Sugar coated cereals are more expensive than plain ones.

Serve cooked cereals like oatmeal porridge and cream of wheat often.

Be sure that when you buy you have goods for your money.

Weekly Prayer Meeting Report

On Monday evening, the Peace, Love and Joy Prayer Community held its weekly prayer meeting at the House of Prayer, 663 College St.

A welcome was extended to the four newcomers as well as all in attendance.

The music ministry led the group in singing Come To Me, O My Children, Come To Me.

The reading was from Matthew 9, which was in keeping with the teaching whereby Jesus is once again calling us to repentance with an open heart and open mind.

Mass was celebrated by Rev. Gregury Sampson, after which fellowship was enjoyed with coffee and tea being served.

Bible reference: Matthew 24: 42 - 44 -- Watch therefore, for you do not know at what our your Lord is to come. Therefore you must also be ready because at an hour you do not expect, the Son of man will come.

Harriet Irving Library
University of N. B.
Fredericton, N.B.

This van, owned by Herman Viennean of R. R. No. 4 Bathurst, is just one example of what a little imagination and a lot of talent can turn out.

This Painter's Time Much In Demand

Mask, sand, clean, clean, paint, unmask. Mask, sand, clean, clean, paint, unmask. Mask, clean, clean, paint, unmask. Paint, paint, paint.

That's why a good custom paint job is neither simple, nor easy, nor quick, nor cheap. For the steps above are just part of what it takes to achieve those beautiful results seen on the sides of show vans.

And Bathurst is very fortunate in having one of the few good custom painters in the Maritimes, let alone the province. Rick Playfair is just beginning to emerge as one of the region's most talented vehicle painters.

Rick's interest in this fast-growing specialty began in his hometown of Victoria, B.C. where the practice of customizing began as early as 1965. "I did learn a lot through reading various books and magazines on the subject, but most of my knowledge came through watching other people do the actual work.

Although relatively new to this area, this type of painting goes back a long way in parts of the country with longer periods of nice weather - places where it is worthwhile having your car or van look nice because you can drive it most of the year."

His work started in earnest about two years ago - as a hobby - and has picked up considerably over the past year.

"People are beginning to lean more towards appearance rather than performance, and I've done many cars, motorcycles, even snowmobile cabs, in addition to countless vans."

Rick has read extensively on the subject, and has the capacity and ability to do just about anything with paint, including cartoons, graphics, murals, geometrics, plain panels, two-tone paint jobs, etc.

"Because your vehicle reflects your own personality, no two vehicles are - or should be - alike. It is this personalized variation that is responsible for the endless stream of different vehicles on the street."

Rick has a steady job as a sign painter with the City of Bathurst, so works long hours into the night, anywhere from 6:30 to 1 a.m. He loves the work, so it's not really a hardship, but he perfers to have the owner of the vehicle present while the work is being done in order to get his ideas, and therefore, exactly what he wants.

The cost of custom painting varies also, depending on what the customer wants. It can range from about $60 for simple pin-striping to as much as $1500. Variations can include fancy, or trick paint, or less expensive paint as well. Rick is at ease with them all.

According to Rick, Bathurst is very progressive in the field of customizing. There are two van clubs within a 20-mile radius of each other, and this makes the city unique in the Maritimes. And because van lovers are very particular about what their vehicles look like, there's lots of work for a good painter.

"However," said Rick, "it's hard to say whether or not this could turn into a lasting full-time job without branching out into lettering, etc. As things stand now, van and car owners get tired of the same designs after a while and like to change them. This keeps the business steady."

A true love for painting comes through in conversation with Rick. "I'll do anything with paint, on anything with a smooth or metal surface. I've even done jobs on drums and helmets."

Anyone who plans to attend the annual car and van show at the Moncton Coliseum this coming weekend will have the opportunity to see at least seven more of Rick's creations, including his own van.

Carnival Returning As Festival Feature

A motion passed in the fall of 1974 which prohibited the sponsorship of carnivals in the city during Hospitality Days was rescinded Monday at the regular meeting of Bathurst City Council.

By a vote of 6-3, councillors agreed to delete the resolution from the books at the request of the Bathurst Festival Commission, which was then granted permission to have a carnival during festival week this year.

Appearing before the council with the request was Commission President Michel Bourque. Mr. Bourque pointed out the 1974 recommendation against carnivals had been made because they brought no benefits to the commission, and took away from the profits of local merchants.

"However," said Mr. Bourque, "we were approached and offered $4,500 by a carnival group last year. The commission could choose the show, rides, etc., and the merchants have been found to be in agreement."

Asked what type of carnival would be brought into the city, Mr. Bourque said the commission had decided to request permission to sponsor the midway before approaching any specific operation. He added the biggest reason for the request was finances, as the commission will be operating on a very tight budget this year.

Deputy Mayor Patrick McLaughlin felt that a carnival might hurt four aspects of the summer festival, namely the teens committee, sports, miniparade and kiddies day. "The festival is for the people, and a carnival will only take away from other activities."

Mr. Bourque, however, did not agree, saying the entire commission had agreed on a carnival, including the committees in charge of the four activities in question.

Several councillors indicated they would like to examine the city's existing policy on carnivals before they made a decision, which was read by City Manager Pierre Marquis.

Only policy aspect, that which states there must be two months between each carnival, was the topic of much discussion, with Councillor Terry Lenihan saying that summer "consists of one month of good weather, July 4-August 4, and we must squeeze as much as possible into that time."

Taken to a vote, Councillors Robert Hodgins, Joe MacNeil, Jean Paul Lavoie, Doug Williamson, Pat McLaughlin and Terry Lenihan were in favor of rescinding the 1974 recommendation. Against were Couns. Jim MacLaggan, Valmand Saulnier and Henry Murphy.

Councillors then voted 8-1 in favor of granting permission to the commission to sponsor a carnival this year, on a one-time basis. Coun. Jim MacLaggan opposed the motion.

seriously turns to thoughts of votes. Contests Called In 3 City Wards

There were several surprises when nominations for candidates in the May 9 municipal election closed at 12 o'clock noon Saturday, April 16.

Sub-District 3: Thomas E. White (re-elected).

1800 STRONG

One of the largest influxes of visitors in Bathurst's history is now just a little over a month away. It's a Shriners' convention slated for May 27 and 28 involving members of the craft from all over the Maritimes and the Eastern United States.

A total of 1000 potentates and their wives is expected to attend the sessions. Reservations for the delegates were made at local hostelries over a year ago.

Murray Clouston is overall local chairman for the program which will undoubtedly enhance this city's reputation as a convention centre.

EASY VICTORY

Candidates nominated in three of the city's six wards have been elected by acclamation. As a result, they won't have to worry or campaign between now and the May 9th municipal election but can sit pat for the next three years.

While the return or appointment to office of these councillors in Burns, Kent and Michaud Wards is not a democratic exercise in its truest form, that is how the cookie crumbles, as it were.

The conclusion is that the citizens concerned were satisfied with the status quo - the way the city is being run, the representatives they had or would get, or just don't care one

Preside At Music Festival

Three adjudicators will preside here during the week-long sessions when the 27th annual Bathurst Music Festival opens in the Nepisiguit High School auditorium on Thursday, April 28.

This year's adjudicators are Mrs. Francoise Gay-Poulin, Ottawa, who will preside over the piano classes; Sister Claudette Melanson, n.d.s.c., Moncton who will be judging the sight-reading contestants; and Sister Maryse Moisan, Montreal, who will assess the vocal sessions.

Sister Moisan will preside for the first time in a Bathurst music festival while Sister Melanson and Mrs. Gay-Poulin both adjudicated at last year's sessions.

SISTER MOISAN

MRS. GAY POULIN

Born in Montreal April 15, 1930, Sister Maryse Moisan obtained her baccalaureate in music from Vincent d'Indy School of Music of the University of Montreal in 1955. She was awarded a certificate in specialized teaching in 1968, and earned her diploma in composition from the same institution in 1970.

In further training, Sister Moisan received her Masters (singing) in Gregorian songs in 1953; a baccalaureate in piano, 1955; violin laureate II in 1965; choir director certificate in 1966; and in 1970 she received a license in secular music from the University of Montreal Music Faculty.

VAST EXPERIENCE

In all, Sister Moisan has 25 years' music experience in the teaching of piano, flute, violin, choir, chamber music and orchestra. In addition, she possesses a vast experience in concerts, and choir and orchestra composition.

She is a member of l'Ensemble Claude-Champagne", a chamber orchestra under the direction of Jean Francois Senart.

Sister Maryse Moison has been adjudicator for many musical festivals including the St. Lambert Festival in both 1974 and 1975 for classes of soft flutes, voice and instrumental groups. In 1976, she was voice adjudicator for the Madawaska Festival. She also participated in editing several audio-visual programs and specializes in the research of background sounds.

CANADIAN TIRE'S NEW BATHURST STORE LAUNCHED

While some 500 people watched, Mayor John A. Duffy, despite a bandaged finger due to a recent snowblower accident, performed a traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony at 9:45 a.m. today (Wed.) without a hitch. The gesture symbolized the official opening of Bathurst's new million-dollar Canadian Tire Corporation store, an addition to the K mart Plaza complex. Assisting His worship was Peter Edmonson, (left), Canadian Tire's vice-president, of Toronto and Jos Reynhoudt, owner-manager of the new outlet. The former congratulated the latter and his staff for arranging the opening entirely on their own, without any assistance from head office.

City Councillor Raps Present Postal Setup

Bathurst City Council will send a letter of complaint to the postmaster-general with a copy to Gloucester MP Herb Breau regarding the temporary post office quarters in the city.

According to Deputy Mayor Pat McLaughlin, the size of the "Sanford and Son" premises is inadequate for a city of Bathurst's size and the situation will darken even more during heavy mail periods such as the Christmas season.

The city will send a representative to Saint John to take part in the observance of a parade of youth groups commemorating "The Great Fire of 1877."

Through a draft resolution, the city rescinded a 1973 motion barring the issuance of building permits for private lots in Grove Hill Subdivision, paving the way for construction on ten lots. The granting of permits will be subject to the conforming of building plans to city bylaws and to approval by the department of health.

Derek Milner and Greg Colbourne were named to the Bathurst Airport Commission, with a third representative to be chosen at the next council meeting.

BAND MARKS TIME FOR ANNUAL SPRING CONCERT

It's that time of year again when Bathurst Citizen's Band presents its Annual Spring Concert. The performance is scheduled for Nepisiguit High School on Sunday evening, April 24, at 8:00 p.m.

The upcoming program promises to have general public appeal due principally to the fact that certain talented members of the Band will be performing both as soloists and in groups.

Mrs. Judy McKendy will be handling the vocal chores with her beautiful presentation of "Tenderly", and other favorites like "Hello Dolly", "Cherish, etc.

Instrumentalists including Gilbert Losier will render selections arranged and conducted by Doug Pineau and accompanied by the Band.

An entirely new group appearing with the Band this year, "The Dixielanders", will offer many perenially popular numbers in the mood and manner their name and style implies.

Master of ceremonies for the occasion will be Patrick McLaughlin, deputy mayor of Bathurst and an ardent promoter of good music in all its forms.

Members of the Band extend a cordial welcome to the general public to join them in an evening of pleasant listening. Tickets are available from any Band member or may be purchased at the door. Prices are $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

way or another.

By the same token, these same taxpayers should not feel now that their spokesmen are comfortably settled that their duty as a citizen ends there. They still have the responsibility of electing a mayor from among three well-known figures, each of whom is qualified in his own particular way.

In recent years there has been a certain apathy as far as elections are concerned. However, this is a crucial period in history in so many ways that it would be nice to see all the people, or the vast majority of them, really speak out via the ballot this time around.

ROAST AND TOAST

If there are any dents in the Progressive - Conservative armor, they didn't show Sunday night as some 300 party faithful frolicked in Fredericton at a $100-a-plate dinner honoring Premier Richard Hatfield. There weren't too many Bathurst faces in the crowd but Barrister John Hazen's was among them.

The occasion was Mr. Hatfield's 46th birthday which actually occurred one week earlier. Sponsored by the PC Youth Federation, the dinner netted $18,000 for the party.

The evening had all the atmosphere of a simultaneous celebrity roast and political rally. These were some of the gems of wit and wisdom which were expressed by the various guest speakers:

Dalton Camp (After quipping that the entire audience was under arrest): "From what I've heard about the justice system in N.B., you'll all get off."

Lowell Murray: (taking a few light-hearted stabs at ATV Reporter Margaret Leahey, who broke the kickback story): "I wonder if Hatfield has lost his sex appeal. Miss Leahey now hangs around the RCMP barracks... waiting for the Mounties to leak."

Justice Minister Rodman Logan (sporting a kilt and with tongue in cheek): "Anything I say might be under investigation."

Treasury Board Chairman Jean-Maurice Simard (referring to Opposition Leader Higgins' kickback charges against the premier): "When a rabbit goes for the throat of a wolf, you end up with rabbit hamburger."

National Party President and Emcee Michael Meighen: "The birthday boy (Hatfield) will not pin the tail on the donkey."

Premier Hatfield, (who was presented with a CB radio and an enlarged photograph of himself): "A great way to end a week when I heard things that weren't so nice."

TIPS AND TAKES

City Councillor Jean-Paul Lavoie, who has a penchant for picturesque speech expressed himself aptly last week when he said something to the following effect: "it's time we got our heads out of the sewers and concentrated on other equally important civic improvements." A downshore businessman intends to expand his interests by building a drive-in theatre this spring in Bathurst. It is expected the ultra-modern project will accommodate up to 400 cars and will serve both French and English speaking audiences. Civic authorities have already approved a location within city limits, but several suburban sites are also being considered.

TO OPEN SESSIONS

Sister Claudette Melanson will inaugurate sessions of the Bathurst Music Festival by adjudicating the sight-reading classes scheduled on the festival's opening day, Thursday.

Born in Nova Scotia, Sister Melanson completed her high school studies, bachelor of arts and bachelor of music courses at Notre-Dame d'Acadie, Moncton, affiliated at one time with St. Joseph University, receiving her degrees from the former institution.

She advanced her studies at l'Ecole Vincent d'Indy, Montreal where she obtained a masters degree in piano, and a "license en musique." She continued post-graduate studies at Indiana University.

At present, Sister Melanson is directress of music at Notre Dame d'Acadie and its affiliates throughout the Province of New Brunswick. This private school of music now is known as Ecole Preparatoire de Music of l'Universite de Moncton where Sister Melanson has been professor of music for the past nine years. She continues to head the piano class in this music department.

A registered member of the N.B. Music Teachers Association, she has also adjudicated the Prince Edward Island Festival of Music, plus other festivals in New Brunswick including Bathurst in 1976.

In addition to her teaching duties, Sister Melanson is also on the executive of the greater Moncton Music Festival committee and a member of the Moncton Music Teachers Assn.

Sister Melanson's primary interest in her teaching career is to promote fine musicianship and to encourage youth in the development of the fine talent that is within them.

EARLY TALENT

The adjudicator for piano contestants, Ottawa native Mrs. Francoise-Gay-Poulin, obtained her masters in interpretation from Vincent d'Indy School of Music, magna cum laude.

During her musical studies which began at the age of five, Mrs. Gay-Poulin was awarded many scholarships, trophies and artistic interpretation awards such as Les Matinees Symphoniques, Kerry-Lindsay and Frances Barrick, to name but a few.

Mrs. Gay-Poulin has been a soloist with the Montreal Orchestra. Her experience in piano teaching and theoretic musical subjects extends over a 25-year period.

During the past nine years, she has been a member of various examining boards for baccalaureate and master degrees in Montreal and Ottawa.

Since last year, Mrs. Gay-Poulin has been teaching music at Ottawa University.

Donations Provide Many Services To Cancer Patient

The Canadian Cancer Society provides many services directly to the cancer patient through its "service to patients" assistance program.

In keeping with this sphere of work, the New Brunswick Branch of the society has service-to-patient chairmen in various provincial centres for persons in the lower income bracket.

These chairmen are the liaison group between, doctors, hospitals, nurses (including the V.O.N. and public health nurses) and social service departments in hospitals and the family of the cancer patient.

The various services provided through the service-to-patient conveners include dressings, medication (with prescription from the doctor only), beds, wheelchairs and many other items than can help the family take care of the patient at home.

Transportation is provided to a treatment centre in provincial centres. In New Brunswick, this centre for the treatment of cancer patients is located in Saint John.

Services also include meals and lodgings at St. Joseph's Hostel, Saint John, for the cancer patient during treatment.

The service-to-patients' chairman in Bathurst is Mrs. Wilfred McKay (Lillian), phone 546-2195. Application forms for the above as well as other services to patients with cancer are obtainable from Mrs. McKay.

During April which is National Cancer Month, branches throughout the country are conducting their annual fund-raising campaigns in the cities, towns and communities.

The campaign in the Bathurst area and other county centres is being conducted at the present time and volunteer canvassers are calling at homes and the business firms to whom the local Cancer Society committee earlier forwarded letters concerning the campaign.

Your donations will help to better provide services for the cancer patient as well as assist in cancer research.

School Discipline

Matter For Serious Thought And Action

The English School Administrators Association of School District No. 4 held a symposium on School Discipline on the afternoon of April 6. Present at the meeting were Principals, Vice-Principals and Department Heads from the English schools in the district.

The group decried the growing lack of authority schools are able to exercise over students. It is not that schools do not want to discipline misbehaving children but rather that they feel constrained in doing so by outside agencies which exert pressure to adopt the permissive trend so evident in society today.

Vandalism, thefts and drugs were among the topics discussed. The group acknowledged that most of the offences are committed by no more than 4 or 5 percent of the students, perhaps even less. This 4 or 5 percent are the potentially criminal element in our society, and schools are asked to house them five days a week to keep them out of trouble. The result is that the majority of the students are having their educational opportunities jeopardized by a relatively few by highly disruptive students.

The question was raised as to the school's responsibility for keeping such students in school at the expense of others who want an education.

It was pointed out that seriously minded students who are preparing to take jobs and attend higher institutions of learning were being undermined in their efforts to achieve an education by those students whose only purpose for being at school is to disrupt the educational process.

So serious is the problem that several schools had representative bodies of students approach the school administration and teachers complaining about the distracting and disruptive activities of other children.

In recent years schools have been asked to accept students who are weekend and nighttime prisoners. In other words, there are some children who attend classes during the day and return to jail at night and on weekends. There are even cases where students have the option as to whether they want to return to jail or attend schools.

The school administrators expressed grave concern over the roles schools are being asked to assume. More and more they are being asked to assume responsibilities for tasks other than education.

Concern was expressed for the number of students, conservatively set at one hundred, who have no stated permanent address and no assigned guardians. It is not uncommon for some children to have several addresses in one year, and in an alarming number of cases, no adult guardians in charge of the children's welfare.

Alcoholic and divorces parents were two reasons assumed to be the cause of many problems. With students seen on city streets at all hours of the night, there also appears to be a lack of parental supervision in some cases. It is from this group of alcoholic, divorced and permissive parents that most of the problem children come.

It was expressed at the meeting that a bumper crop of discipline problems was being reaped this year, children who have no respect for teachers or authority. The losers are not only the recalcitrant children themselves but also all the other students they infect.

The administrators admitted that there are several improvements the school personnel themselves can make and this they will attempt to do. The question was raised as to whether any attempt toward stricter discipline runs contrary to existing trends in some homes and society generally. The consensus was that there would be adverse reaction from some quarters were the school to implement stronger sanctions, but that in the interest of education and for the welfare of the majority, such measures are necessary.

A suggestion to remove frequent trouble-makers permanently from the school received strong support from a number of Principals and Vice-Principals.

A major problem existing in the school system was the lack of time alloted to Principals and Vice-Principals to administer their schools. For example, if there were only one percent of serious discipline cases in the run of a day, this still represents six to ten students who must be seen and counselled. This requires hours of time.

What is happening now is that individual work with students is not being done or being done very effectively because Principals and Vice-Principals are spending most of their time teaching classes. What little time is left, is divided among supervision of instruction, the business matters of the school, meeting parents and representatives from various agencies and support services, dealing with bussing problems and a host of other matters which consume all of the administrators' time.

The public generally is unaware of what it is like to have 400 to 1000 teenagers in one building. Many do not understand that reasonably strict rules are required to maintain order with so many youngsters. Many parents are aware of their own children's behaviour in school. It was agreed that very few problems occurred with students whose parents follow their childrens actions.

Therefore, the Administrators Association is endeavoring to establish in cooperation with the School Board a common philosophy in regards to discipline that would include aspects of acceptable behavior, public relations efforts and standardized sanctions for misbehavior.

Divers proceed to descend into murky depths.

DIVING MISSION ACCOMPLISHED

A group of Bathurst young people who turned a useful hobby into an essential service, proved their value last week when they were effective in recovering a car and a pair of drowning victims from the Restigouche River at Dalhousie.

The trio, Brian Teed, Roger Dugas and Al Hornbrook, all members of the Bathurst Scuba Diving Club, were commissioned by the authorities when an automobile containing a party of four from the Campbellton area, plunged off a wharf early April 14.

In the vehicle were Marlene Robinson and Marianne Casey, both 17, and Jean-Guy Levesque and Gilbert Nadeau, in their early 20s. The girls died but the men managed to escape.

It was a first such mission and experience for the Bathurst divers. Teed directed operations while Dugas and Hornbrook carried them out. They descended into 30 feet of frigid water and attached a hook to the vehicle so it could be hauled from the icy depths.

Telemedicine Trial Underway In Nfld.

A major experiment in satellite telemedicine, including both upgrading courses for doctors and nurses and community health instruction for laymen, was officially launched in St. John's, Nfld. April 7.

"Telemedicine", a comparatively new term, is simply a marriage of the words "telecommunications" and "medicine" and refers to the provision of any medical service by wire, radio or other electromagnetic system. The long-established practice of sending electrocardiograms over telephone wires is a simple, rudimentary form of telemedicine. Satellite technology offers greatly broadened horizons in the field.

Memorial University of Newfoundland is making use of HERMES, Canada's experimental communications satellite, for a 12-week program. The experiment will link the university's medical faculty and educational television centre with St. John's General Hospital and four smaller, local hospitals in comparatively isolated locations - Stephenville and St. Anthony and the Labrador communities of Goose Bay and Labrador City.

The telemedicine experiment will feature high-quality satellite television and audio links, with one-way video from St. John's to each of the four smaller communities and two-way audio to and from each. The links will be used for continuing medical education lectures, mini-courses for nurses and allied health professionals and community health programs intended for direct consumption by the public in each community.

Continuing medical education programmes will cover anaesthesia, cardiology, therapeutics, and communications and developmental disorders of children. Community health education will include pre-natal instruction in nutrition, child development and breast feeding; nutrition for diabetics; and seminars for social workers on child abuse and child neglect. Transmission of medical data and associated consultations will also be evaluated.

The design and provision of medical services for the populations of these and similar centres, widely scattered over the rugged terrain of Newfoundland and Labrador, is complicated by a harsh climate and greatly-varying standards of transportation and communications. For example, it is often difficult or impractical to leave when resident doctors or patients want to obtain updating courses or specialists' services in larger communities.

The federal communications department is providing $124,000 in direct financial assistance to the project, as well as free satellite time for four to six hours a day on alternate days and use of small, portable earth stations.

Dr. Max House, assistant dean (continuing medical education), Faculty of Medicine, and W.C. McNamara, assistant director, Educational Television Centre, Memorial University, are principal investigators on the experiment.

It's one of a package of 26 applications experiments which began soon after the Jan. 17, 1976 launch of the spacecraft from Cape Canaveral, Fla. Experiments cover telemedicine, tele-education, community interaction, the technology of broadcasting, provision of government services in remote areas and other fields.

An earlier telemedicine experiment, linking University Hospital in London, Ontario, with Moose Factory General Hospital on James Bay, wound up in February. The Ontario government, another HERMES experimenter, is also evaluating use of HERMES-type satellites for provision of certain medical services.

HERMES operates in a new frequency band, with transmitted signals ten to twenty times stronger than those of conventional satellites, making it the worlds' most powerful communications satellite.

Easy Does It

What are the chances of saving another human being's life? About one in a million, you say.

Not at all. You can be a life-saver. Not only once either, but three times a year, in the City of Bathurst.

It doesn't require an act of bravery. It doesn't take much time. There is no danger and little, if any, inconvenience.

So what is involved?

Simply put, it begins with caring and ends with sharing. Caring enough to become a voluntary blood donor at the Red Cross clinic. Sharing because human blood cannot be manufactured. It must come from people like you and me.

The actual giving of blood takes only 4 or 5 minutes, with another 20 minutes or so for rest and refreshments.

The demand for blood is ever-spiralling. The population is rising. Advanced surgical techniques place a strain, or, we might say, drain on blood supply.

For instance, haemophiliacs now lead a normal life, free from worries of life-threatening haemorrhages, thanks to cryoprecipitate, a remarkable substance obtained from fresh blood plasma and rich in clotting factors. Platelets play an essential role in controlling bleeding in patients suffering from leukemia and other malignancies.

On 31,492 occasions last year, New Brunswickers gave "the gift of life". In so doing, they provided 27,687 units of whole blood, 9,357 units of cryoprecipitate, 3,650 units of platelets, 2,477 units of concentrated red cells and 2,134 units of blood products.

To meet increasing demands, present donors must be retained and new donors recruited.

The next clinic is being held at the Legion in Bathurst on Wednesday and Thursday, April 27 and 28. The hours are from 1.30 to 4.30 and from 6.00 to 9.00 p.m. each day and a quota of 300 has been set for each day, for a total of 600 pints.

Local sponsors of the project, the Ladies' Auxiliary to Herman J. Good VC Branch No. 18, Royal Canadian Legion, are hoping for a good response. And, since Jacquet River and Petit Rocher are not having any clinics of their own this year, it would be appreciated if people from these areas, would patronize the Bathurst appeals.

Advice And Consent

When Herb Breau, MP was in Bathurst last week he brought the news media up to date on what is going on in Ottawa. He said the people should whoop and holler a bit more about the roads in Northeastern New Brunswick and try to get a little more done for our highways before all the money goes to the south of the province.

Mr. Breau also told his constituents to accept gracefully the federal insulation program which is now in effect in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island but not in New Brunswick.

There is no doubt that Mr. Breau is a good party man and can be depended upon for support along these lines. He did indicate he would oppose the new plan for the unemployment insurance program which would require twelve weeks of work before payments would be given. This new bill is progressing through parliament and Mr. Breau is not speaking as loudly against it as he threatened.

Yes, the Gloucester MP is a good party man and after all is said and done, perhaps that is the best way in the long run. It makes for strong government. The old apple cart might upset if loyalty for the party is lacking in the members.

There are times when we wish Mr. Breau would kick over the traces just a bit and let us do the same. After all, we are grown up people, he and we, not robots.

Behind The Walls

The situation at the Provincial Hospital in Campbellton continues to create a furore in certain quarters of the province and in some newspapers - all of them quite a distance from the institution itself.

Within the hospital, however, according to the Campbellton Tribune, there is not the amount of discord which one would be led to expect if we are to believe the provincial dailies when they write about it.

At least part of the source for news articles about the hospital are based, as far as can be judged, upon confidential documents, including reports and letters, which were delivered anonymously some months ago to certain newspapers and to members of the newly-named hospital board.

The Campbellton newspaper refused to publish this apparently unauthentic and potentially explosive material, as did most of the other recipients of the "information". Instead those concerned with the hospital were so informed and urged that prompt action be taken to remedy matters where this is necessary.

The hospital at Campbellton has been the focal point of controversy for some time and Health Minister Brenda Robertson has made known her determination to get the problems settled without delay.

From discussions with top supervisory members of the hospital, both French and English, it is concluded that the situation prevailing at the institution is nowhere nearly as bad as painted. But, even so, any points of friction must be removed and the hospital relegated to the purpose for which it was created: caring for the mentally ill of Northern New Brunswick.

The role of the hospital board must be clarified so that its members will know just how far they can go in directing the affairs of the institution.

After years of almost uninterrupted discord, one must come to the conclusion that sources of friction exist at the hospital. Just what they are and what means can be taken to improve the situation is something which must be carried out with wisdom and understanding and by persons who are fully qualified to do so.

WINNER PICKED IN JAYCETTE DRAWING

Mrs. Susan Comeau, of the project committee, holds a boxful of tickets, while Northern Light Publisher R. B. Renaud draws the lucky one on April 15. His selection made Paulette Doucet, 145 Melanson St., Bathurst, winner of the microwave oven lotteried by the Bathurst Jaycettes. Proceeds from the effort will aid the mentally retarded children's cause on the local level.

Premier Lauds NB Secretaries

Premier Richard Hatfield April 20 paid tribute to New Brunswick secretaries and "the very real contribution they make in all fields of business, government and industry."

In a statement supporting "Secretaries Week", the Premier welcomed the annual opportunity to recognize the work of secretaries and called upon both public and private sectors to join in recognizing their service.

Appeal For RNs, Blood, Volunteers

Bathurst, N.B.
April 11, 1977

There will be a blood donor clinic in Bathurst on April 26, 27 and 28. Our quota for the 27 and 28th will be 600 units. These two days will be held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall from 1:30 to 4 p.m. and 6 - 9 p.m. each day. The clinic will be held at the Trade School on the 26th for students and faculty only. The quota there will be 200.

We are looking for the names of registered nurses who have moved into the Bathurst area and local R.N.s who we do not know. We are looking for volunteers to assist with the rest beds at the clinics.

The R.N.s, along with the Saint John Ambulance girls, are doing a great job but they have been called time and time again. We feel there are many others who would like to assist but have never been called. We would love to have you so if you would call Mrs. Charles Knowles at 546-4344 or me at 546-5686 any time we would certainly appreciate it.

We are sure that with the co-operation of all citizens this clinic will be a "living success" with your gifts of life.

See you at the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinics.

Chairman, Bathurst Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic

Negative Attitude Hampering Centre

Bathurst, N.B.
April 14, 1977

Initiative and drive are two very desirable attributes. They can determine the difference between success and failure, whether it be the progress of an individually-owned business operation, a large community project or a major undertaking involving provinces or even countries.

Hard work, determination and perseverance are the keys to attaining any goal, regardless of whether you are trying to build a garage in the backyard or a sister to the Taj Mahal in India.

Yet, when the project involves larger groups of people, such as in a community undertaking, these qualities just aren't enough. Without one other factor - leadership - all the determination in the universe will do nothing to further the cause.

And lack of leadership appears to be one of the missing links in ongoing attempts to provide the citizens of Bathurst with a well-equipped and well-deserved sports and recreation complex.

Most of the people who live in this city will agree that there is a severe lack of facilities available to those who would be all too willing to utilize them. We all recognize the need, but are very reluctant to get involved and provide the necessary backing to get the scheme off the ground. And the people who are trying their level best to do something about the sorry situation are running into apathy everywhere they turn.

There are a good many people in Bathurst who have the knowledge necessary to bring this project into reality. However, they're just a little too concerned about their own yearly profits to worry about projects which concern the whole community.

There are many examples of what community involvement can accomplish, and some are very close to home. Look at Beresford and Grand Anse, where a serviceable arena and community centre exists respectively. Those buildings couldn't have been constructed without a capable leader who was backed by a group of hard-driving volunteer workers who donated much time and energy until the job was done.

Who among us hasn't shown concern about the recent rise in vandalism on city streets? Sure, there are young people (and old as well) who'll continue to execute their destructive deeds no matter what facilities you place at their disposal. But there are a great many more who would jump at the chance to work out in a gym or spend an hour in a swimming pool rather than whiling away the hours playing another kind of pool.

Bathurst has several gymnasiums in its schools, but for some reason, the doors to these facilities are always closed. To open them, you must be in possession of a bit of cash, and sometimes even this is not enough. In any event, groups who rent gym facilities, or any part of a school, are usually the first to be blamed for any damage which may or may not occur during the allotted rental period.

Bathurst High School does offer certain hours of the week for swimming, but the pool is much too small to accommodate the large numbers of enthusiastic children and adults who would like to use it. A sardine can is more comfortable that the BHS pool during Saturday night family swimming.

Talk about a new arena - let alone a sports complex - has been going on for too long in Bathurst. We don't need anymore talking; we need action.

Anyone who has read the recently-revealed Bathurst Impact Study knows where the money will be going in the next few years. That almighty water and sewage treatment system. I don't doubt that it is necessary, but it sure doesn't do much for our recreation needs, unless it will clean up the bay and provide us with the biggest pool anyone could ever hope to have.

Bathurst citizens will have to recognize that we'll have to do a little more on our own - each and every one of us. Why not a one-time tax in 1978 and 1979? An extra ten or twenty dollars from each taxpayer? It certainly wouldn't pay for a sports centre but it would help.

Why not build the facility, then charge a membership fee, with special family rates? Surely parents wouldn't object to dishing out a small sum of money each year to keep their children healthy and occupied. Build the centre, then worry about paying for it later. Will the contractor come and tear the building down, or even repossess, because the payments aren't always up to date? That's quite a white elephant for a private company to carry on its back just because payments are behind.

And please, no tuckering about the location. The city centre has an arena (a cold one but still an arena), a pool, and several gyms. West Bathurst, granted, hasn't much, but does at least have a park or two.

Build it in East Bathurst, or if there's a more suitable property in South, build it there. I don't think citizens will sit at home and sulk because the building isn't in their part of town. The logical thing to do would be to hop in the car and drive to where it is located. A fight over location will only succeed in stalling even longer a project which Bathurst residents have been deprived of for too long.

Another Side Of Story Told

Bathurst, N.B.
April 19, 1977

I wish to state a few facts concerning comments (in the Northern Light April 13, 1977 editors mail column) made by the "Thwarted TV Viewer".

It is not my intention to place the blame on the TV viewer or the CB radio operator, but it seems that our Thwarted TV Viewer did forget to mention a number of facts concerning this incident, which, in the interest of justice I believe should be mentioned.

First of all the letter was written by a former resident of Ryan Place and although not clearly stated, seemed to imply that the reason for leaving was due to the TV interference caused by the CB. This is not correct. In fact, the tennant was asked to leave because of a certain legal matter.

It seems to me that since the editors of the newspaper are gracious enough to permit an editors mail column, it should be the responsibility of all contributors to express all the facts.

Secondly, our Thwarted TV Viewer was approached by the individual alleged to be causing the interference. The CB'er then stated that he would like to try various devices, antennas, and filters etc, to reduce or eliminate the interference. The CB'er asked to examine the complainants TV to try all possible methods to reduce this annoyance. The complainant flatly refused.

The CB'er then politely advised the complainant that he could write or call the Department of communications (DOC) who are authorized to deal with all such cases. The complainant was later heard to have said, "I am going to take this farther than the DOC." (implying an unlawful act.) Later that night an attempt was made to unlawfully gain access to the roof of the building, to presumably render the $100 antenna installation useless. The attempt was unsuccessful but evidence of the attempt was quite visible. It seems our Thwarted TV Viewer is not a totally law abiding citizen.

The DOC was called and did check the CB installation and the CB'er was asked not to use the antenna on the roof. Within one day it was removed thus removing the TV interference.

It appears that our so called "CB idiots" are much more reasonable than our TV Viewers. Just as a matter of interest to TV Viewers who believe they are receiving CB signals on their TV (mostly on channel 5) can telephone the DOC and state their complaint. The DOC officials will take it from there. Their number in Bathurst is 546-9948.

So you see there is justice for TV Viewers much to the expense of the CB'ers. I would also like to ask the question, Is it fair for our Thwarted TV Viewer to be the cause of a apparently $780. CB installation being rendered useless?

There are the facts as I know them. If there is an oversight, it is not intentional on my part.

Time For Action By Everybody

Bathurst, N.B.
April 18, 1977

The creation of our universe is a wonder, a marvel, a miracle.

Man was created and was left at liberty to do as we wanted or pleased. And I believe that he makes a lot of mistakes in many aspects.

To mention only a few, it seems to me we are always fighting with one another. Every day we read in magazines or in newspapers, or hear on T.V. or radio from political commentators, scientists, economists and even university professors who are telling us that one class of people is better than another. For example, people living on the taxpayers' money, too lazy to work, living on the cream of the land and always dreaming.

But we seldom see the other side of the coin. We hear very little of the ones who make a fat salary and those who get rich at the expense of poor people and the fat of the land, even if they do work a lot more than anybody else.

This means there is a great margin between these two classes. This, I think, is an injustice. Statistics tell us that money earned by individuals ranges from $3,000 to $100,000 per year or more, approximately.

To remedy the situation is very simple. We will have to tighten our belts, go on a diet and reduce the size of the ones who are too fat. If we don't, we are in trouble, just as the doctors tell us.

Every country that has internal trouble has the same disease, one class trying to eat the other class. Most of the time, it leads to civil war.

It is getting time for us to be on our guard, not only the poor or the rich, but everybody without exception.

All revolutions in the past were caused by injustice between groups - by too great a margin.

Questions School Language Decision

Bathurst, N.B.
April 18, 1977

In the April 13th edition of Le Voilier, the French section of The Tribune, there appeared a very good statement on the decision taken by the School Board of District No. 4 on a petition for the creation of a separate school district for the French-speaking population.

The heading "Un besoin de retablir les faits", (a need to clarify the facts) was appropriate and the article showed evidence of sound reasoning and knowledge of conditions.

This is why it is so difficult to understand a seemingly unimportant sentence towards the end of the article which when translated states, "at the latest, in 1978, the four bilingual schools of Bathurst will be transformed into unilingual schools."

One wonders when this decision was taken and why the chairman of the Board should choose this particular time to make this announcement. But, above all, does it not appear illogical and contrary to reason for the Board to take such a strong stand for a bilingual district while at the same time abolishing bilingual schools?

These schools have served the Bathurst area well, preparing students for positions where both languages are required. Indeed, this city is known for the production of capable candidates for public service positions requiring such qualifications.

Should not parents affected by this decision be consulted before such an important step is taken? Surely the need for bilingual people will not disappear.

Other important questions come to mind over this matter such as who will decide which school a child will attend, the parent, teacher or the administrator. Will a child be able to transfer from a one-language school to the other language school? It seems important that a definite board policy on this phase of the matter should be made public.

With regard to the Board itself, will this decision to discontinue bilingual schools obviate the necessity of employing bilingual, personnel by the district?

It would perhaps be advisable for candidates in the upcoming elections to state their views on this important question.

NEWCOMER TO CITY INTERESTED IN CIVIC POLITICS

Although a resident of Bathurst for only a little over a year, Wayne Lambert, 30, has been coming here regularly since 1967 due to family connections. He says he likes the place so much that he's here to stay, even if his roots are in Ontario. And that is why he has decided to run as a Hachey Ward candidate in the May 9 municipal election.

In business life, Mr. Lambert is the owner and operator of Wayne's Hideway, a beverage room on Miramichi Ave., His wife is a local young women, the former Mary Caissie, of South Bathurst, and they have a 4-year-old son Douglas Wayne.

Born and brought up in Brampton, Ont., Mr. Lambert served on the city fire brigade there for 10 years before coming to Bathurst. He has also had some paramedic experience and was involved with suburban fire-fighting departments on a voluntary basis.

Keenly interested in sports, Mr. Lambert has played on hockey and softball teams entered in police-firemen competitions in Ontario. His other affiliations have included Lions and St. John Ambulance and he plans to renew these associations on the local level once the election is wrapped up.

Gloucester Member Refutes Provincial Gov't Charges

Mp for Gloucester Herb Breau April 13 warned the people of northeastern New Brunswick to guard against complacency on the subject of highway improvements in the region.

Speaking at a gathering of members of the news media at Keddy's Motel, Mr.Breau stated that while the three-year agreement signed recently between the province and the federal government was a substantial one, it does not automatically deal with the situation.

"Although the agreement is a favourable one", said Mr. Breau", "it doesn't satisfy the needs. People in the region should still pressure both levels of government, particularly the provincial government, for more highway work in the area."

He referred to the standard of highways in the south of the province, saying the people in the northeast should also see benefits from their tax money.

Mr. Breau added that the province should go after federal funds which are now being diverted from rail subsidies into the strengthening of highways and public transit.

Regarding allegations made by the provincial government that Ottawa was reducing its spending in hospitalization, medicare and post secondary education, Mr. Breau said the charges were not factual, and were a "narrow interpretation" of the changes in cost sharing.

The member stated the province will receive some $13 million more than last year on these programs, but the federal government would participate "only to the extent that expenditures in these three fields are maintained at the same growth rate as the gross national product."

He said according to the previous arrangement the federal government shared costs without any control over expenditures. The new formula, which involved tax points, means the federal government will participate with a cash payment increase according to the increase in the gross national product.

Mr. Breau described the provincial government criticism of home insulation help for Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island and not for New Brunswick as "unjust and unfair" and suggested the province was trying to place the blame in Ottawa for upcoming hydro cost increases.

He explained Prince Edward Island was 100 per cent dependent on petroleum for the generation of electric power so had to bear the full increase in petroleum costs. He said Nova Scotia was 64 per cent dependent while New Brunswick was only 34 per cent dependent on petroleum supplies.

Moreover, Mr. Breau explained the federal government was putting close to $400 million into the Point Lepreau nuclear project as well as providing $14 million towards the transmission of power to Nova Scotia.

Asked if an earlier report that he was considering stepping down from federal politics to pursue the provincial liberal leadership, Mr. Breau assured the press he had no aspirations along these lines. "I think Mr. Higgins is riding high on the offensive, I am still primarily interested in federal politics. However, I can't detach myself entirely from events taking place in the province as I represent Gloucester which is located in New Brunswick

Minister Appoints Task Force Chairman

Health Minister Brenda Robertson announced April 15 the appointment of Stan Cassidy of Fredericton as chairman of a task force on New Brunswick health care.

Mrs. Robertson named the chairman during a meeting here with the executive of the three associations to be represented on the task force.

The minister had promised two weeks ago to establish such a task force to look at ways of keeping growing health services costs in balance with the growth rate of provincial revenues while maintaining high quality services to meet New Brunswick's needs.

The task force will be composed of representatives of the New Brunswick Medical Society, the New Brunswick Hospital Association and the New Brunswick Association of Registered Nurses. Each is expected to nominate its candidate on the task force shortly.

The department of health will be represented by Dr. H. W. Wyile, assistant deputy minister (personal health services) and William M. Allwood, assistant deputy minister (insured services) and Jim Wolstenholme, director of planning and evaluation.

The minister assured the health associations that her department will provide the task force with information that gives an overview and analysis of the health of the population, the services available and the utilization of services and costs.

Mrs. Robertson noted further that she expects her staff to make policy recommendations to the task force on potential shifts in direction, emphasis and resources allocation.

There must be concern with the range, quality and cost of services. Through a careful assessment of needs and priorities, recommendations will be developed, she added.

Acknowledging that each of the groups represented on the task force will bring different information and perspectives to it, Mrs. Robertson said input from each is necessary "to accomplish the goal of developing a more effective health care delivery system for the province while controlling costs."

The task force's report is expected to be completed by October.

N.B. Guarantees Company Loans

The province will guarantee two loans totalling $300,000 in favor of Northern Meat Packers Ltd. of Campbellton.

Approval for the provincial funding was announced April 14 by Commerce and Development Minister Gerald Merrithew and Tourism Minister Fernand Dube.

The company has been operating for 17 years in Campbellton and is locally owned. It employs 55 people at present and about 20 new jobs will be created with the assistance of the provincial loan guarantees.

The money will be used for working capital and to purchase new equipment.

Northern Meat Packers produces an extensive line of processed meat products, including wieners, bologna, sausages and meat pies.

The company's sales are in Quebec and New Brunswick, and it plans to expand its markets in both provinces.

Merrithew and Dube said they are pleased that this local company is expanding and creating new employment with the assistance of the provincial government.

Running Again On Past Record

ROBERT HODGINS

The city of Bathurst, along with other communities in New Brunswick, will be electing new municipal councils May 9. One of four candidates running in two-seat Hachey Ward is incumbent councillor Robert Hodgins, who also served part of the 1971 - 74 term.

Following is his 1977 platform:

"I have enjoyed civic activities over the past four years, working on behalf of and for the betterment of Hachey Ward. Not only will I be standing on past performance, but I shall continue to make every effort to see that the ward receives its share of all programs, including the paving of all remaining streets, the installation of water and sewage in all sections at no further cost increase, a street maintenance program and continued effective snow removal. Other priorities are to promote the expansion of recreation services and facilities.

"I would also like to see groups or individuals become interested and take an active part in local government. With greater participation and different views I know we can make our community a better place in which to live."

Go Fly A Kite But Be Careful

NB Power Safety Officials have warned kite flying enthusiasts that carelessness could cut short their summer recreation.

Every year young people are injured, sometimes fatally, when model airplanes and kites become entangled in power lines.

The ageless sport of kite flying, popular with children of all ages, is a sure sign of spring. But if the thrill of kite flying is to last certain safety rules must be observed.

Because electricity takes the shortest route to the ground, metal struts, metallic wire, wire-reinforced string and even damp string will act as a conductor. So the first rule of kite flying is to keep away from power lines.

Many children with their eyes on their kites have walked into the path of motor vehicles. Others have been burned from using a fine wire instead of string for their kites and from trying to rescue kites which have become entangled in electric wires.

Kite flying has a long and honourable tradition - its history dates back several thousand years. NB Power Safety Director Al Pieroway says children should be instructed in the safe operation of kites before being let out on their own.

He offers the following recommendations.

- Fly your kite in a safe area. Select a level, open space where the wind has a chance to level off and blow steadily.

- Keep away from electric wires and poles, buildings, street and highway traffic, ditches, electric signs, railroad tracks, construction sites, reservoirs, and radio and television aerials.

- Fly your kite only in dry weather. A wet string can be a conductor of electricity. Wet shoes on wet earth increase the danger by enabling a charge to be grounded more readily.

- Never climb a tree or pole to retrieve a kite from an overhead wire or roof. It is better to lose a kite than risk your life. Notify the Power Commission or Telephone Company if a kite becomes entangled in their lines.

- Use a string that is considerably stronger than the kite's estimated pull, but not one made of wire or tinsel cord. There is always the chance of the kite line touching a high tension line.

To help prevent burns when flying large kites, wear gloves and use reels. Parents, Mr. Pieroway says, should supervise kite flying activities and help their children learn to fly kites skillfully and safely.

"Balance, understanding of winds, and the proper adjustment of the various parts under varying conditions," come with practice and will increase your youngster's enjoyment as well as his safety.

Wheelers Split Weekend Games

In Atlantic Wheelchair Basketball Conference action over the weekend, the Bathurst Chaleur Wheelers split a pair of games with the powerful Nova Scotia Flying Wheels.

After losing Saturday's game by a score of 46 39, the Chaleur Wheelers came from a 16 12 half-time deficit, Sunday, and went on to edge the Nova Scotia team 36 35.

Leonard Bryar led the Wheelers Sunday with 8 points while Bob Murray netted seven with Camille McGraw and Raymond Mazerolle each counting 6. Frank Henderson with 4, Michel Arseneau with 2 and a solo point by Lucie Raiche rounded out the Bathurst scoring. John Stubbert led Nova Scotia with 10 points followed by John Crawford with eight.

The Wheelers finished the season in the Atlantic Wheelchair Basketball Conference in second place behind the Nova Scotia team.

Wheeler team manager Clarence Bastarache was happy with the team's performance on the weekend and takes this opportunity to congratulate coach Louis Comeau for a job well done since taking over as team coach.

Labbatt's League To Open May 21st

A meeting of the Labbatt's (Citizens and District) Softball League was held Sunday, March 27, in the Rectory of Mount Carmel Church, East Bathurst to formulate plans for the 1977 season.

Two new teams - Hache's Esso of Allardville and the Steakhouse, formerly Marcan of Beresford - were accepted into the league increasing the total to seven teams. The two new entries were warmly welcomed by league president Jim Keddie Sr. who predicted that with their addition, the league should be one of the strongest in its category in New Brunswick.

Other teams in the circuit include Jamieson's Save-Easy who won the provincial and maritime championships last season in their category - Triple O. Orthodox; Ellis Building Supplies Ltd., City Glass, Cormier and Sons and Thomas TV.

A 24-game schedule for each of the 7 teams has been prepared with the league opener set for May 21 between Hache's Esso and Ellis Building Supplies. The complete schedule will be published at a later date.

Next regular league meeting is scheduled this Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the rectory of Mount Carmel Church, East Bathurst.

Nor even said good-bye.
You were gone before we knew it,
And only god knows why.
So many things have happened,
Since you were called away.
So many things to share with you.
Had you been left to stay.
So, you who have a father,
Cherish him with care,
For you'll never to the heartache,
Till you see his vacant chair.
Sadly missed and always remembered by the family.

LaPOINTE — In memory of a dear brother Frank, who was killed in a car accident on April 22, 1960 in Forback, France.

IN MEMORIAM

He has not gone from those he loved,
Nor has he wandered far.
Just entered God's most lovely room,
And left the door ajar.
Frank you must be a happy lad,
Because you now have Mum and Dad.
Always remembered by sister Lovena and family.

and Jean Marie Bouchard each triggered a pair in Sunday's game with Luc Tessier, Sterling Loga, Dave Stevenson and Brian Forester adding the others. Paul MacLean was a one-man show for the Bulldogs accounting for four of their six Sunday goals. Mike Dunphy and Dunc Carson netted the others.

Although McCullough's hat trick sparked the Tigers in Saturday's win, Mike Morton fired a pair and added three assists. Morton is a pick-up from Bathurst Alpines. Another member of the Alpines, Glen Seperich, went all the way in goal for the Tigers on Saturday and turned aside 23 of 27 Antigonish shots.

Eric Cameron, another pick-up player from Newcastle Northmen, also snapped in a pair for the winners while singles came from Wayne Parker, Dave Stevenson, Dave Wisener, Brian Forester, Marcel Dumais and Noonan Maher. Jean-Marie Bouchard added five assists.

MacLean again led the Bulldogs with two goals with Peter MacKenzie and Phonse Gillis adding the others.

Campbellton now awaits the winner of the Georgetown, Ontario - Val D'or, Quebec series with Georgetown holding a 2 - 1 edge in the best-of-five semi-final. The winner will open a best-of-five Eastern Canada final against the Tigers in Campbellton starting this Friday.

Sunday's victory was the twenty-second in a row for the Tabbies including 18 straight playoff wins. Their over all season record to date is an impressive 43 wins, four losses and one tie.

Gerry (Red) Ouellette, Tiger coach was not overly impressed with his charges despite the win. "We picked up a lot of bad habits in this series and I'm going to have the boys working hard on them first thing Monday", he commented after Sunday's win.

Yacht Club News

The annual general meeting of the Bathurst Yacht Club was held Wednesday, April 13, with a large turnout of members in attendance. The meeting was chaired by Past Commodore Clifford Elliot and Treasurer Randy Fortune.

Several topics were discussed at the session, but the main purpose of the meeting was to elect a new slate of officers for the coming year.

There is at present a total of 306 members, it was noted, and further discussion disclosed that the deadline for membership dues is April 30.

It was also stated the club plans to continue repairs to the dock during the coming year.

Elected Commodore at the meeting was Adrien Albert. Other members of the executive include Bill Barker, vice-commodore; Don Furlotte, rear commodore; Hadley Glidden, secretary; Randy Fortune, treasurer; Cyr Lavigne, membership; Wally Armstrong, dock committee; Albert Matheson, ground committee; Cyril Hachey, entertainment and Anne Marie Aubie, publicity.

A very interesting and exciting summer is planned by the club, and it is hoped all members will get involved in Yacht Club activities. All new and prospective members are also welcome.

The next club function will be a dance on Saturday evening, April 23 to the music of Doug Cunnison.

Basilian Priest, 78, Was Bathurst Native

Rev. Bernard O'Donnell, CSB, who was born and brought up in Bathurst and ordained here, died March 27 in Hotel-Dieu Hospital, Windsor, Ont. Although in indifferent health since major surgery four years ago his condition was not considered critical.

Father O'Donnell rested at Sutton's Funeral Home, Amherstburg, Ont., where Rev. James Hanrahan, CSB, led a prayer service March 29.

On March 30, a concelebrated funeral mass was offered in St. John the Baptist Church, Amherstburg. Bishop John Sherlock was the principal celebrant, and Rev. William Young, CSB, gave the homily. Father O'Donnell was buried in St. John the Baptist Cemetery, Amherstburg, the first Basilian to be laid to rest there.

REV. BERNARD O'DONNELL

Bernard Joseph O'Donnell was born in Bathurst on February 9, 1899, the son of Stephen O'Donnell and Margaret Cullen. He completed his elementary and secondary schooling in Bathurst and then entered St. Thomas College, Chatham, which at the time was under the direction of the Basilian Fathers. After finishing second year arts and doing some part-time teaching, he entered St. Basil's Novitiate, Toronto, on August 1, 1921. He was first professed on August 11, 1923.

Father O'Donnell's first appointment was to the Basilian Scholasticate in Toronto. He lived there from 1922 to 1927, during which time he completed his BA in 1926 and was awarded the Ontario Teachers' Certificate in 1927. He studied theology from 1924 to 1927 and was ordained to the priesthood in Sacred Heart Church, Bathurst, on December 19, 1926.

A first assignment for Father O'Donnell following his ordination was as a teacher at Assumption High School, Windsor, Ont., 1927-28. He then taught at St. Thomas High School, Houston, Texas, 1928-33, and at St. Michael's High School, Toronto, 1933-35.

It was in 1936 that Father O'Donnell began his long and distinguished service in the parish apostolate. He was at Assumption Parish, Windsor, Ont. for one year, 1936-37; St. Basil's Parish, Toronto, 1937-46; St. John the Baptist Parish, Amherstburg, 1946-54; St. Mary's Parish, Owen Sound, 1954-57; St. John the Baptist Parish, Amherstburg, 1957-58; Blessed Sacrement Parish, Windsor, 1958-65.

In June of 1965, Father O'Donnell went to St. Anne's Parish, Detroit, Mich. for the summer and then was assigned in September to St. John the Baptist Parish, Amherstburg. He was to remain there until his death.

Father O'Donnell was a quiet and unassuming man and yet his presence was powerfully felt wherever he was called upon to serve. He had a keen sensitivity to the poor, the elderly, and the lonely. Much of his time was spent in visiting shutins.

As he did not drive, Father O'Donnell always walked, no matter how far, to visit those in need. He spent over twenty years in Amherstburg and was a well-known and much-loved person in that town. Everyone, of every faith, knew and admired him. Confreres will remember his low-keyed but sharp wit and the many kindnesses he did for them.

Father O'Donnell is survived by a sister, Mrs. Dora Girard, 2133 St. Louis St., Plessisville, P.Q., and a number of nieces and nephews.

A regular annual visitor to Bathurst, Father O'Donnell had many friends here who have heard or will learn of his death with sorrow and regret.

Candidate In Coffyn Ward

A native and lifetime resident of the City of Bathurst has chosen to share part of the burden of directing its destinies.

Hugh Campbell will be among three candidates seeking two seats in Coffyn Ward, where he has resided for the past 12 years.

HUGH CAMPBELL

Following his graduation from Bathurst High School in 1954 Mr. Campbell joined Consolidated-Bathurst as an apprentice industrial mechanic and completed his apprenticeship in 1958. He remained with the company as a first-class mechanic and in an advisory capacity until he became associated with the Department of Labour in 1966 as a training officer.

In 1971, Mr. Campbell was promoted to district supervisor, Department of Labour, a post he still holds. This present position, he feels, gives him a good understanding of people and of community needs.

Mr. Campbell is active in many spheres of community endeavour, including coaching in minor hockey; president of Superior Home and School Association; recently appointed director of VON; member of First United Church; member of UCT; past vice-president of Bathurst Labour Council; past secretary IAM Local 1505; past representative on the UI Commission board of referees representing labour.

Hugh has played on local hockey and basketball teams and is interested in the youth of Bathurst. He resides with his wife Lois and sons Sandy and Clark at 590 Princess Dr.

Mr. LeJeune left the community at an early age and had resided for over 50 years at LaTuque where he was the founder and president of J.O. LeJeune Ltd.

Mr. LeJeune and his family were well known here and frequently spent vacations in the area.

Finger-Licking Good!

If beautiful weather, good friends and sticky fingers are signs of a good time, then it would have to be said that Saturday afternoon, April 16 was a good time for the Bathurst Mental Health Association. Under the chairmanship of Entertainment Convener Val Young and other association members, an afternoon at a maple sugar camp in Allardville was very enjoyable.

Approximately 40 people, including association members and patients of the Mental Health Clinic in Bathurst, attended the outing which featured a tour of the sugar camp, singing and dancing and enjoying taffy on the snow. A supper served in the camp and consisting of ham, eggs and pancakes was the culmination of a beautiful day.

Support Centre Now Operating

Municipal Affairs Minister Horace Smith announced April 18 the province now has available a mobile emergency operating centre designed to provide on-site support to areas affected by an emergency.

"The new vehicle contains the latest in sophisticated communications equipment, including a 40-channel citizens' band radio, a two-metre ham radio, and optical skanner and telephone equipment that will provide the Emergency Measures Organization with an on-site and direct access to the province's ambulance and hospital network, the highways network and the fire and police networks," Smith said.

Describing the unit as a "major step forward in disaster relief communication", the minister said EMO will now be able to work more closely with CB radio operators and will be able to provide its headquarters in Fredericton with the latest information on conditions in the disaster area.

"Henceforth EMO officials can be dispatched to an emergency site anywhere in the province to control operations in support of a disaster agency and remain virtually self-sufficient for communications with health, police, fire and other emergency agencies," added Smith.

Besides the communications equipment, the unit comes equipped with its own mobile generator, an electric winch and stretchers.

At full strength it can accommodate a driver and three operations officers. EMO will, of course, assign other disaster relief officials to it as a given situation warrants.

The modified 1977 van housing the mobile emergency operating centre is expected to be ready for duty immediately.

Slow Increase In Investment

Investment in Canada is increasing at a slower rate than in previous years, but don't blame it all on inflation, says Reed Scowen, Director General of the Prices and Profits Branch of the Anti-Inflation Board

According to Mr. Scowen a cause of the declining rate of investment is under-utilization of existing plant capacity. Currently, he says, plant utilization in Canada is at about 81 per cent, the lowest level since early 1960's.

According to studies by the Anti-Inflation Board, private investment was about 14 per cent higher in 1976 than 1975. This was down two percentage points from the increase in the previous year. The 1977 forecasts indicate an increase in the area of ten per cent in current dollars.

Mr. Scowen says uncertainty about markets is also making businessmen hesitate on matters of investment, but contrary to some opinions he does not feel the AIB is the cause of that uncertainty.

He points out that the current situation is such that the marketplace is providing its own controls. A few industries are in fact being restricted by the guidelines, but the majority under the control program are unable to reach the levels of profit allowable under the anti-inflation regulations.

Thus, "... the prices and profits regulations are very much in the position of the fire department in a town with very few fires." Mr. Scowen illustrates.

Also, inflation itself has a negative effect on investment, and when the business community is facing rising costs for labor and materials it tends to wait for the situation to stabilize before investing, the AIB officer explains.

Save Money By Shopping Wisely

by Elise Ward

(Mrs. Ward is a housewife in Aylmer, Quebec, and does shopping for her husband and three school-age children.)

I have become an avid comparison shopper and I'm really enjoying the challenge. The amount of money I have been able to lop off the weekly food bill more than makes up for the extra half hour or so a week it takes to organize my shopping and buy where the price is better.

It all started when a new supermarket opened in my neighborhood. I made my first visit out of curiosity and to see if there were any bargains. And there were bargains to be had — Spanish onions were 10 cents cheaper than at my usual store, three quarts of milk cost 10 cents less, and there was a savings of 70 cents on five pounds of bananas. On the other hand, I discovered that the tomatoes cost 10 cents a pound more and the red delicious apples cost 30 cents more for three pounds.

The first comparison shopping trip hadn't been very efficient, but it made me wonder how much extra time I would have to spend if I were to systematically shop both supermarkets, buying only those items which were better priced in each location. Since the two supermarkets are within walking distance of each other, there was no question of wasting gas on the experiment.

I began with a dry run the following week. Armed with only a pad and pencil I cruised the aisles noting the prices for items I purchase regularly. Then I was ready to put my money on the line. The following morning, on an order of $12, I saved a total of $3.35 ($1.73 at Store A, $1.62 at Store B). My savings were over one quarter of my bill! I was hooked. Shopping was becoming exciting.

The following Tuesday the story was the same — total amount spent was $16.04, total saved, $4.04. This saving worked out to the average hourly rate paid to employees in industry and I was making it at home by being a careful shopper.

I'm convinced that shopping more than one store is a good way to save if you follow the system. Here is the system I have evolved.

— early in the week I make out my shopping list, precise quantities to be determined later;

— next, I visit one of my two supermarkets (Store A) and write in the price of each item on my list — this takes about 15 minutes and provides a chance to consider new products without buying;

— on Thursday or Friday I take my list to Store B and every time the price for the item on my list is less than the price written beside it — I buy;

— when I have finished all the lower price shopping in Store B, I then finish off the shopping list in Store A.

Now that I am familiar with both stores, and the system, my weekly shopping takes one and a half hours; in the pre-system era it averaged around an hour. I strongly recommend product-by-product price comparison like this as a way to keep ahead of those rising prices. The rules are simple: pick two stores close together, make your list, and stick to it.

Sisters Of Charity Here For 113 Years

(A documentary in keeping with Worldwide Vocation Sunday, April 24)

The Sisters of Charity of Halifax established their fourth Canadian house at Holy Family on February the fourth, 1864. There was no convent on the snowy landscape on that date, when three sisters - Sister Mary Alexis Mooney, Sister Ignata Fitzgerald, and Sister Gertrude MacNamara - arrived to open a school. A letter in the handwriting of venerable Bishop Rogers tells the story of the sisters' arrival in Bathurst.

"Today is the anniversary of the arrival in Bathurst of the first band of sisters from the community of the Sisters of Charity of Halifax.

"On the feast of Saint Agnes, January the twenty first, 1864, good Mother Mary Rose, with her band of three sisters, left Halifax to come to Bathurst. His Grace Archbishop Connolly accompanied us by railroad as far as Truro, where my servant man (Patrick Fee) had horses and two sleighs in readiness to bring us on to Chatham and Bathurst.

"We came by slow stages on account of the delicate health of Sister Alexis, who was destined to be the superior of the mission at Bathurst Village. We spent each night, save one, at a presbytery, heard mass next morning, and continued our journey after breakfast.

"In several days we reached Chatham, where the sisters reposed for some time before going on to their destination. The first Mass at which they assisted in Bathurst was on February the fifth, feast of Saint Agatha.

"The schoolhouse, with a second room upstairs for boys, was ready, and the sisters opened classes on February the fifteenth, the feast of Saint Martina.

"Meanwhile, the men of the parish were working to prepare timber for the new convent. The sisters lived in the small presbytery - now removed - which the pastor and I vacated to leave to them as their temporary home, while they taught in the little schoolhouse. I had my lodgings in the residence of Mrs. Hilarion Hachey.

"The new convent was completed on the twenty-third of April following Saint George's Day, celebrated that year as the three hundredth anniversary of the great English poet, Shakespeare.

"The nineteenth house of the Institute is the Sacred Heart Convent in Bathurst."

On the first day of September, 1880, four Sisters of Charity arrived in the town to take up the work of teaching. They were Sister Maria Hurley, Sister Leonard MacDonald, Sister Clothilda Delaney and Sister Imelda Martin. They were welcomed at the station by Reverend Thomas Barry. Father Barry brought them to the convent on Saint George Street which was to be their home for twenty years.

On the feast of Our Lady's Nativity, September the eighth, 1880, the public school opened with a registration of one hundred and thirteen pupils.

In September, 1890 Monsignor Barry began what was later one wing of the public school building, and had it ready for use by the fall of 1891. The main entrance and the other wing were built by Right Reverend John Whelen. Monsignor Dosithe Robichaud, the successor of Reverend John Whelen, improved sport facilities by enlarging the school campus. During his pastorate, Bishop Chasson moved his See from Chatham to Bathurst and raised the Sacred Heart Church to the dignity of a Cathedral.

Throughout the passing years the Bathurst schools fostered many vocations to the priesthood and the religious life.

Its surpassing gift to the community was the young girl who left her uncle's rectory in Moncton and travelled to the Mount while he explained the reason of her going to her parents. The priest was Reverend Henry Meahan, the founder of Mary's Home, and the young girl was Mary Meahan, who became in time Reverend Mother Louise.

Several of the New Brunswick girls who entered the Sisters of Charity of Halifax afterwards filled the office of Mother General. There were Mother Benedicta (Joanne Harrington) of Chatham; Mother Mary Cleophas (Connors) of Chatham; Mother Mary Bonaventure (Margaret kennedy) of Dalhousie and Mother Louise (Mary Emma Meahan) of Bathurst.

Mother Louise, (Mary Emma Meahan) was born in Bathurst in 1873, daughter of Francis Meahan and Emma Reade. She entered Mount St. Vincent, Halifax, February 4, 1895.

Her background and career are aptly described in a biographical sketch entitled "The Full Grain", compiled in 1973 by Sister Marguerita Mary St. Croix, of the Sisters of Charity. Following are some of the excerpts:

"It is not too difficult to reconstruct the early days of Mother Mary Louise. Brought up in Bathurst, in the sheltered atmosphere of a fairly well-to-do, middle-class family, she passed her childhood and girlhood in almost uneventful tranquility, a circumstance, which no doubt, contributed much to that marked serenity so characteristic of her in womanhood.

"Her father, Francis Meahan, was well-known in the business and civic life of Bathurst, as the first collector of customs there after Confederation. Later he was Sheriff of Gloucester County until his retirement, about 12 years before his death in 1924."

"The great figure in the Meahan family, however, and the one closely connected with Mother Louise's early life, is her paternal grandfather, John A. Meahan, born May 1, 1806, at Omagh, County Tyrone, Ireland. He emigrated to New Brunswick in 1883 and settled in Bathurst where he established a shipbuilding business on a venturesome scale.

"In political life, John A. Meahan was active as member of the Legislative Assembly of New Brunswick between 1861 and 1870."

Mother Louise was first elected superior general on August 7, 1926. She was re-elected in 1932 and again in 1938 as so served altogether for a record 18 years.

"A religious of mellow wisdom, calm judgment, quick observation and wide experience, Mother Louise was well-qualified for the office. She died (June 3, 1945) and she had lived - with composure and dignity."

During Mother Louise's tenure, the order made tremendous progress. Over 1300 Sisters are presently serving in the various parts of the world including, Bermuda, Central Canada, Dominican, Eastern Canada, Massachusetts, New York, South America and Western Canada. They are engaged in such varied pursuits as education: higher, secondary, elementary, pre-school, special, continuing, public, private, parochial, diocesan; pastoral ministry: parish, diocese, campus, foreign missions; health care services: hospitals, nursing homes, retirement homes; social services: administration, social work, public health nursing, house parent.

Patronage Charged In Liquor Store Rental

Opposition members of the public accounts committee charged April 12 that "blatant patronage" is involved in facilities rented for a liquor store at Grand Anse.

However, a motion condemning the rental agreement was defeated by the government majority on the committee.

Opposition leader Robert Higgins and several other Liberals questioned Auditor-General William McNichol about the auditor-general's 1975-76 report that showed the Grand Anse store was rented for $45,612 while sales totalled $434,291.

The report compares the Grand Anse store to others like the Fredericton Mall where facilities were rented for $36,584 with sales totalling $4.8 million.

Higgins said McNichol should have used "stronger language" in evaluating the figures. "That's why no one pays any attention to the report.... The way you explain it goes right over everybody's head."

Pressed to comment on whether he considered the Grand Anse store a bad investment, McNichol said his intention in the report was to provide the comparison and "allow you to draw your own conclusion."

In the report, the auditor-general remarked that it appeared projected sales volumes were not being taken into account when negotiating rental agreements.

"In view of this, I recommend that greater emphasis be given to this factor in negotiations for future store facilities", the report said.

Higgins termed the Grand Anse rental agreement "ludicrous" and a waste of tax dollars, putting a motion that the committee condemn it.

Norbert Theriault (L-Bay de Vin) said the auditor-general should have recommended that leases of this kind be cancelled and renegotiated.

Theriault said the lease was given to an unsuccessful Progressive Conservative candidate, adding that the practice is a common one in the province and must be stopped.

Andre Robichaud (L-Shippegan les Iles) said members from both parties "must stop kidding ourselves" and condemn the lease which he termed nothing more than a "gift to a defeated candidate."

Joseph Daigle (L-Kent North) added that "everybody knows who owns the Grand Anse Store", urging support for the motion.

Conservative members said they needed more information before they could condemn the lease.

Robert Corbett (PC-Queens South) noted that the auditor-general had not determined whether the Grand Anse store was making a profit or operating in the red.

He also said it could be misleading to compare the Grand Anse store with the Fredericton Mall outlet because a self-contained building would normally be more expensive to rent than a mall location.

Robert Harmer (PC-Petitcodiac) said any comparison between the two outlets should be made with thought to services provided for the facilities, length of lease and when it was signed.

Because the lease is for 30 years, Sterling Hambrook (PC-Southwest Miramichi) suggested it is possible the Grand Anse rental fees might be considered more reasonable in future years and prove a good investment in the long run.

Recalled In Book Joys Of Canoeing

By CAROLINE CARVER

Blackflies And White Water, by A. Tony Sloan (McClelland and Stewart; 191 pages; $10) is the sort of book that has everyone itching to get out into the wilderness again for some paddling, particularly at this time of year when winter has dragged on for so long.

Itching in its other sense, too, for it has a classical and often funny dissertation on the various kinds of biting pests that turn up in the bush.

The author describes, with a sort of admiration for the craft of these monsters, in spite of himself, how the female blackfly is a delicate surgeon, and more of a miner than a biter; how the female mosquito shares the same drinking habits, but uses a different technique; and how horse and deer flies have a work-out in the mid-day sun.

Enough to make one re-think that longing for the bush? Not really, for Tony Sloan has a gift for recapturing the total experience of being on a trip: The sights, sounds and smells, and particularly the joy of it all, told with a nice humor that makes this a particularly readable book.

His description of the whippoorwill is charming; "The only bird around with whiskers- a sort of nightly town crier of the green forest."

WITH SIR ED

Tony Sloan is a long-time canoeist, who has paddled in many places across the country from the unlikely salt waters of Prince Edward Island to the turbulent flow of a river in the Bugaboos.

He has travelled solo and with large parties, the largest being that of Sir Edmund Hillary in La Verendrye. Hillary was field-testing freeze-dried foods and camping equipment on that trip.

"Sir Ed" proved to be a dynamic, if eccentric, leader of the party, breaking camp at lightning speed and not always choosing the best routes. But although the party sometimes grumbled that he was a better mountaineer than a canoeist, he was a popular leader with a good sense of humor, who took a joke well.

Sloan has practical words, too-advice on the right sort of equipment, warnings on how tempers can flare on trips, and he rightly inveighs against the man-made rubbish that is too often found in the bush. Litter is distressing enough in and around urban areas; in the wilderness it seems a crime against Nature.

Blackflies And White Water is a book to read for fun, but it's more than that, thanks to the author's dedication to his subject, and his perceptive eye. Canoeing, to Tony Sloan, is obviously a central part of life, although he's humorously aware of the basic incongruity of it all.

He quotes Paul the Indian in Edson, Alta., who listened to him talking about plans for a two-week trip and then commented: "You white men really make me scratch my head. You work like hell all year at a job you don't like, so you can go on holidays and live like an Indian for two weeks."

LORE OF CANOEING

A serious and important work on canoeing is The Canoe And White Water, by C.E.S. Franks (University of Toronto Press; 225 pages; cloth $17.50, paper $7.95).

This is not a book for a beginner (there are plenty of those) but is meant for people who want to try their hands at fast-running or "white" water. It's amazingly comprehensive, with a detailed history of the development of canoeing in this country, from a basic means of transport to the popular sport it is today.

It has diagrams on paddling techniques through rapids, very detailed lists for provisioning and equipment, a useful chapter on canoeing and the law, and it will undoubtedly become a standard work on the subject.

It may be carping to say that his book lacks that sense of wonderment in the wilderness that gives Black Flies And White Water its charm. It's interesting that both books point to the changes needed in the old ways, through the growing popularity of this and other outdoor sports.

Now many areas are so well travelled that the cutting of wood for fires and bough-beds must often give way to stoves and tents, if the areas are to be properly preserved.

SKI ADVICE

While canoeists may be thinking towards the summer, most cross-country skiers will be packing their equipment away for the season; they should pack with it an excellent new paperback from Michael Keating, Cross-Country Canada (Van Nostrand Reinhold; 212 pages, $6.95).

Jack Rabbit Johannsen, Canada's oldest living skier, has written the foreword, in which he deplores what popularity has done for skiing in making it a big business.

This sets the tone for an exceedingly practical pack-sized book, which gives the basic needs for this excellent sport, sensible lists of equipment, and a good summary of all the public places across the country where it can be done. As Michael Keating says, cross-country skiing is an absolutely ideal sport for Canada.

It is also the perfect counterpoint for canoeing in the summer.

Both can be done alone or in groups, both provide good exercise and access to remote areas, and both, as Tony Sloan says, re-establish a sense of values that permit one to resurface, occasionally, from "the ethical instability of our times."

Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Marie Cormier and son and daughter, Michel and Nicole, and the former's sister, Miss Rita Cormier, spent Easter weekend in the Port City where they were visiting with their sister, Miss Claudette Cormier who is progressing satisfactorily in the Saint John General Hospital. A patient there for the past month, Miss Cormier is expecting to be discharged in a couple of weeks.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Don Manuel of Saint John on the arrival of a son, Craig Donald, born April 4, a brother for Keith Allen. Mrs. Manuel, the former Helen Quinn, is a daughter of Mr. Leo Quinn, 1760 Rough Waters Drive. Mr. Manuel who is employed as Scotia Plan loans officer with the Bank of Nova Scotia in Saint John was formerly engaged in the same position with the firm's branch in Bathurst.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Babineau, and their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Couture have returned from a three-week vacation. They travelled by car to Toronto to visit their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Babineau who joined them on a motor trip to Orlando, Florida, where they spent two weeks. Disneyworld and Seaworld were among the attractions the party enjoyed. En route home, the Bathurst group visited with another daughter of the Babineau's, Mrs. Betty Doucet and family at Mississauga, Ont., over Easter weekend.

The family and many friends of Mrs. Stan Blanchard are pleased to learn she has been discharged from Chaleur General Hospital after undergoing gall bladder surgery.

Mrs. W. S. Hosking has returned from a 10-day vacation in Ontario where she visited her sons, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hosking and family at Mississauga and Mr. and Mrs. John Hosking and family, Oakville. She also spent a couple of days at Guelph visiting her brother-in-law and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hosking.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Salesse and son Mark spent Easter weekend in Montreal where she visited her sister, Miss Anna Quinn, and her brother, Mr. George Quinn. They also visited many friends in the city.

MR. AND MRS. LEANDRE HACHEY

All 12 Children Celebrate 50th Anniversary With Parents

A family gathering over Easter weekend was the occasion for marking the 50th wedding anniversary on April 9 of a well-known and liked Robertville couple, Mr. and Mrs. Leandre Hachey.

The function was held in the basement of St. Theresa Church at Robertville where over 100 relatives, neighbors and friends were gathered, among them Mr. and Mrs. Hachey's nine daughters and three sons. They earlier attended a special anniversary mass at nine o'clock with Rev. Zoel Saulnier as the celebrant.

Celebrations were held 10 days early so that children living out of the province could come home during the Easter holiday weekend for their parent's golden anniversary.

The children are: Leonard, Robertville; Mrs. Wilbrod Pelletier (Lauza), Mrs. Roland Boudreau (Carmella), Mrs. Jacques Laplante (Jeannine) and Bernadin, all of Nigadoo; Emilien, Mrs. Michel Albert (Jeanne) and Mrs. Antonio Arseneau (Angeline), all of Bathurst; Mrs. Claude Collette (Lucille) of Caraquet, Mrs. Neil Colbert (Jacqueline) and Claudette, Ottawa, and Gilberte, Montreal. It is interesting to note that Jeannine Laplante and Jeanne Albert are twins. There are 22 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Doucet the former Evangeline Doucet, were married by the late Rev. Cajetan Poirier on April 19, 1927 and have lived in their native Robertville all their lives. Their attendants 50 years ago were the bride's sister Stella (Mrs. Paul Arseneau) who resides in Robertville, but was unable to attend due to ill health, and the late Alphonse Corneau.

A kitchen set was presented the honored couple on behalf of the family and a gold-embossed anniversary plate was given by the grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Doucet also received other gifts including flowers, money and souvenirs of the occasion as well as numerous congratulatory messages. Among the messages were those from various dignitaries including Prime Minister P. E. Trudeau, Premier Richard Hatfield and Msgr. Edgar Godin, Bishop of Bathurst.

Acting as witnessing attendants for the evening were Mrs. Florida Gallant, sister of the groom, and the bride's brother, Edgar Doucet, both of Bathurst.

A special address in tribute to their parents was read by their daughter, Jeanne Albert. The toast to the bride was proposed by a nephew, Marc Gallant, Moncton.

The evening of music, singing and dancing concluded with the serving of a buffet luncheon.

The bridal table was centered with an appropriately decorated anniversary cake, flanked by tall golden tapers in gold holders and floral arrangements.

Mr. Hachey, who was engaged mainly in woods contracting, also operated a farm on a smaller scale. He retired about eight years ago.

The Hacheys are in good health, enjoy playing cards and visiting with members of their family. Mr. Hachey has a small vegetable garden in the summer while his wife who does her own housework and cooking is occupied with quilting, knitting and sewing as a pastime. Both have always been active and interested in church and community affairs.

Those attending from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. Colbert and Miss Claudette Hachey, Ottawa; Miss Gilbert Hachey, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Collette, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Boudreau, Caraquet; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bourgeois (the bride's sister Julia) and Mr. and Mrs. Marc Gallant, Moncton.

The drawing on the quilt lottery, proceeds of which was forwarded to the Provincial W.I. office, was made by the president, the winner being Beatrice Branch.

It was noted that the cupboards at the Community Centre have been completed and that all bills are paid.

After the elections, it was decided that all bills be paid, following motion of Mrs. Ira Jagoe, seconded by Mrs. Murray Ellis.

BUYING METRIC COOKING MEASURES

To test your metric recipes, you will need the new metric cooking measures. These new "measures have been established by the Canadian Government Specifications Board in their Standard for Metric Cooking Measures. This standard establishes the following sizes and markings

LIQUID MEASURES come in three sizes: 250 ml, graduated in 25 ml increments, 500 ml, graduated in 50 ml increments; and 1 l (100 ml) graduated in 50 ml increments

DRY MEASURES come in three sizes: 50 ml, 125 ml and 250 ml

SMALL MEASURES come in five sizes: 1 ml, 2 ml, 15 ml and 25 ml

These measures can now be purchased from: The Metric Shop, 25 Ronson Drive, Rexdale, Ontario

Some stores in New Brunswick are also selling metric cooking measures. However, in a random survey throughout the Province, we found that the catchword should be "let the buyer beware"

Let's take a look at the liquid measures available. It is permissible for these to have dual (metric and Imperial) size labels since the contents are read at eye level according to the scale needed. However, the buyer must still be sure that the overall size and the graduated markings are correct for the metric scale. Here in New Brunswick in the stores surveyed, only the Pyrex brand was correct in all sizes.

With the dry and small measures it is another story. These two types should never have dual labels since the measures must be level full to be accurate. Remember the correct metric measures replace the Imperial ones; they do not equal the "cups" and "spoons"

The dry measures should have three sizes only. The small measures should have five sizes and should never use decimals

Again in our survey we found very few correct examples. Only Frig-O-Seal (scoops only), Levco and Pantry Pride brands were the correct metric sizes for dry measures. And only Pantry Pride brand was correct for the small measures.

There are many brands available. Be sure the ones you use are correct. More information on the Standard for Metric Cooking Measures is available from your District Home Economist.

Since April 1, 1977, the Home Economics Districts in Northeast New Brunswick have been reorganized from six Districts to three. For information on metric conversion programs you should make the following contacts.

TD No-charge chequing

...it's not a big deal, but it's a good deal!

QUESTION: Why did TD introduce No-Charge Chequing?
ANSWER: We're trying to get your business.

QUESTION: What does No-Charge Chequing offer?
ANSWER: During PCA statement periods in which a customer's minimum balance is $200 or more, TD cancels the normal 16¢ charge per cheque.

QUESTION: Why is there a minimum balance?
ANSWER: TD invests the $200 to help offset the expense of processing the customer's cheques.

QUESTION: Who is benefiting from No-Charge Chequing?
ANSWER:
(1) Our records show that many of our PCA customers always keep a $200 balance.
(2) Some TD customers now plan ahead and keep an extra $200 in their account when they intend to write a lot of cheques.
(3) Some customers occasionally build up to a $200 minimum 'by chance.'
They can all benefit from No-Charge Chequing.

QUESTION: Would it be more profitable to keep the $200 in a Premium Savings Account?
ANSWER: If you write more than 7 cheques during a statement period, we can show you that No-Charge Chequing is a better deal.

QUESTION: Isn't No-Charge Chequing really just 'a little extra' to make TD more competitive?
ANSWER: Yes. We want you to be a TD customer.

QUESTION: So it's not a big deal?
ANSWER: No. But it's a good deal. You should look into it.

ANN LANDERS

Husband's Hang-Up Is Her Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Once you wrote, "If you don't use it – you'll lose it." I don't think my husband ever had it, or if he had it, he lost it before he met me.

"L." is a terrific person. I love him dearly. We have a wonderful marriage – everywhere but in bed. The man can think of 20 things to do before turning in. By then, of course, he is too exhausted for anything more than a peck on the cheek.

I find myself thinking of ways to seduce him and I hate myself for it. We are still in our 20s and have been married only five years. I should tell you our honeymoon was very unexciting. "L." was always finding something to do that required time and energy. What's my problem, Ann? – Hungry

DEAR H.: Your problem is learning how to deal with HIS problem which is either a very low sex drive or impotency.

Almost all impotency in men under 50 has a psychological base (early hang-ups, guilt about sex, etc.). I hope "L." will agree to get some counseling. Husbands who can live without sex – especially young husbands – should be mindful that even if THEY can, some wives can't.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently, my husband, who is a Methodist minister, performed a wedding ceremony uniting two young people. Now his conscience is bothering him because he realizes the marriage should never have taken place.

A few days before the ceremony, the groom told my husband and his intended that he didn't want to go through with the wedding because he was still in love with the girl to whom he had been previously engaged. The bride made a terrible fuss and refused to call off the wedding.

Now my husband believes the ceremony was not only the devil's work but a fraud. He feels guilty about having performed the ceremony and can't sleep at night. Please print this letter and ask other ministers if they feel my husband did wrong – Miserable in Charleston, S.C.

DEAR MISERABLE: Here's the letter. Now, let's hear from the clergymen. Since you didn't ask for my opinion I'm not giving one.

DEAR ANN: When I was of high school and college age, my father frequently used my honesty and outspokenness as an excuse to provoke a heated argument at the supper table. It often ended with him chewing me out, leaving his meal unfinished and stomping into the den to read the paper.

Twenty years later I realized Dad used me, his son, as an outlet for the tension he was unable to release in a socially acceptable manner.

Outside the home, particularly among his business associates, Dad was regarded as a "great guy" and "a very amiable person." His son got the worst of him in order that others might get the best. This enabled "Mr. Corporate Big Wheel" to climb the ladder of success and support his family whom he loved. I didn't understand it then, but I do now. I'll sign this letter – My Turn Now.

DEAR TURN: Your explanation sounds like an oversimplication, but if this rationalization has given you peace of mind, who am I to raise questions?

Your signature bothers me. I hope you aren't planning to do the same to your son.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom", could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Is Honorary President Of Provincial CMHA

MRS. H. J. ROBICHAUD

Mrs. Joyce Watling, president of the N.B. Division of the Canadian Health Association, is pleased to announce that Mrs. Gertrude Robichaud, wife of Lieutenant-Governor Hon. Hedard J. Robichaud, has accepted the post of honorary president of the New Brunswick Division of the CMHA.

Mrs. Robichaud was born Nov. 28, 1916 at Lower Caraquet, daughter of the late Frederick Leger and Louise LeBouthillier. She received her education at the convent of La Congregation Notre-Dame, Caraquet, where she graduated in commercial studies. In October 1937, she married Hedard J. Robichaud and they have nine children.

Mrs. Robichaud spent many years in Ottawa where her husband was a member of parliament and then minister of fisheries during the two terms of the Pearson Government.

In October 1971, Mrs. Robichaud returned to Fredericton, where her husband assumed the office of Lieutenant-Governor of the province. While residing in Ottawa, and particularly now in New Brunswick, she is called upon to participate in numerous social functions associated with the office of Lieutenant-Governor.

In accepting the position, Mrs. Robichaud said that the work of the Association was well known to her husband and herself, and it was with pleasure that she would act as the honorary president of the New Brunswick Division.

The association, known more familiarly as Mental health New Brunswick, has 12 branches in the province, situated in Saint John, St. Stephen, Norton, Sussex, Moncton, Buctouche, St. Louis de Kent, Bathurst, Campbellton, Edmundston, Grand Falls and Fredericton.

Its primary goals are to promote mental health, to increase public awareness and understanding of mental health and mental illness and the services available, to press for adequate facilities and services, and to support research into the causes, prevention and treatment of mental illness.

In addition, the local branches provide rehabilitation programs, operated by volunteers in most cases.

Weekly Prayer Meeting Report

The regular weekly meeting of the Peace, Joy and Love Prayer Community was held Monday evening.

The joy of Easter was expressed with hymns such as Sing Alleluia and God's Joy Filled People.

Throughout the teaching, the theme, Jesus is Lord, was developed with three points: Jesus as Savior, Jesus as the Annointer, and Jesus as Lord and Ruler.

The Gospel was also on the same theme. Though Jesus was God, He humbled Himself by appearing in human likeness, suffering and dying for us. God raised Him to the highest place above and we proclaim that "Jesus is Lord."

The eucharist was celebrated by Father Jules, Capuchin. Sharing and fellowship brought the evening to a close.

Ephesians 6 - 14 tells us to "stand ready; have truth for a belt tight around your waist; put on righteousness for your breastplate; and have readiness to announce the good news of peace as shoes for your feet."

Duplicate Bridge Results

Robert Baker and his playing partner Don Betts of Campbellton were top scorers at the April 11 session of the Bathurst Duplicate Bridge Club.

Mrs. A. Ferguson and Mrs. D. Shirley wound up in second place while Mrs. Ernest Aube and Mrs. J. A. Dube were third.

Above average scorers were Mrs. James Hobbs and Mrs. B. Kenny; Mrs. Wilfred Bertin and Isidore Pelletier.

A special club "charity game" will be held Monday, Apr. 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the J. Gordon Chalmers School Library.

Funds raised at this event are sent to A.C.B.L. (American Contract Bridge League) to form part of large donations used for research in heart, cancer diseases etc., and similar worthwhile efforts.

Shopping Made More Pleasant

The many customers who visited Eddy Hardware's renovated premises last week were pleased and impressed with the new decor and added services and conveniences.

Innovations created over the past several months include a new carpet department on the main floor, a larger housewares dept. with the addition of many new lines, plumbing boutique in the basement, along with a doubled-in-size sporting goods department and an electrical section with additional lines.

New counters have been installed and displays lowered in order to make the store more open and visible. Checkouts have been positioned and a new truck added to the firm's fleet for faster delivery.

With all these modern changes for the accommodation of its clientele, Eddy's have maintained the same personal service which has been a trademark in the past. In addition, retail sale prices have been lowered, and a passenger elevator plies between the basement and the third floor.

Eddy Hardward has gone all out to make shopping easier, better and more economical for the people the company considers it a privilege to serve. By the same token, management and staff are happy over the kind compliments their efforts have earned.

YOUR BUSINESS

One Way To Beat The Heating Game

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If circumstances have ever combined to encourage owners to insulate their homes, they have now.

The Weather once again favors work on such projects, the cost of home-heating supplies has just gone up, and the March 31 federal budget removed the sales tax from insulating materials and other energy-saving products.

How does insulation pay off? By inhibiting the transfer of heat from the warm side to the cold side-to the outdoors in winter and to the interior in the summer.

All houses, whether insulated or uninsulated, lose some heat. But the differences can be enormous.

John A. Murphy, in his recent book, The HOMEOWNER'S Energy Guide (Fitzhenry and Whiteside Ltd.; 215 pages; $8.40) notes a heat loss of 237 million BTU (British Thermal Units) in an uninsulated house vs. 55 million in a comparable but insulated house during a typical heating season.

Heat is also gained by houses-through sunshine, body heat, cooking and so on.

"In the better insulated home, a paradox occurs," Murphy notes. "The potential heat gains of the home exceed the potential heat losses."

WHAT IT COSTS

The main objective in any insulation program is to seal off air infiltration, thus making use of internal heat gains and reducing the costs of heating.

Naturally, there has to be some balance between the cost of insulation and the potential saving.

But major heating leaks in such areas as ceilings and sidewalls have to be corrected, regardless of cost.

Fiberglass is the most common material, often having a vapor barrier in the form of treated kraft paper. But, because of the difficulties in stapling this material to studs, Murphy doesn't recommend it.

His preference is for friction-fit fiberglass insulation. While it doesn't have a vapor barrier, this problem can be corrected by stapling vinyl sheet over the insulation and the studs.

"In areas such as floor cavities," he adds, "friction-fit insulation can be installed in floor spaces with greater ease and less work than kraft-paper-backed insulation."

OTHER MATERIALS

One other commonly used insulation material is cellulose, which Murphy regards as superior thermally to fiberglass.

"Blowing cellulose into the attic could be an easy and rewarding project for the home owner," he says.

he says.

"In most cases this insulation job should be done by a professional if the home-owner doesn't have the required skills.

"Holes will have to be drilled on the exterior siding to allow insulation to be blown into the wall cavity."

A word of warning: Cellulose (made of macerated paper) must be treated for fire resistance and must also be vermin-proof and insect-proof.

Another technique is wet application of cellulose-as, for example, on basement walls and between floor joists. Vinyl adhesive makes the cellulose a solid "blanket."

Yet another widely used insulating material is urethane foam. It, too, can be applied wet, but the author warns that skill is required in handling the equipment.

There are also solid styrene-foam boards, but a complete fire-retardant seal must be used over the insulation.

Historical Site Proposed

A Tracadie historian, Eloi DeGrace, has suggested that l'Acadamie St. Famille (Holy Family Academy) and its surrounding area be restored as a historical site.

Mr. DeGrace made the suggestion while speaking at a meeting of a committee made up of Tracadie businessmen and clergy members who are interested in preserving the town landmark.

Mr. DeGrace told the group that the possibilities for the convent are endless and encouraged the committee to continue working on its venture. He said the leper's graveyard behind the academy could go along with the proposed historical attraction.

The academy was originally a girls' boarding school that closed its doors in 1967. It was then rented to the local school board and served as an elementary school until this year. There are currently 12 sisters from the hospitalers of the St. Joseph's Religious Order living in the convent.

"The races this year were up at Mont Tremblant, we had one at Mosport, St. Ayr and Three Rivers Gran Prix. I came in fifth in my class. That's pretty good, first year of racing. I had never driven a front wheel drive car or a Honda. It's been good on the track. Very peppy, handles beautifully. I've always liked racing, and on a track, you don't get speeding tickets."
Michael Solomon, Montreal, Quebec.

The businessman who owns a fleet of Honda Civics.
"We were looking for an economical car. We've tried several of them. Honda was one we hadn't tried. We wanted to see how it compared with the other ones. I went to the dealer's and tried the car out. I was quite impressed by it. This was when we bought our first one and we subsequently bought the other five about six months later."
Ross Flint, Paragon Reproductions, Scarborough, Ontario.

What sets them apart from other motorists is their enthusiasm for the car they own. The car that's sweeping Canada off its wheels. The Honda Civic.

Local Labour Group Plans Action Program

Kevin O'Connell, president of Bathurst and District Labour Council announced April 12 following a meeting that a committee will be established forthwith to convene meetings with the area M.L.A.s and M.P.s.

The intention is to impress upon them the need for an immediate end to the federal wage and price control program which has been supported fully since its inception in October, 1975 by the provincial Conservatives and Liberals.

Mr. O'Connell said it is paramount that the provincially elected representatives react immediately as the Canadian economy is being wrecked while the New Brunswick economy is even more depressed.

"We have unemployment worse than the '30s. To be exact 38,000 unemployed in N.B. that we know of, not counting those that have totally withdrawn from the labour market because of no possibility of finding a job.

"Among younger people (15-24 age group) 18,000 are unemployed. In addition universities will be putting out another large group of graduates in another month with no job prospects and huge student loans to pay."

Gregory Murphy, Canadian Labour Congress representative from Moncton, noted that some unions, workers and the general public are labouring under the impression that the CLC has committed the workers to a voluntary restraint program if the controls are lifted immediately. He said that was a totally false impression.

When the meeting took place in Ottawa on March 22 with Prime Minister Trudeau, Finance Minister MacDonald and Labour Minister Munroe along with representatives of the C.L.C. executive committee and the business community, the following proposals were put to the government jointly:

1) that the controls program immediately end for everyone at the same time,

2) that the government refrain from making any statements in the budget that would preclude an early end to controls.

3) that the government convene as soon as possible a tripartite meeting between themselves, labour and industry that would discuss solutions to Canada's economic problems including the terrible rate of unemployment, continuing inflation and the need to develop job-creation programs.

In other council action a number of resolutions were adopted for submission to the annual N.B. Federation of Labour convention in Moncton in mid May.

Some of the resolutions include an improvement in the system of tax credits for those people on fixed incomes so that they will not be forced out of their homes because of escalating assessments and property taxes; a provincial safety conference sponsored by labour to look at improvements in legislation in other parts of the country; conciliation officers be hired from New Brunswick; an immediate end to wage and price controls for everyone; and members of school be paid for meetings or for lost wages.

The Council heard areas Vice-President of the N.B. Federation report that a meeting is to be convened in Halifax on April 29 to establish a Maritime Union of Federations of Labour.

The Council made donations to the Bathurst Music Festival, the NBFL political action fund, the NBFL fund to support the I.L.A. in their court cost to take a N.B. Supreme Court decision to the Supreme Court of Canada on the issue of ordering members of their union to cross a legally established picket line in the Port of Saint John last summer.

Mr. O'Connell and Martin Badman were selected as delegates to the NBFL convention in May.

The municipal labour body will also convene a meeting in the near future to discuss the future status of the annual Labour Day Parade that has been a part of Bathurst scene for years.

Tours, Films Discussions, Music, Films

All this and more took place on April 6 - between the hours of one and four. But don't let this heading fool you. These are not the highlights of a political campaign, nor does it describe a lost weekend in Mexico. Simply it is the description of the last of the half-day workshops for English Schools in District 4.

Principals and Vice-Principals of most schools attended a meeting of administrators at Bathurst High School.

Activities for all other teachers included workshops in Math, English, French, Social Studies, Reading and Music.

Discussion and debates took place on the future of Junior High Schools, the realities of school life, the educational process and the community and the teacher.

Some teachers reviewed films and a few teachers toured the Mines.

And now the English schools say good-bye to the half-day workshops for this year. They have been demanding! They have been educational! They have been helpful! They have been fun!

If you haven't used the gates power crimp system you will probably think this is a pretty strong statement to back up.

However if you are using the gates system you know how our hose assemblies are simple and easy to make right on the job on any size hose up to 1" I.D. diameter.

You also know that gates fittings are power sealed for super strength under extreme pressure and each fitting is neatly fitted with a collar only slightly larger than your hose.

A JOB LIKE THIS AT LESS THAN HALF THE PRICE!

Says Canadian Nuclear Program Safe, Sound

(By J.A.L. Robertson in the B.C Professional Engineer).

In energy policy, as in other public affairs, an informed and constructive opposition is most valuable. The public must form its judgements from the debate between proponents and opponents. Unfortunately, the nuclear debate in Canada is becoming increasingly polarized just when agreement and action are needed, and the media often seem more interested in promoting confrontation than resolving issues. Articles talking of "Armageddon" and "Apocalypse" are surely not seeking a rational debate.

Here I hope to show why nuclear proponents, no less moral or ethical than their critics, advocate nuclear power as a safe and sound contribution to Canada's energy needs. I am for nuclear power because I favor conservation and protection of the environment.

The issues that seem to be causing real public concern over nuclear power are: reactor safety, radioactive releases, radioactive wastes, plutonium hazards, and uranium supplies.

Critics claim that nuclear power will lead to a vulnerable centralized society, but nuclear-electric systems need be no more vulnerable nor centralized than the hydro-electric systems that have allowed rural Canadians to enjoy decentralized living. The proliferation of nuclear weapons is a very serious world problem, but a problem that existed before nuclear power and would continue to exist even if nuclear power ceased. Any state wanting nuclear weapons can obtain them more easily by means other than power reactors

Results from California's "nuclear initiative" vote suggest appreciable opposition to nuclear power in that state. However, the wording of the resolution was such that the requirements demanded of nuclear power could not be satisfied by either coal-fired or geothermal plants. Last summer's Harris Poll for the whole of the US showed 63 per cent of the public for nuclear power and only 19 per cent against. A similar attitude was found in a survey by Ontario Hydro of residents of the North Shore of Lake Huron

REACTOR SAFETY

Much of the public concern stems from the conscious or unconscious association of nuclear power with nuclear weapons. In reality, a nuclear power reactor simply cannot explode like an atomic bomb. We can refute any statement to the contrary. What we cannot refute is innuendo, for instance a magazine illustration of a mushroom cloud rising from a reactor.

There is also unjustified fear of a devastating reactor accident. Any meaningful discussion of accident risks must recognize that absolute safety is an abstraction and that all risks are relative. Nuclear critics demand that nuclear power be perfectly risk-free, while ignoring the risks of alternatives, including an energy shortage. The record on nuclear safety is clear: no one has ever been injured, let alone killed, by the operation of nuclear reactors in Canada. The nuclear industry's record is such that actuarially we are safer at work than staying home.

In the absence of accident statistics, nuclear risks have to be predicted analytically, as done by Professor N.C. Rasmussen of M.I.T. and his associates for the US Light Water Reactors. Their results, which would be little different for Canadian CANDU reactors, are summarized and compared with other risks. Their results show that at each level of fatalities the risk from 100 nuclear power plants is much less than the risks from most other man-caused or natural phenomena. As a further illustration, the risk of 1000 people being killed by a reactor accident is about one ten-thousandth the risk of 1000 people being killed as a result of a dam failure. Even if the estimates of nuclear risk were in error by a factor of ten, which is conceivable, the significance of the conclusions would remain largely unaffected.

The hazard of nuclear power is exposure of the public to the radioactive by-products of fission. Most of these are formed within the fuel, and their release is prevented by five successive barriers. Despite this defence in depth, Canadian utilities have to show that their plants could sustain a serious failure without releasing to the public unacceptable amounts of radioactivity. The reactor consists of process systems for normal power production and safety systems to protect against the consequences of an accident. It is assumed, without having to justify the assumption, that any process system and any safety system can fail coincidentally. Routine testing of the various components measures their reliability, confirming that such an accident would occur no more often than once every 3000 reactor-years.

A Nobel Laureate, Hannes Alfven, is often quoted as saying that fission energy is safe only if everything operates perfectly: "No acts of God can be permitted." This is simply untrue. Knowing that equipment fails, that humans make errors and that "acts of God" occur, designers design reactors to be safe under real life conditions.

Even a well-armed, well-equipped, knowledgeable band of saboteurs would find it extremely difficult to achieve the damage that must be assumed to happen in protecting against a major accident. In assessing the effects it is immaterial whether equipment failure or malevolent action initiates the "accident." If the terrorists' objective is to cause maximum harm there are certainly many more attractive targets in present day society.

RADIOACTIVE RELEASES

As with the risk of a major accident, so with day-to-day emissions we cannot claim perfection. We do claim, however, that radiation from these emissions contributes a very small fraction of normal exposures and that any associated risk is justified by the benefits, according to society's own standards

Nuclear power stations release none of the usual chemical pollutants but they do release small amounts of radioactivity. Paradoxically, although the emissions from a coal-fired plant can cause more deaths, those from a nuclear plant are probably more feared. It is easier to monitor radioactivity and much more is known about its effects on health than for other pollutants. Nevertheless, many people have a gut reaction to radioactivity and radiation based on the belief that these are outside mankind's experience to date. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The earth has contained radioactivity from its start, while ionizing radiation is older than the earth. Mankind has evolved in radiation as part of the natural environment. Despite this fact it would still be worrying if the introduction of nuclear power were to impose on the human race a large or sudden increase in radiation dose. Such is not the case. Even if all electricity were to be generated by nuclear power the resulting population doses would be well within the present range of naturally occurring variations.

Nuclear power in Canada has, from its inception, been regulated by an independent agency, the Atomic Energy Control Board (AECB) assisted by many other agencies. The AECB bases its regulations on recommendations of the International Commission on Radiological Protection (ICRP) which include

-Doses (of radiation) should be as low as readily achievable, economic and social considerations being taken into account, and

-Doses should be justifiable by the expected benefits of the procedures

What is objectionable in these criteria? Indeed, would not the public interest be served by other industries adopting a similar code?

Direct application of the ICRP recommendations leads to the requirement that a hypothetical individual who spends his whole life at the boundary of the station's exclusion area, (the "fence-post individual") should not be exposed to more than 500 milli-rem per year as a result of the station's operation. (A milli-rem, or one thousandth of a rem, is the customary unit of personnel exposures to ionizing radiation.) The permissible emissions from the station, which are monitored for verification by the AECB, are set to satisfy this requirement with due allowance for any concentration of radioactivity in the food chain.

The design objective for reactors is actually only one per cent of the permissible level, and experience at Pickering shows the objective to be realistic. In practice, the maximum individual exposure is therefore 5 milli-rem per year with the average public exposure very much less. Alarmist predictions of the harmful effects of nuclear power are based on the totally unrealistic assumption that the total population is exposed to the maximum permissible dose, which could exist only at the fence-post

To appreciate the significance of 5 milli-rem per year it must be put into perspective. This maximum dose would increase the average individual's dose by only three per cent, whereas natural variations in dose within Canada can easily amount to 20 per cent. Also, a return-trip jet-flight to Europe would give as much exposure as spending a whole year at the Pickering Station's fence-post.

RADIOACTIVE WASTES

Much of the concern over nuclear power relates to the care and protection of the resulting waste products. While these are highly radioactive they are far less bulky than the wastes from a comparable coal-fired plant. Thus neither the logistics nor the economics of their management presents any serious problem. Most people's concern seems to stem from a feeling that the long term solution is undemonstrated and that we will be bequeathing to future generations a responsibility for surveillance. In fact, the intended procedures are being more carefully analysed and tested than are those for the disposal of conventional poisons - some of which will last forever! Also, these wastes will no more need guarding in perpetuity than will the much larger amounts of radium and chemical poisons that Nature has buried in the earth's crust.

Currently, the spent fuel from CANDU reactors is stored safely and under supervision in water-filled pools at the reactor sites. Design and testing of alternative facilities are at present under way to allow the future transfers of this fuel to centralized, supervised depositories for the next 20 to 25 years. Meanwhile we will be conducting an extensive program on the permanent storage of radioactive wastes in geologic formations. Towards the end of the period a significant amount of wasted would be stored at a demonstration site in a retrievable manner, so that in the event of unforeseen problems the wastes could be safely recovered. When favourable operating experience has generated sufficient confidence in the procedure further wastes could be placed permanently in the geologic storage facility which could then be sealed and backfilled

In Canada both salt beds and impermeable granite are being investigated as long term storage sites, since there is geologic evidence that they are stable structures which have remained undisturbed and dry for periods that are long, compared with the radioactive lives of the wastes. However, even if water should somehow gain access to the wastes the safety of future generations would not be jeopardized. The leaching of radioactivity from the highly insoluble wastes would impose a delay of about 10,000 years; and movement through an aquifer with associated ion exchange would delay any release even longer. As a result, the highly radioactive isotopes, because of their relatively short lives, would never surface and only very small amounts of the much longer lived actinides could ever be released into the human environment. Once again, protective redundancy allows for "acts of God" while still ensuring safety

What has been said would apply even if the spent fuel were consigned to permanent storage without any further treatment. However, spent fuel contains about .4 per cent plutonium which is a potentially valuable nuclear fuel. Indeed, by the end of this century the plutonium in Canadian spent fuel will have an energy content equivalent to several billion barrels of oil. Provided that the plutonium can be used safely it is unlikely to be ignored by a world suffering from energy shortages; the spent fuel will probably be recycled to recover its contained plutonium and unburned uranium. If so, the true wastes, amounting to about one per cent of the fuel by weight, will be processed into insoluble glass blocks, which would be put into geologic storage

The recent discovery in Gabon of two large underground deposits of uranium in which large scale fission had occurred naturally a billion years ago lends support to the geologic storage approach. Very little movement of the hazardous wastes had taken place, despite the absence of any precautions.

PLUTONIUM HAZARDS

The concern over using plutonium results from it being highly toxic (but not the most toxic substance known to man, as sometimes claimed). Again much of the concern is emotional due to a fear of the unknown.

Weight for weight, plutonium is slightly less toxic than naturally occurring radium of which there are millions of tons within digging distance of the earth's surface. This example emphasizes the obvious, that a toxic substance is harmless unless assimilated. Plutonium, unlike radium, is carefully contained to prevent it being assimilated.

Much plutonium has already been separated and processed, mostly in countries with nuclear weapons programs; more has already been handled than will be generated in Canadian fuel to the end of this century. Despite all this experience, and some rather primitive precautions in the early days, the UK's Medical Research Council has reported that "no cancers or detrimental biological effects in man can be unequivocally attributed to plutonium."

Application of the ICRP recommendations already discussed leads to a Maximum Permissible Body Burden (MPBB) for plutonium of .6 micro-grams; an amount that, although small, could be monitored and checked in humans. A misunderstanding of MPBB seems to have resulted in the often repeated statement "A few ounces of plutonium can kill nine billion people" which is responsible for so much of the fear of plutonium. For comparison, Professor B.L. Cohen has estimated that five ounces dispersed with maximum effect in a city, would cause about ten deaths, more than 15 years later. In his estimate, admittedly inexact, Cohen allowed for the facts that very little of the plutonium released would be assimilated and that the lethal dose is some hundreds of times the MPBB.

A terrorist's threat to use plutonium would be effective only to the extent that the public believes the exaggerated hazard.

At present the plutonium in spent fuel from Canadian reactors is practically impregnable. Even if terrorists could steal the highly radioactive spent fuel, they would still have to transport it in heavy, shielded containers to some clandestinely constructed multi-million-dollar chemical plant before they could start to separate the plutonium. If in the future plutonium is recycled back into CANDU reactors separated plutonium would exist at only one controlled location, so that guarding it would be relatively simple.

URANIUM SUPPLY

Concern has been expressed that there is insufficient uranium to support a continuing nuclear program into the next century. In Canada, Government policy assures sufficient supplies to fuel all domestic reactors for their full design life of thirty years. This should smooth out temporary instabilities in supply while renewed exploration with the increased incentive of higher prices should greatly increase reserves. However, eventually low cost supplies must be exhausted and one can already see in the US some reluctance to commit nuclear plants because of a lack of confidence in uranium supply.

In anticipation of this concern several countries are developing fast breeder reactors. The basic principle behind fast breeders is to decrease the amount of uranium consumed so much that the cost of power produced is virtually independent of the cost of the uranium feed. As a result, much more expensive uranium can be afforded, thereby vastly increasing the available reserves. Fortunately for Canada, the same decoupling of power costs from feed costs can be achieved in CANDU reactors by means of a thorium fuel cycle. Without the need for a tremendously expensive development program to introduce a completely new reactor type we can assure a virtually inexhaustible fuel supply. Confidence in the availability of this option depends on a demonstration of spent fuel reprocessing and plutonium recycling with thorium feed, both of which have been shown to be feasible on an experimental scale.

CONCLUSION

In concluding an article largely devoted to answering criticism I should end on a more positive note.

Energy, besides being a staple itself, is an essential component of any solution to most other major issues: securing enough food, reducing pollution, obtaining raw materials, reducing economic disparities and reducing international tensions.

Nobody who has seen peasants toiling like beasts of burden can question the moral case for them having more energy per capita. Even in Canada, we should aim to improve the standard of living of those near the poverty level, and this is impossible without more energy per capita.

The federal government's recently published booklet "An Energy Strategy for Canada" shows that we no longer enjoy as many options as was once thought. Nuclear power is not a panacea. But then neither are the tar sands, nor frontier resources, nor solar power, nor conservation. All energy sectors must make their best contributions if we are to achieve energy self-reliance.

Under these circumstances CANDU reactors offer many attractions, including:

-substitution of plentiful nuclear fuels for depleting fossil fuels

-consequent improvement in balance of payments

-development of skilled jobs in a secondary industry that is particularly suited to Canadian conditions, and

-increasing Canadian ownership in the energy sector.

The CANDU reactor is an

EAGER TO LEARN DANCING AND SWIMMING

Students at the Flowers of Hope School, Youghal Dr., through the Department of Youth and Recreation, are being given dancing and swimming lessons. The youngsters are receiving their dancing lessons from Dorothy's School of Dancing, and the swimming is being held at the Bathurst High School swimming pool conducted by Lorraine Lanteigne, aquatic director who has had previous experience in working with handicapped children. The purpose of this program is to develop a physical aptitude in mentally handicaps so that they can participate in organized recreational activities when they reach adulthood. The dancing group will be participating in a dance show organized by Dorothy's School of Dancing in June.

Those attending from a distance include Mrs. Walter Zampolin, Miss Jean Doucet, Toronto; Emile Doucet, Martin Doucet, Joey and Richard Doucet, Renfrew, Ont.; and Mr. and Mrs. James Chiasson, Minto.

Infant Dies In Hospital

The death of Jason Allen, infant son of Allen and Murielle Miller, 1730 King Ave., occurred April 12 at Chaleur General Hospital about five hours after birth.

Surviving besides the parents are his maternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Jean Desgrosseilliers of Caraquet, and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Miller, Salmon Beach.

Entombment will be followed by burial in St. Alban's Anglican Cemetery, Sand Hill, later this spring when a children's and committal services will take place.

achievement in which Canadians can take pride. It is the only independent design that has survived in international competition with the US's Light Water Reactors (LWRs) and it was introduced at much less cost. It uses less uranium than the LWR, and is expected to continue in service after the LWR has been phased out in favour of Fast Breeder Reactors. The performance record of the CANDU reactors at Pickering is second to none. Electricity is being produced at a cost roughly half that from a comparable coal fired plant.

The station has produced more electricity than any other nuclear station and, in doing so, has saved the equivalent of 80 million barrels of oil.

65 Employed At Sawmill

Natural Resources Minister Roland Boudreau said April 13 that 65 workers are now employed in chipping operations at the Brunswick Mills sawmill.

Boudreau announced March 22 that the mill's chipping plant was being leased to Consolidated Bathurst Ltd. for three months. Brunswick Mills had been shut down since late December.

The minister was replying in the Legislature to a question from Frank Branch (L-Nepisiguit Chaleur) who asked April 12 whether it was true only 15 workers were on the payroll.

Mr. Boudreau said the workers numbered 65 and accused Branch of attempting to mislead the Legislature. Branch was not in the House at the time.

The province purchased Brunswick Mills in January from its former owners, Clearlake Timber Ltd. of British Columbia, for $4.3 million.

Boudreau has said the government hopes to sell it to private interests and have the sawmill back in production by June 1.

The mill is operated in conjunction with the province's 1.5 million-acre forest reserve pilot project near Bathurst.

New VON Health Care Programs Launched

Victorian Order of Nurses in New Brunswick launched a Senior Citizens Health Program in New Brunswick Housing Corporation Complexes in eight New Brunswick centres during 1976 and will begin shortly in a ninth.

Inadequate nutrition and poor dietary habits, misuse of medications, lack of physical mobility and loneliness or depression are common problems encountered by the nurses.

The essence of care for the older person involves an emphasis on preventive health teaching coupled with the best possible treatment for established diseases according to Miss Ruth Mellor, Regional Director for the V.O.N.

Some complex residents need frequent assistance while others are very healthy and only seek help occasionally. Patients over 65 years constitute 31 percent of all V.O.N. patients and 59.2 percent of the total visits are made to this age group.

Today's nurse is a coordinator or facilitator, she listens, teaches and counsels as well as providing bedside nursing care Miss Mellor told the annual meeting of V.O.N. New Brunswick.

In Fredericton a pilot program providing Education for Expectant Families is coordinated by the V.O.N. with the Department of Health, U.N.B. Faculty of Nursing and Fredericton Childbirth Education Association participating. It has resulted in a rapid increase in the number of families receiving prenatal training and an improved program.

Mothers are counselled on child growth and development at Well Child Clinics held by seven branches. It is a V.O.N. nurse who works closely with the teacher reviewing the health of the children in elementary schools in six areas of the province. In the high school the nurse works directly with the student. Problems discussed are unlimited while the nurse cannot be expected to have all the answers, she does know where to refer the young person for help.

It was reported that 15.4 percent of V.O.N. visits in 1976 were made to patients on the Government sponsored Home Care Program. Patients cared for in familiar surroundings often respond more quickly than in hospital if the necessary medical and nursing services are provided thus releasing hospital beds for more urgent cases.

Robert Brown, Bathurst, who continues as president commended the service provided by ten branches of V.O.N. to approximately three hundred and fifty-two thousand New Brunswickers.

The Provincial Board of Management consists of Mr. Brown, Merlyn Cull, Past President; Jack Bain, 1st Vice President; Ross Giberson, 2nd. Vice President; John Weatherhead, Treasurer; Mrs. Dorcas M. Woodside, Bathurst, Secretary; Mrs. A.R.A. Taylor, Public Relations Coordinator; Mrs. Mary Jean McCorry.

Church Services

In The Bathurst District

The following notices of service are printed as a courtesy of The Northern Light from information supplied by the churches concerned.

BIBLE DIGEST "For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not." Matthew 25: 42, 43

Jesus often appears in the form of neglected and little people to see if we will do even the simple things as proof of our love and loyalty to Him personally.

Legislature Rule Defied

Treasury Board Chairman Jean Maurice Simard April 14 refused to leave a meeting of the public accounts committee after being asked to do so by Committee Chairman Gerald Clavette (L-Madawaska Centre).

Mr. Simard sat quietly while the accounts of the health department for the 1975-76 fiscal year were discussed and was not challenged. But during a later discussion on the spruce budworm spray program, he requested permission to ask a few questions.

The standing rules of the legislature state "ministers of the crown are not eligible for appointment to the committee on public accounts and may not attend its meetings."

When members objected to Mr. Simard's request, Mr. Clavette asked Mr. Simard to leave. However, the Treasury Board chairman refused, saying "you'll have to put me out physically."

Eugene McGinley, Liberal MLA for Bathurst, said if Mr. Simard wanted to be thrown out physically, he would volunteer for the job.

Mr. Clavette declared a five-minute recess, and when the committee resumed its session, with Mr. Simard still present, he said, "We have run into an argument which neither Beauchene (a reference book on parliamentary procedure) nor the standing rules can resolve. They do not provide for the physical removal from the committee of a legislator."

"As chairman I would have the authority to adjourn the meeting. But I think the committee members came here to work, and I believe we should stick to our work. If the person concerned is not man enough to go by the standing rules of the house, as chairman, I will advise you to ignore all questions coming from the person in queston."

A government member called for the committee to adjourn but was not recognized by the chair.

Mr. McGinley said there was a reason for the standing rule barring cabinet ministers - it was to make civil servants feel more free in their answers to questioning by committee members.

Alan Graham (L-Kent County) moved that the sergeant-at-arms be called to remove Mr. Simard. Robert Corbett (PC-Queens South) said there was an adjournment motion on the floor.

As the committee members were arguing, Mr. Simard picked up his coat and left the room. As he went out he said, "I'll be back. You're OK for tonight."

New Testing Programs OKd

The provincial Cabinet has approved a change in the regulations under the Schools Act, which will permit a wider range of testing and evaluation programs in the public schools.

Passed by order-in-council, the new regulations replaces one which provided for provincial testing at the senior high school level. Last October's report by the provincial task force on testing and evaluation recommended that testing programs be carried out at other grade levels as well. The task force also recommend replacing the senior high school achievement tests with a new and more comprehensive testing program.

The new regulation also expands the minister's advisory committee on testing and evaluation. It will include representatives from organizations and agencies directly concerned with education, as well as members of the general public.

Education Minister Charles Gallagher said the new regulation will permit implementation of many of the task force recommendations, which have been accepted in principle by his department.

Studded Tire Dates Extended

Studded snow tires may be used in the province until the end of April this year.

This was announced April 14 by Provincial Secretary Paul S. Creaghan who said that the time for use of the studded tires has been extended this year from April 15 to April 30.

New Canadian Tire Store Opened Today

JOS. REYNHOUDT

Bathurst's new Canadian Tire store opened its doors for the first time (Wednesday) at 9 a.m. The new building is located in the Kmart Shopping Plaza.

According to owner Jos Reynhoudt, "Since Canadian Tire first opened a store here in Bathurst 36 years ago, the business has enjoyed tremendous support and the opening of our new location is but one way we can continue to provide better services and a wider selection of merchandise to our customers."

It was Joe MacNeil, of Truro, N.S., who brought Canadian Tire to Bathurst in August 1940. He was first established in 900 feet of space in the Lalande-Levesque Bldg. on Main St., and despite a later 40 x 48 expansion followed by the addition of a second storey, the growing demand for goods and services still could not be met.

Finally, Mr. MacNeil was forced to acquire land and build premises on St. Peter Ave., where the business has been operated until the present.

In January, 1973, Mr. MacNeil disposed of his assets to the present proprietor Jos Reynhoudt, and although living in semi-retirement, remains active in several other business interests.

In addition, Mr. MacNeil is one of the most forceful members of the present Bathurst City Council and plans to run again in Kent Ward in next month's municipal election.

Commenting on the move this week to larger and more modern quarters, Mr. MacNeil said he was very happy that Canadian Tire had come of age and the people of Bathurst are finally getting the service that he had tried so hard to provide for many years.

The new store has a total area of just about 55,000 square feet or five times the size of the old store. Just over 13,000 square feet of this space forms the retail sales area with the balance comprised of warehousing and a fully-equipped auto service centre capable of handling 12 cars at a time.

A large parking area will accommodate over 190 cars, "a great improvement over the space we had at the old location" said Mr. Reynhoudt.

Mr. Reynhoudt is one of 390 independent store owners who buy their merchandise from Canadian Tire Corporation Limited. The company is based in Toronto and is a wholesale distributor of a wide range of consumer merchandise to the stores which are now located from the Maritimes to Alberta.

The name Canadian Tire originally applied to the first Canadian Tire store established over 55 years ago. They were then primarily a tire outlet, but over the years other product lines were added so that today the tire image is no longer fully appropriate. "Of course we still sell plenty of low priced, quality tires", said Mr. Reynhoudt.

A glance through Canadian Tire's summer catalogue reinforces these comments. Its 254 pages are filled with merchandise of almost every description or something for every member of the family, as their advertising states. The catalogue is distributed twice a year, but is not a mail-order type book. Rather, its objective is to illustrate the many items available. On doing this, it has the largest distribution of any catalogue in Canada.

Said Mr. Reynhoudt, "Canadian Tire now carries almost 40,000 items and although our Bathurst store cannot possibly carry everything, you can be sure that we will have a much larger range of popular merchandise on display than ever before."

He added that if an item was not in stock, it could be ordered through a new catalogue ordering system located at the store's courtesy counter. The ordered item would be received with the next shipment of regular store merchandise.

Canadian Tire has always been noted for its relatively low prices. Mr. Reynhoudt said a recently completed consumer survey had determined that over half of the persons polled indicated that Canadian Tire had the lowest prices in almost all product lines. "When you add our three percent cash bonus coupons to these savings it means that we are providing the very best value for our customers."

Canadian Tire had its beginnings in 1922 when two Toronto-born brothers pooled their meager savings and opened the first store. They started with the basic idea to give good value and the very best service possible. Today, there is every indication they still maintain that value as their way of life.

Today, the company operates no stores. Its job, in general terms, is to fill the roles of developing and administering marketing policies and the selection and training of associate dealers such as Mr. Reynhoudt. "Finally, they are the central buyer and distributor of merchandise to the associate stores which is why we are able to sell at very competitive prices," said Mr. Reynhoudt.

The responsibilities of the associate dealers cover all aspects of the store operation. This includes merchandising programs and the selection, training and compensation of store staff. In the majority of situations, help is hired directly from within the community and some 55 full and parttime people will be working with Mr. Reynhoudt in his new store.

It is to such successful people as Mr. Reynhoudt that Canadian Tire looks to as a continuing business partners. They carry the company's name and uphold its traditions as a leading retailer in communities across most of Canada. Said Mr. Reynhoudt, "For my part, the complete satisfaction of our customers will be the primary responsibility of my staff. We are dedicated to friendly and courteous service at all times."

In addition to the wider range of merchandise, new lines of wallpaper, tools and home handyman items, and a large indoor garden centre, Mr. Reynhoudt is enthusiastic about the store's new auto centre.

"With more than double the capacity of the old store, we expect to offer motorists the very best in car care that is available in the area. A customer can have an item installed at the service centre or he can complete the installation himself. What he pays is the same as the advertised catalogue price. The only other charge would be for installation if the work is done at the service centre. As one of Canada's largest merchandisers of quality auto parts and accessories, we do offer the motoring public some real price advantages."

A complete credit card shopping service is also available to individual customers as well as commercial businesses. This program provides shoppers with pay-later purchasing power at all Canadian Tire stores and gas bars.

"The credit program is of considerable interest to business people. A commercial credit card holder has the advantage of being able to purchase merchandise from any Canadian Tire store, but would only receive a single invoice from our credit people. This greatly simplifies the bookkeeping and purchasing functions for any business concerns", said Mr. Reynhoudt.

With considerable more space in the new store, shoppers will find a big improvement. There's a greatly expanded self-serve area and a gigantic selection of do-it-yourself equipment for both professionals and the home handyman. There's also much more merchandise for everyday household needs. Wrapping it all up is a colourful decore scheme that easily identifies all product areas in the store.

An invitation has been extended by Mr. Reynhoudt to Bathurst and area residents to visit the store over the next few days. "Even if only to browse", he said and added that there would be plenty of opening bargains on hand for at least a few days.

This Dutchman Flew To Canada And Stayed

Jos Reynhoudt, owner and proprietor of Bathurst's Canadian Tire Corporation store, is a native of Holland but spent most of his adult life in Canada.

Born in the Netherlands in 1935, Mr. Reynhoudt completed his high school education there and then had the opportunity of going to the United States. After spending two years in Kansas, where he acquired a BA degree, he returned to the homeland for two years of military service.

While in the armed forces, Mr. Reynhoudt realized how small Holland really is and he decided to return to North America. He chose Canada mainly because he wanted to further his education with a masters in business administration. Harvard was both expensive and hard to get into.

The University of Western Ontario offered an excellent course and Jos ended up in London. It was here also that he met his wife.

For the first 10 years of his working life, Mr. Reynhout was associated with a succession of national merchandising organizations, including Robin Hood, Contact C and Sea and Ski Suntan Lotion.

From marketing and advertising he went into sales management and about this time he developed an ambition to operate his own business rather than work for others.

Canadian Tire offered just such an opportunity and Joe MacNeil's planning to step down created an opening in Bathurst. That explains briefly why Mr. Reynhoudt came and stayed here, and he's glad he did.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynhoudt, son Kim and daughters Sharon and Stacey reside at 335 Youghal Drive.

Veteran Employees Have Completed Over 70 Years Of Combined Service

Mrs. Martina Lavigne has worked in every department, more or less, at Canadian Tire, since she joined the organization 15 years ago.

She has successfully combined a business career and bringing up seven children, now ranging in age from 30 to 15 years.

A native of South Bathurst (nee LeCouter), Mrs. Lavigne remained there after her marriage to Emmanuel Lavigne, a well-known resident of the community and employee of Consolidated Bathurst. The family resides at 1313 King Ave.

This key employee and landmark at the local merchandise outlet hopes to continue with the company for many more years.

Although a native of Plaster Rock, N.B., Andy Doucette has always had close ties with Bathurst. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Doucet were both originally from this city. Andy moved back "home" 27 years ago and has been a permanent resident since.

Mr. Doucette has been with Canadian Tire for 23 years, most of which time he has been associated with tires and auto parts. He and his wife who brought up four sons, reside at 61 Young's Lane in South Bathurst.

HECTOR ROY

MRS. MARTINA LAVIGNE

ANDY DOUCETTE

Bowling, fishing and hunting are Mr. Doucette's main leisure pursuits and his affiliations include Bathurst Fish and Game Assn.

Also joining Canadian Tire 23 years ago when Joe MacNeil was at the helm, Hector Roy was parts manager until last year. At that time, for health reasons, he assumed a less demanding role as sales clerk with the company.

Before joining Canadian Tire, Mr. Roy was associated for many years with P. J. Theriault, the East Bathurst general merchant.

Mr. Roy is married to the former Marcella Bennette of Bathurst with whom he resides at 2497 Miramichi Ave. They have a son and daughter, both now married.

Mr. Roy favors the East Bathurst Senior Citizens' Club as an outlet for his extra-curricular time and energy

Support For Week Declared

The department of youth, recreation and cultural resources received support April 14 from Ron Johnson of Moncton, president of Recreation New Brunswick, for its decision to declare next week to be Recreation Week in the province.

Johnson said the essence of a successful recreation week for the province "lies in the hands of our fellow recreationists, municipalities, recreation councils and all those involved directly or indirectly in leisure services."

He urged all citizens involved in the parks and recreation field to take an active part in the five-day project which will focus on a different recreation theme from April 18-22.

Canadian Tire Staff Shares Store Profits

Like all new situations, it is going to take the staff of the Bathurst Canadian Tire store a little while to adjust to their new surroundings. But you can bet it is not going to take them very long.

The reason, according to store owner Jos Reynhouldt, is that the employees will be sharing in the store's profits. Sounds revolutionary, but for Canadian Tire which has always shared its profits with employees it is just good business sense.

Mr. Reynhoudt explained it this way. "Right from the very start some 55 years ago, Canadian Tire's basic philosophy was that it would share all profits with its people. A profit-sharing program was started that provided an annual bonus to each employee. The size of the bonus depended on profits for the year. It is a way of giving the people who were responsible for the every-day work of meeting and serving store customers a piece of the action."

He described profit-sharing as being employee oriented. "Under the plan, each member of the store's staff will receive an annual profit-sharing award in the form of Canadian Tire class 'A' shares are non-voting, dividend paying shares with a current market value of $39.50. Payments to an employee's account are not taxable when the money goes in, only when it is withdrawn.

"The other part of the profit-sharing plan is a savings program. Awards into it are put into a trust fund which pays interest each year. Income tax comes off when the money goes into the account on the employee's behalf."

Mr. Reynhoudt said store employees are able to participate in the plan after a short probationary period. An employee is entitled to withdraw his entire account after 10 years' service except in the case of disability, death or retirement. If the employee leaves the store, a withdrawal is permitted based on a percentage award times the number of years' service at the store.

Mr. Reynhoudt believes the profit-sharing plan helps employees to think of their customers on a more personal level. "Very simply put, a satisfied customer means more sales to the store and therefore more profit sharing for the store employees." It also greatly reduces the incidence of customer dissatisfaction. "The very fact that our staff are sharing the store's profits makes a great deal of difference to the individuals attitude. It's one thing to be working for wages only, but it is something else again to realize that for every successful sale that there is going to be more profit-sharing awards to be distributed at the end of the year."

Company's History Dates Back 55 Years

At Canadian Tire, people are something special. That's the corporate philosophy expressed by J. Dean Muncaster, president of this all-Canadian company. This people-centred outlook, Muncaster believes, is one of the more important reasons for Canadian Tire's Success which had its beginnings 55 years ago.

The founders were two brothers, John William and Alfred Jackson Billes. Together they combined their savings of $1800 with a strong belief in the future of the motor car and opened a small garage. They selected a location in the city of Toronto because it was then the centre of a growing trend towards gasoline powered transportation.

Their stock included a small range of parts, tires and a home-made brand of anti-freeze. Canada's first car show that winter introduced windshield wipers, an improved car heater and an automatic starter.

Within a few weeks of their opening, the bridge which routed cars past the Billes brother's garage, was closed for winter repairs. To make up for lost traffic and trade, the garage's floor was adapted to overnight parking. J.W. and A.J., as the brothers became familiarly known in later years, alternated as after-hours car attendants, sleeping on the premises.

The infant business moved the following year to retail-type facilities where there was an assured traffic flow. A gasoline pump was installed and by the year 1927, the businesses was incorporated under the name Canadian Tire Corporation, Limited.

Two branch stores were opened and a single-sheet price list was issued. On the back was a then rare road map. A mail-order flyer, addressed to car owners was mailed out. The favourable response to this first promotion led to the publication of the company's first catalogue in 1928. This first small publication was the forerunner of a catalogue that today is printed in both languages and distributed semi-annually to almost 5-million homes.

By 1930, Canadian Tire's direct method of selling and expanding sales volume enabled them to advertise batteries at lower than the manufacturer's list price. An 'unconditional' guarantee on their own Super-Lastic brand followed in 1931... the first time in Canada that a tire had been guaranteed for other than manufacturing defects.

During the depression years, Canadian Tire continued to grow and prosper by offering a value-conscious public a selection of automotive merchandise at the best possible prices.

The first officially-designated 'associate store' opened in Hamilton, Ontario in 1934. Up to then, service stations and garages had stocked Canadian Tire's automotive lines along with their own company brands. The Hamilton store was the forerunner of a dealer organization which would spread first to the Maritimes and then through Western Canada.

The outbreak of war in 1939 was followed by supply shortages, quotas and rationing. Canadian Tire tightened up its systems and procedures to offset a period when many businesses were forced by the shortages to suspend operations. Other product lines replaced unavailable items to broaden the merchandise range.

Following the war, growth was renewed and the number of associate stores numbered 120 by 1947. It was at about this time that Canadian Tire gained its reputation as "the store where the clerks wear roller skates". This novel idea was the outgrowth of a customer's humourous suggestion for speeding up service. The idea of roller-skating clerks intrigued the press, radio and shoppers and the company received extensive publicity for this innovation.

In the early fifties, a new warehouse was acquired and shipments to associate stores averaged 57 tons a day. By 1955 the needs of almost 160 stores had outgrown the distribution capacity of the warehouse and a new distribution facility was planned.

In 1956, construction of a specialized distribution centre was started. The year marked both the beginning and end of an era for Canadian Tire. As A.J. Billes turned the sod for the new building on a 45 acre property, president J.W. Billes lay (too ill to attend the ceremonies. He died three days later.

During the 10-year presidency of A.J. Billes (1956-1966), Canadian Tire experienced a decade of expansion that began with the building of Canada's largest distribution centre. Five successive additions were built onto it bringing the total footage to over 1 million square feet. The number of associate stores increased to 225 and a much more diversified product line was introduced.

In 1957 the First French language catalogue was published and two years later the company entered the computer age when electronic equipment was installed to process invoices and general accounts in addition to inventory control for the rapidly growing associate dealer group.

During the early sixties the number of Canadian Tire stores increased to 250. J. Dean Muncaster, who gained his experience with Canadian Tire in his father's associate store, joined the company as a financial analyst and was promoted to vice-president. In 1966, A.J. Billes appointed Mr. Muncaster as president of the company.

A few months after this, Canadian Tire opened its first store west of Ontario. The first Winnipeg store was followed by others which by 1975 totaled six stores. In 1966, Canadian Tire entered the consumer credit business with the purchase of a Welland, Ontario retail credit company and Canadian Tire Acceptance was formed. The total number of employees, exclusive of those employed by associate stores, now numbered over 1000.

Two driver-owned tractor-trailers inaugurated a long-distance shipping operation for the company in 1967. The fleet, which had grown to over 500 units by 1976, transports almost 80 percent of Canadian Tire's merchandise to associate stores and returns to its Toronto-based distribution centres with goods loaded at suppliers and manufacturers.

In 1973, construction of a second major distribution facility was completed just north of the Toronto International Airport. Here electronic terminals link the centre to the home office for direct computer communication. The highly automated distribution centre is now the largest of its type in Canada.

The first half of the seventies saw Canadian Tire expand its Western building program to see stores opened in other parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and in early 1976 two stores were opened in Edmonton, Alberta.

President J.D. Muncaster, speaking of Canadian Tire's future said, "We have a unique formula, a mission if you wish, that has proved itself with time. There is no question as to who our customers are and what they expect to find in Canadian Tire stores. We have clearly defined ideas as to where we are going and through the application of our formula, which marries markets, money and people... we expect to continue to grow at the rate of 20 percent annually. That means a doubling of our business in less than four years."

This is Canadian Tire's mission and Bathurst associate dealer, Jos. Reynhoudt is an example of the people who bring the name and traditions of Canada's largest mass merchandiser to the communities they serve.

Children Acclimatized To Hospital Routine

Many scientific advances have been made in modern health care and a great deal is heard about this. However, at Chaleur General Hospital the nursing staff of Pediatrics are interested in making advances in the interpersonal and emotional care of children. They feel that fear is one of the strongest emotions which play on the minds of children before and after admission to hospital, and this fear makes it difficult for a child and his parents to accept care and treatment when it is necessary.

Last year, Mrs. Jessica Ryan, head nurse of Pediatrics (Childrens' Dept.) heard about programs in other parts of Canada, and especially in Nova Scotia, which allowed children or pre-school and grade 1 age to come to hospitals and see some of the things which might cause them fear.

Mrs. Ryan presented the idea to Mrs. Therese Ton That, Executive Director, who agreed to let the program begin at Chaleur General. Mrs. Ryan then asked for volunteers from the nursing staff to set up the program. Conme MacDonald, Diane Seperich and Bernice Gosselin got to work on the program and approached the School Board of School District No. 4 and in March of this year, the South Bathurst School brought the first group to the hospital. They were 20 grade 1 students.

The children see the Out Patient Dept., the Admission Office, and then are taken to pediatrics. Here they put on a small gown with their name tags, and things begin to happen.

They touch and see thermometers, tongue depressors, blood pressure cuffs and many other things. They visit and stay in the playroom for awhile. They ask questions and have them honestly answered. They ride a stretcher or a wheelchair for sensation awareness. They visit the X-Ray Department where a technician instructs them in their use of the machinery which can be so frightening to them.

They return to Pediatrics and present the nurse in charge of the tour with their drawing of their impression of "a hospital". The tour takes two hours. They are treated to juice before they leave.

Each week a nurse who has not gone on the tour goes with the nurse in charge of tours that day. This program is a volunteer program, and is conducted by the nursing staff on their day off.

Their objectives of these tours are:

1) To allay fears that children have concerning hospitalization, by teaching and demonstration.

2) To allow children to actually touch and handle equipment used. This is not always possible in the rush of an admission on a busy hospital day.

3) To have health care of children reach out into the community.

These tours are conducted in French and English to about 20 children at a time and are carried out in a friendly and unhurried manner.

Any child who does not wish to go on tour does not have to. If he or she doesn't want to touch or see things, he or she does not have to. Always the individual is offered security and individual attention. Usually there are many willing children, anxious to try things and to demonstrate for the others how easy it is.

The children seem to love the program, and enjoy especially the playroom, the X-Ray department and the ice cream and juice. The children submit tiny stories in their own words and printing about their tour.

The first school to be involved is South Bathurst School with Mrs. Nina Allen's Grade 1 class initiating the project. The children were asked to draw pictures of the hospital before their visit and then after their visit, and the difference in color and form is remarkable. The colors are brighter and the form more relevant after their visit.

The nursing staff are so enthused by the program that they have full intention of continuing this most worthwhile volunteer program for the children of the region.

Dredging Programme Detrimental To Area

The Chaleur Regional Industrial Commission has expressed surprise following the recent announcement that the Miramichi Channel Study Report recommends dredging the Miramichi.

A news release by MP Maurice Dionne of findings by economic consultants from Montreal on an update of the Northeast Transportation Study of 1963 is viewed as a move to put pressure on the Federal Government.

Aubin Doucet, president of the Chaleur Commission, points out that the report on the hydraulic and ecological studies carried out by the National Research Council to assess the technical feasibility of deepening the Miramichi Channel has not yet been released, contrary to the impression given by recent newspaper reports.

The president of the Chaleur Commission also notes that whereas the Northeast Transportation Study estimated the initial cost of dredging the Miramichi at $5.33 million, these same costs are now estimated at $8.3 million.

The proposed dredging of the Miramichi does not take into account the very significant reduction in shipping costs permitted by the use of 30' draft ships, possible only at Belledune, and the added cost of icebreaking in the Miramichi. Neither have environmental costs been considered.

The Chaleur Industrial Commission hopes that the proposed dredging of the Miramichi will not preclude the upgrading of port facilities at Belledune and keep the Chaleur Region as a mere reservoir of raw materials, the benefits of which would accrue mainly to other parts of the province.

District 4 Budget Nears $11-Million

An operating budget of close to $11-million for the 1977-78 school year was unanimously approved Tuesday evening, April 19 at a special meeting of District No. 4 School Board.

The actual budget figure, $10,998,543, provides for 452 teachers, or an increase of 1.3 teachers over the 1976-77 year. Initial budget requests had been for an increase of 6.3 teachers.

The teacher-pupil ratio will improve slightly from this year's 22.2 figure to 21.7 commencing in September. The equivalent of three music co-ordinators will rise to 3.6.

"The number of non-teaching personnel will remain the same and there will be no major organizational change in the district operation", stated District Superintendent R.A. Ouellette following the session.

Chairman of the board's finance committee, Ian Oliver, explained that a deficit of $17,765 is budgeted for but this deficit is expected to be offset by this year's anticipated surplus due to the tight control of operational funds.

The approved budget will now go to the provincial education department for final approval.

This is the first year the provincial department is allowing school districts to carry over a surplus into the next school year. In the past, any surplus had to be returned to provincial coffers.

The current 1976-77 operating budget for District 4 with adjustment to March 31, 1977 is $10,709,606.

The budget for the 1977-78 school year as proposed to the provincial department last November was $11,599,179 but this figure was cut back to $10,980,777 on March 3 of this year.

The budget of $10,998,543 approved by trustees, resulted in the anticipated $17,765 deficit.

Attention was drawn to a combined increase of approximately $100,000 in electricity and fuel costs anticipated for the next school year.

The slight increase in teaching personnel for 1977-78 is a far cry from the 18-teacher cutback and other restraints which were approved by the trustees a year ago.

"By taking these necessary restraining measures last year, the administration and school board were realistic and honest", noted the finance committee chairman.

"Through the efforts and co-operation of the teaching and non-teaching personnel in enforcing these restraints, we have been able to maintain a balanced budget this year."

"Now we are able to maintain the same services for 1977-78 with slight improvements", Mr. Oliver added.

Assistant Superintendent Romeo Cormier noted that of the 18 teachers cut back last year, all but three ended up teaching in the district due to vacancies created through resignations. Even the three teachers could have been absorbed but the positions available to them were not to their satisfaction, it was further stated.

Estimated student enrollment for 1977-78 in the district is 9,830, down from this year's actual figure of 10,025.

Mr. Ouellette said student enrollment in 1967 was 9,937. It increased each succeeding year until a peak of 10,665 was reached in 1971-72. Figures have declined annually since that time so that next year's estimated enrolment is 117 less than ten years ago.

"The elementary school population keeps dropping", Mr. Ouellette noted.

There will be 23 schools in use for the 1977-78 school year, one more than for the current year. The additional building is the new Petit Rocher Junior High School which is under construction. Two elementary schools in the Petit Rocher area will still be required.

Mobile classroom numbers will drop to 40 next year from 60 due to the completion of the Petit Rocher school where 17 units are in use and to the completion of repairs at the Belledune school where three units are occupied.

There are 74 district-owned school buses and two privately-owned contracted buses on the road. Having its own repair garage in recent years has enabled the district to keep the vehicles in better repair.

A rotation system is used since only 69 of the 74 district buses are used on a given day.

Other district personnel include among others 71 custodians and stationary engineers as well as 18 district office personnel.

RECREATION PRIORITY FOR MAYORALTY CANDIDATE

Planning, organization and renewed interest in a parks and recreation program is first and foremost on the order paper of Conrad Coughlan, one of three contenders in the May 9 mayoralty race in the city. In the top photo, Mr. Coughlan discusses possible improvements at Coronation Park with Roger Clinch, co-ordinator in the Bathurst Minor Baseball program. Lower photo shows Mr. Coughlan outside Bathurst Arena, where, coincidentally, he regularly officiates as score-keeper and announcer every hockey night in Bathurst. This candidate for the chief magistrate's chair plans serious consideration for new and better facilities in addition to those presently but inadequately available in this particular and necessary area of community activity.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Tuesday's announcement by Resources Minister Roland Boudreau that a decision on a $300-million-plus zinc refinery in the Bathurst area will be reached by June 30 should meet with mixed reactions.

Its realization, Mr. Boudreau said, is dependent on a $40-million federal grant and if Ireland doesn't get there first. But he's still optimistic.

In the meantime, if a proposed new mining royalty and tax structure in N.B. goes through, mineral exploration and mining development would be seriously affected or curtailed. Perhaps then a zinc refinery would be redundant.

The planned policy calls for a royalty equal to 2 per cent of net smelter returns, combined with a revamped tax on earnings related to an investment base.

Currently N.B. has one of the most favorable mining rates in Canada and one that has been unchanged since 1971. The province's mining tax base has been credited for an upsurge in exploration and in new mining development in the region.

27th Music Festival One Of Largest To Date

Tomorrow, Thursday, April 28, marks the opening of the 27th annual Bathurst Music Festival, one of the largest to be held in the city for many years.

The week-long event lists a total of 495 entries, as compared with 450 last year, and less than 400 in 1975.

The sessions will commence with pianoforte sight reading Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and continue until noon hour, resuming again at 1:30 p.m. with Sister Claudette Melanson of Moncton presiding over the adjudications.

Mrs. Francoise Gay-Poulin will preside at the piano classes which begin Friday and continue through Sunday evening. These sessions open daily at 9 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 7 p.m.

The official opening will be at 7 p.m. Friday, Apr. 29, on which occasion the festival committee president, Hadley Wood, will introduce the adjudicators. Judging will follow immediately afterwards.

The two final days of adjudications, May 2nd and 3rd, will see the vocal, instrumental, choral and recorder contestants perform with Sister Maryse Moisan from Montreal presiding. The last session will conclude about 4 p.m. on Tuesday.

All sessions, including the final "Concert of the Stars" on Wednesday, May 4 (starting at 7:30 p.m.) will be held in the auditorium of Nepisiguit High School.

INITIATES CHANGE

A change in piano presentations is being initiated this year, in conjunction with suggestions offered by adjudicators of past festivals.

All contestants in their respective age groups performing in both the Bach and Sonatina classes will present both selections consecutively on stage for adjudications until the class is concluded.

The same arrangement applies for contestants perfor-

HEAVY FLOW OF BLOOD NEEDED TO MEET QUOTA

The turnout at Tuesday's Red Cross blood donor clinic, held Tuesday afternoon at Bathurst Trade School, involving students at both Community College institutions, was somewhat disappointing. Only 159 pints were realized out of 200 expected, the discrepancy being due to a decrease in the number of students now attending classes. Therefore, it must be full speed ahead for the remaining clinics at the Legion today, Wed., April 27, and tomorrow, Thurs., April 28, if the 800 donations aimed for are to be obtained. Hours are from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m. and 6:00 to 9:00 p.m. both days.

Student Loans To Be Discussed

Representatives from the Department of Youth who administer Canada Student Loans in New Brunswick, will visit Bathurst High School tonight, Wednesday, April 27. The meeting is scheduled for 7:00 o'clock in the Amphitheatre.

These officials will be able to answer questions on any part of the regulations governing Student Loans.

Following the general meeting, parents who wish to discuss a particular matter privately will be accorded the opportunity to do so.

$40-Million Grant Needed

Natural Resources Minister Roland Boudreau told the Legislature Tuesday that plans for a $210-million zinc refinery near Bathurst are dependent upon whether Ottawa agrees to grant the developer about $40-million to build it.

Expressing cautious optimism for the refinery project, Mr. Boudreau said if the federal grant were approved, the province would consider some kind of equity investment in it. He expressed hope that the refinery would become operational before a similar project planned for Ireland in 1981.

If constructed, the refinery would be the first zinc processing facility in New Brunswick.

Definite work on the proposal is expected by June 30.

City Councillor Will Campaign

In an unusual move, one city councillor elected by acclamation will be campaigning in the May 9 municipal election.

The 36-year-old representative from Kent Ward, Jean-Paul Lavoie, has announced he will be advertising in the next two weeks to promote the importance of voting.

Councillor Lavoie said:

"I will use my campaign funds to encourage all voters in all wards to vote."

Coun. Lavoie does not support any particular individual either for the post of mayor or councillor but wants to assure that everyone is aware of the importance of his vote.

"We will have to live with these people for the next three years and we should make sure no one goes in because of the lack of voters at the polls."

Coun. Lavoie has expressed some disappointment at being elected by acclamation, but vows to continue to represent all the people of his ward.

In closing, Coun. Lavoie said: "I am prepared to work with whomever is elected in the best interests of the city."

Spanish Sojourn A Pleasant Experience

Rev. J. E. Fournier, rector of Sacred Heart Cathedral, returned to Bathurst recently following a very enjoyable Spanish holiday. Following are his impressions of that suny European land:

"Three weeks in Spain were for me both a rest and a retreat.

"During Holy Week, I spent time participating in the wonderful day-to-day celebrations, starting on Palm sunday with a pageant depicting what took place at Gethsemane. These demonstrations were carried out with the utmost dignity and piety, and it was very impressive to see all classes taking part, young as well as old.

"For example, a life-sized replica of Christ seated on a donkey, preceded by hundreds with palms, was carried by about 30 men on their shoulders to the sound of music and hymns.

"Every day of the week was conducted according to the Passion, and every feast of importance is strictly observed by having all stores closed.

"The people of Spain have accepted the changes imposed by Vatican Council II, but have maintained most of the former liturgical traditions that were adhered to in the past, such as processions, holy hours, and so on.

"On the coast of the Mediterranean, I visited with Bathurst relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roy. I also had the good fortune to meet and visit with Mr. and Mrs. Aurele Doucet and family and had the opportunity to accompany Aurele to Alhambra, a historical spot, and the cathedral of Granada where they have remembrances of Queen Isabella, including a picture of great value depicting the departure of Christopher Columbus for the New World.

"Spain is a country of great history and architecture, yet her people are of a simple nature, satisfied with their lot in life. The cost of living is actually very low compared with that of the Western world.

"The Spanish are also very sincere, expressing their joy and happiness very spontaneously whether among themselves or with visitors. They are remarkably polite, and possess a real desire to be helpful. They are also very religious.

"The scenery is very beautiful, but differs markedly between the cities and smaller villages. Streaks of high buildings along the coast sometimes mar the panoramic view to a certain extent, but the villages along the Mediterranean shore are magnificent. In some instances, visitors may ski down the snowy mountain peaks, while near the shore the temperatures hover near the 75-degree Farenheit mark.

"Temperature averaged about 65 degrees, with a slight

POST-SCRIPT

At last week's city council meeting, Deputy Mayor Pat McLaughlin described Bathurst's present makeshift post office as something out of "Sanford and Son"

This week, when a visitor in the city arrived at the temporary postal headquarters looking for the collector of customs he was advised in short order by a clerk that that official (incidentally Mr. McLaughlin) had "moved up with the Jeffersons" to the K mart Plaza.

Enters Aldermanic Race In Coffyn Ward

Donald E. McArdle, who is offering as an aldermanic candidate in Coffyn Ward in the May 9 municipal election is a native of Bathurst and received his formal education in Moncton. He has been in the plumbing and heating trade for 30 years.

After working across Canada from 1947 to 1972, Mr. McArdle established a plumbing and heating contracting business in Bathurst. He later added the Westside Laundramat and an 8-unit apartment building on Garden St. to his commercial interests.

Mr. McArdle is a past vice-president of the New Brunswick Mechanical Contractors Association and a past member of the New Brunswick Joint Pipe Trade Council, representing the North Shore area.

In soliciting the support of the electors, Mr. McArdle proposes to concentrate his efforts in the equal sharing of the spending of the tax dollar for Coffyn Ward. It is his intention to give priority attention to much-needed and long-overdue park and playground facilities for the area, along with improved street and bridge facilities.

DONALD E. McARDLE

As far as the City of Bathurst in general is concerned, Mr. McArdle is greatly interested in the construction of a new arena complex. He also pledges strong support to renewing interest in the Boys' and Girls' Club.

joyable program appealing to all musical tastes.

Mr. Pineau's musicians are multi-talented. When not playing en masse they easily transform to a brass ensemble, a ragtime band, a fiddler's hoedown, other versatile players double as instrumental and vocal soloists - a veritable smorgasbord of entertainment.

The sound was of professional calibre and the whole program was dynamic and vivacious and received an enthusiastic response from the audience. In short, a lively happening.

The Bathurst Citizen's Band is an excellent group. It is a splendid organization for the development of young musical talent and an outlet for their creative and recreational activities. It needs and merits the support and encouragement of the community at large in order to thrive and grow.

In assessing the growth and development of any community, one has to consider amongst other things, its cultural achievements, and in this regard the Bathurst Citizen's Band is a definite asset to the community.

Let's all get behind this band and give them the encouragement and support they rightly deserve.

FARMING FRATERNITY HONORS DEDICATED COLLEAGUE

Stanley H. Bell, whose lifetime vocation was farming in South Tetagouche prior to his retirement, was honored by the two agricultural societies he served so well.

Presentations were made at a gathering of society members and guests at the Royal Canadian Legion auditorium.

Mr. Bell was presented with an engraved silver tray "in recognition of his dedication and service as secretary-treasurer for 37 years and indicative of the gratitude of fellow members of the South Tetagouche Agricultural Society No. 107".

Making the presentation was Kenneth Vance, president of the society when it was disbanded two years ago. Mr. Vance said it had been "a great pleasure" working with Mr. Bell in the agricultural society.

The other award, an engraved plaque on a wooden scroll, was presented by William Oliver on behalf of Bathurst Agricultural Society.

It was merited by Bell "for his outstanding contribution to the Society's largest project for many years – the Gloucester County Exhibition – and for his dedication to agriculture in general".

Mention was made of Mr. Bell's work with the vegetable exhibits at the annual agricultural exhibitions.

Mrs. Bell was presented with a bouquet of red roses for her interest and participation in the exhibition project of the larger society.

Assisting Mr. Oliver with the presentations was Allison Branch who has been secretary of the Bathurst Agricultural Society for almost 30 years.

The Bells have been spending the winters in Bathurst but they return to their South Tetagouche farm when spring conditions allow.

Mr. Oliver gave a resume of the many services made available to the farmers through the Society. Included are a special hay seeder, a sprayer for weed control, a sprayer for sanitizing barns and the availability of fertilizer and seed at cost.

The Bathurst Agricultural Society also assists in the sponsoring of local cattle auctions, horse shows and 4-H club activities.

School Board Member Makes Bid For Return

IAN OLIVER

Vice-chairman of the present Board of Trustees of School District No. 4, as well as chairman of the budget and finance committee, Ian Oliver is seeking a return to office in the May 9 election.

Mr. Oliver is also well-known in many other spheres of community activity and public service.

He is a member of the Belledune and District Planning Commission; president of the Lower South Teteagouche Community Hall Association; Area 3 Governor of District 45 Toastmasters international, and a past president of the Bathurst club; member of the Board of the South Teteagouche United Church.

Mr. Oliver has been employed with Eddy Hardware (1971) Ltd. for the past 11 years. He is at present electrical products manager of the company's wholesale division.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver (the former Marie-Marthe Daigle) and their three children reside in South Teteagouche.

R. LANGLEY AUSTIN

Noted For Ability In Assessing Field

The death of Raymond Langley Austin, 666 Youghal Drive, occurred April 21 at Chaleur General Hospital after a long illness. He was 58.

Born at Dryden, Ontario, he was a son of the late Percy C. And Gertrude (Langley) Austin. As an infant, he came to Bathurst with his parents in 1920 when his father assumed the position of kraft superintendent at Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd.

Following graduation from Bathurst High School, Mr. Austin spent two years at Royal Military College in Kingston, Ont., and then served overseas with the North Shore Regiment during World War II. He held the rank of captain.

After his discharge, Mr. Austin was successively engaged in assessing work with the Town of Bathurst and then the city. He became chief assessor of Gloucester County. He was more recently engaged in private practice here as a qualified and licensed appraiser.

Mr. Austin belonged to the Appraisers Institute of Canada and last year was presented with his 25-year membership pin by the Herman J. Good VC Branch No. 18 Royal Canadian Legion. He was a member of the Officers' Mess, 2RNBR (North Shore).

A member of First United Church, Mr. Austin sang in the men's choir. He also belonged to Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club.

Surviving are one brother, Harry of Roxboro, Ont.; two nieces, Elizabeth Austin of Roxboro and Mrs. Linda Smith of London, Ont. and one nephew, Michael Austin, also of Roxboro, Que.

Mr. Austin rested at Elhatton's Funeral Home.

Rev. R. A. Francis officiated at funeral and commital service held at First United Church Sunday at 2 p.m.

The hymns sung were Throughout the Changing Scenes Of Life and Guide Me O Thou Great Jehovah. Organist was J. A. MacDonald.

The pallbearers were Reg Sealy, Robert Losier, Lorne Whalen, Robert Eddy, Fred Losier and John Watling.

A Legion service was held at Elhatton's Saturday at 7:30 p.m. with Harry W. S. MacLean officiating.

Entombment was in the parish receiving vault, St. Anne Street, pending burial in Highland View Cemetery, Bridge Street, later this spring.

Those attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Austin, and Michael Austin, Roxboro, Que.

Continuity In Office Seen As Major Factor

Valmond J. Saulnier's decision to re-offer for councillor in Hachey Ward in the May 9 municipal election did not come overnight, he emphasizes.

"I always felt that there should be continuity on a council and Hachey Ward needs continuity."

Coun. Saulnier is very interested in obtaining more recreational and cultural facilities for the city, but especially for Hachey Ward.

"I cannot forget, however, the areas in Hachey Ward which still do not have city water and sewage, he states.

Continues Coun. Saulnier:

"We also need such basic things as more street lights, better fire protection and better planned safety crossings for our school children.

"Our Ward needs and deserves more consideration from City Council and once elected I will definitely work, in conjunction with my other elected colleague, to organized the residents of our Ward to participate more actively in the development of Hachey Ward."

VALMOND SAULNIER

A resident of Bathurst since 1950, Coun. Saulnier has lived in Hachey Ward for the past 12 years. He is married to a former South Bathurst resident, Anne-Marie Lavigne. They have a family of three.

Previously associated with several business interests in the city, Coun. Saulnier now holds the post of purchasing director at Chaleur General Hospital. His Fraternal affiliations include United Commercial Travellers and Purchasing Managers Association of Canada.

In connection with his civic duties, Coun. Saulnier has served as a member of the Six Cities' Association and the City Planning Advisory Committee. On the community level, he has been a member of the Bathurst Music Festival Committee.

Clam-Digging Still Banned

No clam digging will be allowed at Eel River Bar again this year.

This was the word April 18 from Fisheries Officer Danny Brown.

Mercury tests taken at Eel River Bar had revealed that there was no mercury present and while many residents believed that this meant clam digging would be permitted, Mr. Brown explained that the bar was closed because of high bactaria count and not because of mercury.

Clam digging will not be allowed at the following locations:

From Hamilton Point in Charlo upriver to Campbellton including Charlo River and Eel River.

Nash Creek: from Doyle's Road, east to Nash Creek, to Jack Harvey's west line, west of Nash Creek.

Jacquet River: from Dutchman's west line west to Furlotte's By-road.

Mr. Brown added, however, that clam digging was permitted at Herron Island and in the Benjamin River area.

Have faith in your future, or it is bound to be a failure.

City Upstaged

The Gloucester Towns of Tracadie, Shippegan and Caraquet are in line for commendation for their successful efforts to provide recreational and transportation facilities in their parts of the county.

Besides the usual areas, the Shippegan Museum, etc., they have managed to acquire land and begin construction of a beautiful golf course in relatively short periods of time.

Of special interest is the airport being established by L'Aeroport de la Peninsule Limitee.

Since 1975, the group, in cooperation with the Economic Expansion Commission of the Peninsula Inc., has managed to negotiate and purchase 10 parcels of land in the Pokemouche area which have been cleared and are now ready for paving and construction.

Total LIP grants have been $66,000. between 1975 and 1977, not to mention the grants authorized by other federal government departments.

In the same period of time, the City of Bathurst has incorporated the Bathurst Airport Commission, appointed the directors and shortly afterwards watched their resignation. The city managed to lose the only regular airline service ever to visit Bathurst.

Obviously, the shiretown has lessons to learn from her neighbouring towns downshore in organization, leadership and administration.

It's Worth Saving

For longer than many of us are able to remember, one of the city's landmarks has been the Old Post Office Building, so-called, at the corner of Main St. and Douglas Ave.

Some people are well able to recall those days when they went to this old location to post and pick up mail. In more recent years a new federal building was constructed and opened as the Bathurst post office, etc. on King Ave.

Its predecessor has remained and is used today as a training centre for the militia and affiliated groups.

A rumor has been spreading that the clock and tower are to be taken off the old building and replaced with a flat roof, which apparently is a more economical alternative to repair or renovation.

If this is done, a familiar structure will disappear from the landscape. Evidently the mortar around the stone in the tower have deteriorated with age and rain beats in.

If the reported plan of action is carried out, then Bathurst would suffer an irreparable loss. Is this what the people want?

Before any drastic action is taken, we suggest that the city fathers investigate this situation. And, if the facts, as indicated, are correct, every effort should be made to rescue from destruction one of the city's very few remnants of architectural appeal and historical significance.

Some Strange Ways

Income tax filing time is fast approaching the deadline, which has now been extended to Monday, May 2 from Saturday April 30. Just a few more days and time will have run out on those who have put off this usually bothersome and sometimes disturbing procedure that most Canadians go through at this time of the year. Then of course, there is a brighter side for those eligible for refunds.

If the "Income Tax Guide" is studied thoroughly, it will be noted that it is possible to reduce the amount of tax payable by giving donations to various organizations and associations.

For instance, if you subscribe one hundred dollars to the Cancer Fund, the Red Cross, or your church, then you may deduct this amount from your income. This in turn will reduce your tax payable by twenty or thirty dollars, depending on which income bracket you happen to be in.

However, there are some organizations for which you are allowed a much higher rate of deduction. One of these is the Communist Party of Canada. Give that association one hundred dollars and you may deduct seventy-five dollars from your income tax payable. It may sound amazing, but it is true.

If you find this difficult to believe, write your Member of Parliament and ask for the little booklet put out by the federal government about such donations. This same regulation holds true of all political parties (both federal and provincial) in Canada.

Councillor Aware Of More Work To Be Done

DOUGLAS WILLIAMSON

Coffyn Ward in the City of Bathurst will be voting in the May 9 municipal election. One of three candidates running for two seats is Douglas Williamson, an incumbent councillor, who has served one term.

Following is Coun. Williamson's pre-election statement:

"As a 6-year resident of Coffyn Ward and one of your elected councillors for the last three years, I have served the residents to the best of my ability. I accepted the challenge you gave me to act for you and I am re-offering to serve you for another term.

"During these three years, changes have occurred within our ward. Sewage lift stations have been constructed and are on stream. A one-acre park behind the Canadian Legion was obtained from Mr. Del Rizzo, owner of the property. This past winter a skating rink was built and maintained by the City Works Department in this park. The upgrading of the park is one of the goals I will work to see completed.

"Our streets on this side of the city need major repairs and the Cove Bridge is to receive attention this year from the Department of Highways. Some citizens are pressing for other park areas in the ward. Individual's problems are special in my service to the people.

"Residents of Raymond Ave. and college Hill area are about to be connected to a water and sewage system, which was begun last fall."

"There is so much yet to be done and so much more to work for in our ward. I seek your support to move ahead and meet the new challenge of the next three years."

Guest Speaker At CAMR Annual

Hon. Leslie Hull, New Brunswick Minister of Social Services will be guest speaker here this weekend at the annual meeting of the North Shore Regional Council of the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded.

The meeting will be held Saturday, April 30 at Bathurst Trade School, commencing at 9 a.m.

Theme of the meeting is "Public Education in the Mental Retardation Field."

School Board Seat Appeals To Nurse

As a registered nurse who loves children, Mrs. Claire Hodgins feels she is very aware of their development in every phase. Also, as the wife of a school teacher in the district, she is of the opinion she is fully familiar with the manner in which the students are being educated, disciplined and helped to get through their young years.

This type of background has prompted Mrs. Hodgins to seek election to the School Board of District No. 4 in the May 9 election. Says this candidate in Sub-District 6:

"I feel it is very important to be part of the decision-making group which helps govern and instruct our schools and teachers. As a responsible citizen I would appreciate your support in my aspirations towards a School Board seat.

"I think that physical exercise is very important in preventing ill-health and this winter as president of the X-C (Cross-Country) Ski Club, I have encouraged many people to participate and now I am helping to organize a "parcour" in the area."

For almost 10 years, Mrs. Hodgins has been office nurse for Dr. J. D. Carson. She also casually serves in the pediatrics department at Chaleur General Hospital.

Mrs. Hodgins' other affiliations have included St. John Ambulance, in which she has been a nursing officer, and the Girl Guides. She is married to Joseph H. Hodgins, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronaldo Olscamp, are also well-known residents of Bathurst.

"Nutty" Driver Irks Motorist

Bathurst, N.B.
April 20, 1977

An RCMP constable announced over CKBC a short time ago, "Never trust entirely a green street light. Always look left and right before crossing an intersection."

No truer words have been spoken by anyone, and every car driver should take heed.

Last Monday evening, April 18, shortly after 7 p.m., I was driving through the King Avenue intersection going west on St. Andrew Street on the "green" light. There was only one other vehicle at the intersection, a man on a motor bike. When I was halfway through, a light blue car flashed by my headlights at a high rate of speed going north on King, through the "red" light.

Now, Mr. Little Blue Car Driver, whoever you are, slow down and live. The next life you save may be your own. There are other ways of committing suicide besides car driving.

I always knew you required a lot of "nuts" to build a car, but I never knew there were so many "nuts" in the driver's seat.

Lack Of Contests Provides Answer

Bathurst, N.B.
April 21, 1977

I should like to express my views on comments recently made in the local French press (Le Voilier) about the unrepresentative nature of District No. 4 School Board. The board was criticized for having too many Anglophone representatives in terms of the ratio between Anglophone-Francophone pupils in District No. 4 schools.

On the face of it, the criticism might be justified if we see a board member of a particular ethnic group as being concerned solely for those children of his or her own ethnic background.

Such a view seems to me to be curiously parochial, to say the least. I know personally several of the present board members whose educational concerns, I am convinced, are much broader than this - their interests extend to the well-being of all District No. 4 children.

Nevertheless, the so-called Anglophone imbalance could have been rectified by means of the democratic process. Why then, were four candidate (three of whom are Anglophone) recently elected by acclamation?

If the critics were genuinely interested in seeing more Francophones on the Board, these three seats would have been contested. Since they were not, we can infer general public apathy about the Board's composition.

Clearly, the time for complaining is past. Those vocal critics of District No. 4 School Board had their chance "to fish". Now it's time to "cut bait".

Week Promotes Animal Kindness

Bathurst, N.B.
April 25, 1977

Do people really realize the impact that animals have on our daily lives? They provide food, clothing, entertainment, companionship and a variety of other tangible and intangible necessities to mankind. This has been true throughout history, but we often take the animal kingdom for granted.

This is true of some of our beautiful wildlife, valuable domestic livestock and companion animals such as the family dog, cat or horse.

We so often regard things simply for our convenience. We should all stop to appreciate the vital role of animal life to mankind.

This letter is prompted because May 1st to 7th is the 63rd National Be Kind To Animals Week. This is observed by the American Humane Association and more than 1500 other humane agencies throughout the country.

One area of emphasis this year is the overpopulation of dogs and cats, and one act of kindness is to have your pet spayed or neutered to prevent unwanted offspring. Consider the fate of the unwanted. It is anything but kind.

President
Bathurst Animal Shelter

May 9 Election: One Man's View

Shippegan N.B.
April 25, 1977

Nine candidates will be in line for election or re-election as members of the Town Council of Shippegan to be selected on May the 9 next.

The present Mayor will be opposed this year by Raymond H. Hachey, an employee of Eagle Fisheries Ltd. of Shippegan. Amongst the seven other candidates three of them are seeking re-election while the four others are all new comers in civic politics including two women.

What the ratepayers and voters of Shippegan need this time is a complete new slate of councillors including the mayor with priorities toward the population of Shippegan and not toward strangers and outsiders of the town as it has been done for the past few years and still being done under this present administration. People are well fed up with that kind of work and a change of administration is needed.

Here in Shippegan the Manpower office is open just once a week. The man in charge said on Wednesday April the 20, that there was no employment available in Shippegan on the project now underway at the Ideal Cormier Arena. In the meantime he hired a young man from town with the instructions to report to the Town Hall of Shippegan to a certain young office clerk. This was in contradiction to a statement made on the previous day by Mayor Jean Chiasson that the Town Council had nothing to do with such project.

It is also to be noted that three candidates in line for election are employees of Her Majesty the Queen government, one with the federal and two with the Provincial government. Their legal right to act as such remains to be questioned.

Mayor John Duffy of Bathurst with the presentation of a brief to New-Brunswick Cabinet concerning the Northeastern part of New-Brunswick failed to present such brief in both languages. Apparently he is not aware that Northeastern New-Brunswick is 90 per cent french canadiens with over 60 per cent in his own city of Bathurst and area.

WHEN A $20. BILL WAS THE EQUIVALENT OF A SMALL FORTUNE

To those who have viewed Western movies and that means practically everybody, Wells Fargo is a familiar name. It is reminiscent of that early era when Cowboys and Indians ruled a romantic part of the United States. The pioneer banking firm which flourished in the mid-19th century was the forerunner of the present American Express Co. Such an historical background makes Ronald Lavigne, a city barber who lives on Rough Water Rd. and who operates a shop at 682 Riverside Dr., mighty proud of this cancelled cheque worth $20. in gold on January 11, 1871, which recently became part of his ever-growing coin and currency collection. Drawn on a San Francisco, bank, it was payable to Mrs. Eliza Smith. Since he came across the museum piece through a numismatic connection in Quebec, Mr. Lavigne has had numerous enticing offers. So far, however, he's not interested in disposing of this latest acquisition a well-preserved piece of material of pigskin-like texture.

Ryan Ward Candidate Lists Area's Needs

A well-known figure for many years in sports, youth work and other community ventures, Ken Frenette is among the candidates in the May 9 municipal election. He has filed for Ryan Ward.

Born in South Bathurst, Mr. Frenette has lived all his life there. He is a graduate of Bathurst High School and in earlier years established an enviable record in hockey and baseball, first as a player and later as an official. He has also been involved in Minor Hockey and Boy Scout work.

For the past 5 years, Mr. Frenette has been associated with the Provincial Court, Family Division. Previous to that he held an accounting position with Consolidated-Bathurst.

In seeking a voice in municipal politics, Mr. Frenette sees many needs in his constituency. These include:

Formation of a neighbourhood committee to discuss various problems and issues of concern to citizens of Ryan Ward.

Upgrading of King Ave. to meet the increase in traffic volume and also to insure greater citizen safety.

Increased support of NIP and RRAP programs due to get underway this summer.

Complete review of the present recreational programs in Ryan Ward and the City generally as to direction to be taken and the urgent need for additional facilities.

More efficient snow-clearing program for Ryan Ward.

KEN FRENETTE

Improved police protection in Ryan Ward.

Extension of water and sewage services to areas not yet covered.

A bilingual representatives on City Council in order to insure the citizens an equal opportunity to discuss matters of concern to them.

Mr. Frenette's affiliations include the Basin Park Homeowners' Committee, of which chairman and St. Theresa's Parish Committee.

The Ryan Ward candidate is married to the former Bette McEachern of Saint John. Their son Andre is a student at UNBSGJ, and their daughter Renee attends Bathurst High School.

CITY'S ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT MOVES FORWARD

Officially opened during a special ceremony attended by municipal, provincial and federal officials was phase two of Bathurst's lengthy three-phased project of environmental protection for Bathurst Harbor.

On hand to participate in the traditional ribbon cutting were Bathurst Mayor John Duffy, N.B. Municipal Affairs Minister Horace Smith and Senator Michel Fournier, who was representing the federal minister of urban affairs and Herb Breau, MP for Gloucester, both of whom were unable to attend.

The multi-million dollar project, consisting of the collection of sewage from all parts of the city for plant treatment, was initiated in 1971. Erection of the treatment plant itself comprises the upcoming third phase.

It was in 1971 the provincial government announced the availability of funds which in addition to loans and grants through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, were offered to assist in the implementation of sewage treatment works.

Phase One of the undertaking consisted of a complete survey of existing sewers in the city dating back to 1915 and the location of about two dozen sewage outfalls which were scattered along Bathurst Basin and Bathurst Harbor.

Interception and collection of these outlets, comprised the first general contract of approximately $4 million.

Installed were some 40,500 feet of sewers with diameters from 12 to 36 inches along with 7,000 feet of forcemains with diameters from eight to 16 inches.

Phase Two consisted of the construction of seven pumping stations with capacities ranging from 150 gallons per minute to 10,000 gallons per minute. This represented a $3.5 million undertaking.

It was at the large pumping station beyond the Bathurst Yacht Club marina site alongside Bathurst Harbor that the official opening of the second phase took place. A tour of the station followed the ribbon cutting and brief speeches.

The treatment plant is to be erected next to this pumping station. Construction is expected to commence early in 1978 and to be completed by mid 1979.

With the collector system now in operation, all of the waste water is being collected and delivered to this one point. Disposal is being made into the secondary harbor channel until the treatment plant is built and in operation.

The city population presently connected to the system numbers some 14,000. The ultimate capability of the collector sewer system is to serve a population of 60,000 and the main pumping station can be equipped to satisfy that demand.

The sampling and analyzing of the waste water will continue until September and will determine the type and design of the treatment process and plant.

Four of the seven pumping stations have superstructures and the others are limited to underground components.

One of these underground units, located at the Cove Bridge in the Princess-Riverside Drive area of the city, is the largest prefabricated station ever made. It has a diameter of 12 feet and has space for four submersible pumps with a ultimate capacity of 7,000 gallons per minute.

St. Laurent Construction Ltd. has been contractor for the first two phases.

Marks Sixty Years In Order

Sister Marion Vincent White, a Bathurst native, was one of eight members of the Sisters of Charity who celebrated 60 years in the religious order at Halifax on Sunday, April 17.

The ceremonies which took place at Mount Saint Vincent Mother House in Halifax, included celebrations for five religious who were marking their golden jubilee. The religious service in the chapel was at 3 p.m. and the banquet began at five o'clock.

Sister Marion Vincent, a daughter of the late Samuel and Helen (Roy) White, received her early schooling at Sacred Heart Convent.

Following graduation, she entered the Sisters of Charity order at Halifax and was professed in April, 1917.

A teacher throughout her life in the order, Sister Marion Vincent has instructed in Nova Scotia, and in Roxbury, Mass. She served as principal and superior at St. Joseph's Convent North Sydney, N.S. for 18 years. After her official retirement, Sister returned to teaching at Mount St. Vincent for a few years.

In more recent years, Sister Marion Vincent has been an annual visitor to Bathurst to see her many relatives and friends.

Those attending the diamond jubilee functions from Bathurst include her sister, Mrs. Zita Doucet, a niece, Mrs. Carmel Hachey, Mrs. Georgina Doucet and daughter Carla; and from CFB Chatham, was a nephew Gregory Doucet and Mrs. Doucet.

Village Mayor By Acclamation

A well-known downshore resident, Jean-Marie Pinet, has been elected by acclamation as mayor of Paquetville. He succeeds Yvon Boudreau in office.

Following his education at Sacred Heart College, Bathurst, and St. Joseph's University, Memramcook, Mr. Pinet lived for 18 years in Montreal where he was a stock market employee. During that period he earned a sales diploma from Laval University, and a sales manager's certificate from Quebec Academy.

In 1974, Mr. Pinet returned to New Brunswick and joined the Caraquet weekly, Le Voileir in an advertising sales capacity.

JEAN-MARIE PINET

About a year ago, Mr. Pinet started his own advertising business by establishing "La Consommateur", a semi-monthly publication which enjoys wide circulation in the county.

Mr. Pinet is married to the former Alberte Mallet of Shippegan, and they have one daughter, Lucie, aged 6.

FIRE STRIKES COUNTY FAMILY

The family of Gerard Chiasson escaped without injury early Saturday morning, April 23, from a blaze which completely levelled their Pokemouche home.

A spokesman for Caraquet RCMP said the fire broke out at about 1:30 a.m. in a shed connected to the small house. The flames eventually spread and engulfed the entire structure.

The Chiasson family was able to escape from the burning building without injury, but nothing was saved. Faulty wiring was given as the reason for the fire, and no insurance was carried on the home.

The RCMP spokesman said it was the third time the family has been burned out.

Throws Hat In Ring Third Time Around

Henry H. Murphy, who has been nominated for Ryan Ward in the May 9 municipal election contest says he has enjoyed his experience as a city councillor in the past. The South Bathurst representative has already served two terms, one for a two-year period, the other of three years' duration.

In discussing his decision to reoffer, Coun. Murphy had the following to say:

"In the past three years, many changes for the better have occurred in Ryan Ward. Our NIP and RRAP programs are right on schedule. We have a good active committee working on these projects and I hope our new co-ordinator and staff will be with us for the next two or three years.

"The King Ave. reconstruction project is of top priority in this area, as it is broken up very badly. Also requiring preferred treatment is our recreational park.

"We have money in the NIP program to get a good start on our park and a good committee should be organized to get this project off the ground this year.

"If elected as your councillor, I am looking forward to working on the above-mentioned and other projects in Ryan Ward. I also wish to thank the electors for their previous support.

Yacht Club News

By A.M. Arbic

Members of the Bathurst Yacht Club are anxiously awaiting the return of their new commodore, Adrien Albert who is vacationing at present in Florida. Upon his return, the executive as well as other club members will settle down into various committees with a view of making the club premises an enjoyable place to be during the summer months.

Grounds Committee Chairman Albert Matheson has informed members that owners of sail dories, speed boats and yachts will soon be seen preparing their vessels for the upcoming boating season.

Cec Lavigne of the membership committee has posted a list of club members, and has noted 128 of 306 memberships remain unpaid to date.

Mr. Lavigne stated these members have been issued a notice, and all are urged to come forward to renew their memberships on or before the deadline of April 31.

To err is human to forgive divine. Yes, Maynard you were elected and are chairman of the bar and house committee.

The writer would like to take this opportunity to apologize to Maynard Jenkins for not including his official appointment in last week's column.

Gowan Brae Club To Host Cup Trials, Junior Event

The introduction of a Seniors' Wellingdon Cup competition was the major resolution passed at the spring meeting of the Board of Governors of the New Brunswick Golf Association in Fredericton over the weekend.

Ev Trites of Saint John, secretary-treasurer of the Association, said N.B.'s four member Seniors' Wellingdon Cup team will be chosen on the basis of 36 holes of competition. The first round is scheduled for the St. Croix Calais, Me., Golf Club June 21 with the final leg of the trials set for the Algonquin Golf club in St. Andrews on June 22.

Doug Campbell of Saint John, president of the NBGA, said for an individual to try out for the senior's team, he has to be at least 55 years of age. The national interprovincial team matches will be held in conjunction with the national Seniors' tournament in Winnipeg July 6-8. It'll be a 72-hole competition.

The provincial seniors' tournament is scheduled for Moncton Golf Club June 25-26.

Meanwhile, it was decided at the meeting that the N.B. Willingdon Cup team trials consist of seven rounds of golf this summer. The first two rounds will be played in Moncton June 25 - 26, with the three rounds of the N.B. Amateur championship at Riverside Country Club, July 15 - 17, counting towards the provincial teams' makeup. The final two rounds will be played at Bathurst's Gowan Brae Golf Club July 23 - 24.

The national interprovincial team match is set for Hamilton, Ont. Aug. 10 - 13 in conjunction with the 73rd Canadian Amateur championship. It'll be the 45th interprovincial team competition for the Willingdon Cup.

Trites added that the development of the junior golfer in N.B. was also of prime interest at the meeting. "We want to bring the junior and juvenile golfers in the province up to a higher standard with more tests, qualifying rounds and field trials this year," the secretary-treasurer added. "This is all part of a junior development program that we hope will pay substantial dividends for us in the not too distant future."

He added that junior challenge matches involving golfers from N.B., N.S. and P.E.I. are "very likely this summer."

The N.B. Junior Team Trials will consist of six 18-hole rounds. The first two are set for Mactaquac July 19 - 20, the middle two here at Gowan Brae in conjunction with the Junior championship, July 30 - 31 and the final two at Moncton's Mountain Ridge course, August 3 - 4.

Tigers Romp Over Raiders; Advance To Hardy Cup Final

Campbellton Tigers ran their unbeaten playoff string to 21 straight Sunday in Campbellton when they dumped Georgetown, Ontario, Raiders 8-3 to dispose of the Ontario Intermediate A champions in three straight and add the Eastern Canadian title to their list of accomplishments this season.

They will now advance to the Canadian championship against either Warroad, Minnesota, or North Vancouver.

Campbellton won the series opener last Friday by a 5 - 1 count but the Raiders felt their tough travelling schedule to reach Campbellton just three hours before game time had an effect on their play. The Tigers were of the same opinion and geared themselves for a tighter game Saturday.

However, there were just no excuses Saturday as the Maritime champs crushed the Raiders 12 - 2 in a laugher. Centerman Jean Marie Bouchard, who fired three goals for the Tigers, was obliged to comment, "It was too easy. There was just no competition out there."

Marcel Dumais and John Wood each added a pair in Saturday's win while singles came from Mike Morton, Brian Forster, Greg McCullough, Denis Langlais and Robert Allain. Danny Blair scored both Raider goals.

Dave Stevenson scored twice to lead the Tigers in Sunday's series finale while Dennis Henderson fired a goal and added three assists. Laurie Gregan, John Wood, Eric Cameron, George Berube and Dave Wisener completed the Tiger scoring. Owen Held, Dan Blair and Bob Fotheringham replied for Georgetown who trailed 4 - 2 after the first and 6 - 3 entering the final period. Glen Seperich, the pick-up goalie from the Bathurst Alpines, was between the pipes on Sunday and kicked out 26 of 29 Raider shots.

Morton Stars

Mike Morton, another pick-up from Bathurst Alpines, was the big gun in Friday's opening game win as the 26-year-old rightwinger fired three Tiger goals while playing left wing. Tiger coach Gerry Ouellette put Morton at left wing on a line with centreman Jean marie Bouchard and George Parker on the right side and the move certainly paid dividends. Parker and Bouchard drew assists on each of Morton's goals.

Greg McCullough and John Wood connected for the other Campbellton goals while Doug Tait spoiled Tigers' goalie Mike Frawley's shutout bid with the long Georgetown goal midway through the second period.

Local Cars Take Honors At Show

Gleaming paint jobs and miles of highly-polished chrome amid a sea of awed faces was the scene at the Moncton Coliseum over the weekend as the Moncton Motor Club presented the Third Annual Speed Sport East Auto Show.

Approximately 108 vehicles, including four from the Bathurst area, were entered in the show, which began Friday, April 22 and drew to a close Sunday evening, April 24 with the awarding of trophies.

Bathurst entrants made a commendable showing, with Ron Morrison's Cactus Stomper, a 1928 Oldsmobile three-window coupe, picking up first place in the street coupe and sedan class. Third place in the same category went to Nelson Morrison and his 1933 Plymouth five-window coupe.

Denis Theriault's Beast, a 1965 Chev Impala SS, won top honours in the conservative hard top section, while second prize for conservative custom window van went to Herman Vienneau and his 1976 Dodge Van. Mr. Vienneau was also awarded the trophy for the best use of colour and custom paint.

Radicals Bolt Parti Acadien

Five of the 14 members of the Parti Acadien executive have resigned, party president Jean-Pierre Lanteigne of Bathurst said Sunday.

Dr. Lanteigne said the five gave the party a statement saying they were resigning because the party had socialist and reformist orientation. The statement said what was needed was communist, Marxist and Leninist orientation, Dr. Lanteigne said.

The party president would not release the names of the five who resigned, but vice-president Gilles Theriault later stated he was one of the group.

The party, which does not have an elected member in the New Brunswick Legislature, is to hold its annual meeting this coming weekend, April 29 - May 1.

Dr. Lanteigne said he was pleased that the resignations came before the annual meeting because the party had been split with internal problems for more than a year.

NB Purchases Fishing Waters

The purchase of prime angling waters on the Miramichi River has been announced by Natural Resources Minister Richard C. Boudreau.

The province has acquired part of the fishing water on the Main Southwest Miramichi owned by Wilson Sporting Camps Ltd. in the area of Carrolls Crossing. The stretch of water has a total river frontage of 18,000 feet and includes several pools and runs.

The fishing rights were evaluated by departmental biologists and the purchase price agreed upon was $75,000.

The minister stated that this water will become Crown open water and will increase considerably the available fishing water in the area.

Many From Bathurst Attend CIMM Convention

Canada's biggest mining convention met last week in Ottawa for the first time since 1972

The 79th Annual General Meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy has attracted some 2500 mineral industry executives, government and university scientists economists and geologists, mining engineering and metallurgists

Their ranks include women active in the industry, and as visitors accompanying husbands to enjoy the attractions of the capital in spring The Bathurst mining camp is represented by a large number of such delegates

The theme of the Ottawa meeting was "Canadian Minerals in a Global Perspective" and this was discussed at a special Opening Plenary Session in the opera of the National Arts Centre on Monday

Chaired by Jean Paul Drolet Assistant Deputy Minister for Mineral Development, Department of Energy, Mines and Resources, the Plenary Session featured distinguished Canadian and international resource experts discussing global mineral resources and the role of Canadian producers in world mineral markets

Institute President Dr M W Bartley said

"We are in a critical period in our understanding of world mineral resources There is concern about the future supply of some resources and because of the unequal distribution of mineral resources throughout the world there are many problems that have to be solved if societies are to make fair and wise use of what is available World Mineral supplies are related to such current problems as increasing food and energy shortages in the face of growing populations because it takes energy to mine, process and transport minerals and it takes minerals to produce fertilizers for agriculture All of these things are interconnected and we have to look at them in this sort of broad light Canada has a very important role to play here, in a global context"

The 1977 convention was hosted by The Ottawa Branch of the Institute Chairman of the Ottawa Branch and General Chairman of the Annual Meeting is G E Wittur, assisted by G A Gross (Technical Program W G Jeffery (Plenary Session and L Sirois (Finance Honourary Chairman is the Honourable Alastair Gillespie, Minister of Energy Mines and Resources Chairman Wittur said

"The factors noted by CIM President Bartley are of concern to everyone in the Canadian mineral industry and we think that this year's Ottawa meeting is a timely platform for discussing these matters

Headquarters for the Ottawa convention was the Chateau Laurier Hotel where registration of delegates started Sunday April 17

In addition the April 18 Plenary Session at the NAC over 100 technical papers were presented in some 26 sessions held on two consecutive days in the hotel and the adjacent Conference Centre

Among the papers presented was one by William Luff, mine geologist of Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp Ltd , Bathurst The presentation outlined the regional geology and history of the area and summarized the stratigraphy, structure and geology of the Brunswick No 12 Mine area

As a diversion from working sessions at the conference, delegates participated in a number of visits to local points of interest around Ottawa, a special variety night and dance at the Arts Centre on Monday evening and the Institute's Annual Ball at the Chateau Laurier, Wednesday evening

MCGINN — In loving memory of our daughter Brenda Marie who left us May 2, 1976.

Brenda Marie a sweet pretty rose
She was the one The Almighty chose,
To make Him laugh, to sit on His knees,
A little darling as sweet as can be,
It is hard to see her gone,
Especially when we loved her so long,
She was too beautiful to stay here,
Her body is far away but her spirit is near,
Her rosy cheeks we won't forget,
Her pretty face to grow prettier yet,
She is not dead only asleep
Now that she's gone it makes us weep,
But she will be happier without any fears,
And we will remember her year after year.

Sadly missed by her mother, father, Shawn and Paula.

Contract For Tracadie P.O.

Herb Breau, Member of Parliament for Gloucester, has announced on behalf of the Honorable Judd Buchanan, Minister of Public Works, that B and S Construction Ltd. of Tracadie, has been awarded a $198,700 contract for additions and alterations to the Government of Canada Building in Tracadie.

The successful firm submitted the lowest of four bids received in response to public tender. The highest bid was $224,400.

Specifications for the project were prepared by D. G. Steen, architects, under the supervision of Public Works Canada for Canada Post.

The building expansion of 1,500 square feet will enable the present postal facilities to be expanded. The interior postal layout will be revised and refurnished and additional washroom facilities and an improved cooling system added. The enlarged lobby will also have additional lock boxes.

The project, which is expected to be completed by the end of August, is under the supervision of D. K. Amos of Public Works Canada's office in Saint John.

First Quarter Earnings Down

Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. lost $4.6 million in the first quarter of 1977 because of the anticipated $5-million cost of closing its newsprint plant in Cap de la Madeleine, company president William Turner said April 22.

Mr. Turner told shareholders that before this expense, the company had an operating profit for the first quarter of $419,000 or one cent a share, compared with $1.1 million or ten cents a share for the same period last year.

He blamed the decline on sluggish newsprint demand in the United States and Britain, the lower value of the Canadian dollar against the German mark and reductions in investment and other income.

The company president predicted results for the entire year will top the $18.2 million earned in 1976 on sales of $745.2 million. U.S. newsprint demand is expected to rise four per cent to ten million tons this year, allowing Canadian newsprint mills to work at 86 per cent of capacity.

First quarter sales were $190.6 million, up 25 per cent from the same period last year.

The company also expects to realize an extraordinary gain later this year when it receives an insurance settlement for fire damage to its Braeside sawmill in Ontario.

Consolidated's first quarter results do not reflect the three per cent inventory tax credit introduced last month in the new federal budget because it is not yet clear how the credit will apply to company operations, Mr. Turner said.

The company estimates the credit will be worth a nominal $1.7 million this year.

Catechetical Workshop

A Rewarding Experience

Another highly successful and well received Catechetical Workshop was held April 18 at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The guest speaker was Dr. Thomas Francoeur, whose present occupations include: chairman, Dept. of Catholic Studies, McGill University; Divine Word Centre, London: consultant in religious education and religious psychology; St. Peter's Seminary, London, Ontario: counselling psychologist; private practice in clinical psychology, Montreal.

He also conducts retreats and renewal workshops to religious in Canada and the U.S. and was with the Sisters of Charity on Parkside Drive on April 16 and 17 in this respect.

Dr. Francoeur is a married man with two children. His daughter is a novice with the Sisters of Service and his son is a pediatrician. Dr. Francoeur was born in London, England and at an early age came over to Canada.

The following is a report on Dr. Francoeur's talk throughout the day:

MORNING SESSION

Dr. Francoeur was introduced by Joyce Thibodeau a catechist with Our Lady of the Rosary Parish.

We welcomed all present and introduced the topics he would be speaking about: Why he finds the program "Come to the Father" is interesting and why he thinks it is in keeping with the divine plan and in keeping with how we are as humans. It respects the child. Also, what he looks for in elementary schools and the outcome he hopes for after 6 or so years.

DR. THOMAS FRANCOEUR

In teaching catechism our aims should be - to preserve the child's theological curiosity, his wonder about god. Also, it is our responsibility to develop, encourage and preserve prayerfullness in the child.

We must respect the child's rhythm of development, take the child as he is and work with his personal developmental rhythm. We must also realize that theological curiosity is not theological knowledge. We become too practical. The child is an image maker. We must try to present Jesus as he is, not notions but in the images and imagination of the child. We react better to images than to ideas.

The Canadian Catechism is good because it is essentially adaptive. It obeys the psychological development and respects the child as a human person. The heart of any catechises is adaptation.

In the past we were uneasy about our religion and were anxious to get our children as quickly as possible into the sacraments of the church. In today's catechism we must try to be at ease in the conviction we are in the hands of a loving Father and that we will flow according to his plan. It strives to be non anxious, to be at ease in the knowledge of a loving Father. We are basically insecure or uneasy. Even after 2000 years we are still trying to be at ease with Jesus, and at the age of 6 or 7 a child is barely convinced he is a person, let alone a person for others. He looks for a loving person, and the lack of a loving person makes him very insecure.

We try to make him see that there are persons who love him. In the first book which deals with Baptism (One of the Sacraments of Initiation) the child is introduced to three loving, dependable, available persons, The Father, The Son and the Holy Spirit, who loves him always and is always there for him. A child accepts this, he does not worry about not seeing God but accepts the reality of God.

Book 1 is a catechises of Baptism. The child is made aware they have been invited, and have accepted the invitation and are a part of loving, supportive and healing persons grouped around the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, part of of a loving community. Also that God's love never fails which gives a child an ongoing feeling of security.

The Canadian Catechism takes into account the psychology of love. Dr. Francoeur expanded on C. L. Lewis's (a great Anglican professor at Oxford University) theory of love. Mr. Lewis defines two kinds of love - Need Love and Gift Love - we need love, accepting it from others - we must give love - or Gift Love - to others.

The Eucharist

Jesus had spent 33 years of his life with his people very naturally, lovingly. He wanted his full power of loving to show. At the Last Supper He said 'Take Ye and Eat'. He gives himself completely. He, in effect says, Lean on Me. He also said 'Do this in remembrance of Me' - he was telling his apostles and everyone, to give of yourself, do the same, do as I do.

For First Communion, Jesus is there for the children. Jesus not only invited them in Baptism, but that they can 'Lean 'on Him'. Jesus gives himself to them. He is happy when people lean on him. They are aware they receive the total loving person of Jesus, and He is always available to them.

On Reconciliation

The child must gradually learn to be social by getting them to ponder situations where there is some dis-order. They must be made to realize that, maybe, they can do something to clear up the disorder, not blame one person for it but clear it up and feel good about it. This is a child's first call for Gift Love, to give of himself, but as is mentioned it comes very gradually.

We as humans are only at ease when there is love. When there is no love there is unease and insecurity. This is especially true in children.

The morning session ended with questions which were aptly answered by Dr. Francoeur.

Lunch was then served.

AFTERNOON SESSION

During the morning a question was asked about the Ten Commandments, and Dr. Francoeur started the afternoon answering this question.

When Jesus came, He simplified the laws of the Prophets. He gave us the Law of Love. Jesus said, Love God and love your neighbor. This must be our guiding light, it helps us to become a loving community.

Psychologists tell us our moral development depends on our relating to others in a loving way. In early life the controls for behaviour come from without, after about 15 or so the controls for behaviour come from within. The responsibility is then within us to care for or love others.

Priesthood

Everything to do with the Eucharist, the Sacraments and Priesthood is based on the most psychological factor in human consciousness. Self-Image, we cannot be what we cannot imagine ourselves to be.

In the Eucharist, Jesus said 'Take Ye and Eat, and Do This in remembrance of Me'. He gives to us and commands Do This, in the Sacraments we are called upon to be with Him - Love lived out, in Priesthood is the Quantity X.

Jesus said, 'Do this in remembrance of Me,' stand with Me and be for others, food. He invites us to be like Him. Everyone is invited. He loves everyone. Jesus is the sacraments, the sacraments are Jesus's love for us now, living with us in the sacraments.

We must gradually get the seminarians to see themselves as the sacraments of love lived out. But this is also true for everyone in whatever we do, to be love lived out.

The priesthood is mysterious, it is a character, a special role, a special someone called by Baptism, Confirmation and Holy Orders, which in a special way accepts a role of leadership, guidance and liasion - Love lived out.

Let the child know he is special, a healer, a joy, and to realize that others are special also.

All these are things we must pass on to the children in our care and it is not easy but that is why we are here - we need guidelines and encouragement but we must also realize we must always adapt to situations.

Book 4 "We Have Seen the Lord" is Dr. Francoeur's favorite, because it is about Jesus. Jesus is presented in different situations by different people. In Book 5 "Alive as He Promised" Jesus tells us not to concentrate on the dark but on the light, rather than think about sin, think about planning love. We must have a love planning heart.

Dr. Francoeur then answered questions to end the day's session.

Mrs. Albertine Boucher thanked Dr. Francoeur for his most wonderful talk and inspiration.

The day was organized by Miss Rita Boudreau with the help of catechetical representatives from the different parishes, under the guidance of Sister Geraldine Kelly, who although she is not feeling well, attended the session.

The organizers would like to thank the ladies of the Sacred Heart Council and Holy Rosary Council CWL for their assistance with the coffee, tea and lunch, the Knights of Columbus for the use of the hall and anyone else who helped in any way.

The day was a fulfilling experience and it is hoped that Dr. Francoeur will again come to Bathurst to share his knowledge and experience with all who are interested in God's great work of spreading the Good News which is Catechesis.

MORE SUPPORT NEEDED FROM PUBLIC

The 50-50 draw sponsored by the Pabineau, Big River, Mines Road (PBM) Volunteer Fire Brigade dropped $100 in the April 20th draw from $200 in last month's Blair Branch of Beresford was the lucky winner of $100. The sale of tickets is to raise funds to defray expenses in the construction of the fire hall and purchase fire-fighting equipment. Therefore more support towards this worthy cause is requested. St. John Ambulance Workers Commended

There are 1,145 volunteers in New Brunswick active in St. John Ambulance Brigade activities according to the organization's provincial commissioner.

Burton D. Colter of Fredericton, in a summary of 1976 brigade activities, said volunteer services included manning first aid posts at public events, providing home nursing service, teaching first aid and operating a fleet of over 40 ambulances around the province. "All this was accomplished by volunteers who receive no payment, and amounted to some 225,000 hours," said Mr. Colter.

New Brunswick ranks third among Canadian provinces in membership exceeded only by Quebec and Ontario, he pointed out.

BURTON D. COLTER

The provincial commissioner had high praise for the volunteers whom he said "spend much time training each year and often drive many miles to attend specialist lectures, competitions and field days, and pay for the gas to get there out of their own pockets."

Mr. Colter went on to say that St. John Ambulance volunteers can often keep people breathing who can't breathe by themselves. "They can control external bleeding and know what to do for internal bleeding. They can treat for shock, immobilize fractured bones, treat the unconscious and many specialize in transporting invalids or injured patients," he said.

"Not always does the public understand or know about the services our volunteers provide" Mr. Colter says, explaining that his organization "has never been very public relations oriented."

A well-known Fredericton businessman, Mr. Colter was appointed provincial commissioner in 1968. As such, Mr. Colter is the highest ranking brigade officer in New Brunswick and leader of the association's uniformed volunteers.

"Our work is better known in the smaller communities we serve" said Mr. Colter, pointing out that their emergency 24-hour ambulance service often found there is highly visible. "In Saint John, Moncton and Fredericton, however, emergency ambulances are operated by the hospitals. This doesn't mean that we aren't every bit as active in the cities though," he explained. "In fact we're probably in even greater demand at sporting events and transporting invalids from hospitals to home or between hospitals."

On the western side of the province St. John Ambulance has brigades in Fredericton, Meductic, Canterbury, Woodstock, Hartland, Grand Falls and Edmundston.

On the south locations include Campobello Island, St. Stephen, Saint John, Quispamsis, Sussex, Petitcodiac, Havelock, Salisbury, Moncton, Hillsborough, Riverside Albert and Sackville.

On the province's east coast there are brigades located at Cap Pele, Shediac, Buctouche, St. Anne de Kent, Rexton, Rogersville, Newcastle, Neguac, Bathurst, Dalhousie, Balmoral and Campbellton.

Other locations include Stanley, Boestown, Doaktown and Blackville.

As provincial commissioner Mr. Colter says it is his responsibility to be familiar with the records of each brigade. "I know about the service they provide. I see the men, women and young people who wear the white cross of St. John with pride, knowing their communities benefit by a service that has no price tag attached."

Founder's Day Plans Made

Xi Delta, Beta Sigma Phi officers for the coming year were elected at the March 30 meeting of the group held at the home of Jill White.

Members voted for the "girl of the year" award. The winner will receive the trophy at the Founder's Day celebration to be held at Danny's on April 30.

Fred Vienneau, a local artist, as well as a "Jack" of many trades, demonstrated the art of making pottery, earthenware and stoneware.

The program was followed by the serving of Irish goodies prepared by Gwen MacKenzie and Jill White.

Judy Losier hosted the chapter's April 13 meeting.

Xi Delta members will entertain members from Chi and Kappa Chapters at the Founder's Day dinner and plans were discussed and made for this project.

Linda Austfjord presented her program on television. Quoting from Norman S Morris and his book "Television Child", Linda pointed out the detrimental effect on young viewers. Parents, she said, should teach children to discriminate, to evaluate, to accept or reject television's varied input.

A white elephant auction followed, much to the enjoyment of everyone.

Donna Cormier and the hostess served coffee and snacks.

Concorde Jet Is Defended

Sir Frank Whittle, British inventor of the jet engine was in fine form during a recent visit to Canada belaboring critics of the supersonic Concorde in the course of his talks.

To those who allege fuel extravagance, he pointed out that "Concorde does 16 seat miles per gallon which is as good as a Rolls Royce car and, of course, it's using a cheaper fuel."

Opposition to new modes of travel from so-called experts is not a new, or even modern, phenomenon.

"When railways were invented, medical experts of the day contended that the human body was incapable of sustaining speeds of over 30 mph," he added.

Questions Spark Sharp Dialogue

Opposition commerce and development critic Rayburn Doucett wondered April 20 about the status of the Bricklin auto venture, but before an answer was given, Speaker, William Woodroffe had terminated the question period.

The problem was that seemingly everyone wanted to talk at the same time - except Commerce and Development minister Gerald Merrithew.

After Doucett had posed his question to the minister, Edison Stairs (PC-Carleton South) shouted that Merrithew might prefer to comment on Ray's Enterprises, Eastern Industries or some other companies.

Mr. Doucet said that would be fine. Opposition leader Robert Higgins called Stairs "Little Sir Echo". Premier Richard Hatfield called for order. Andre Robichaud (L-Shippegan les Iles) suggested the government might not want to discuss Bricklin and Frank Branch (L-Nepisiguit-Chaleur) said "they are deaf and dumb."

The speaker attempted to intercede but was drowned out by the chatter back and forth across the House.

Mr. Doucett then started to repeat the question, but Mr. Merrithew said he had heard it and was merely waiting "until the smart alecs finished. They will not allow me to go on."

Quick to score verbal points, Mr. Doucett countered: "Well, Mr. Stairs is finished so you can start now."

With the question still unanswered and the heckling continuing, Woodroffe closed question period and moved on to other House business.

Before matters got out of control, Merrithew had managed to respond to Doucett's queries about Venus Electric Ltd. Mr. Merrithew said the government has received an offer to use part of the Atholville plant.

Ill-Serviced Heating System A Potential Bomb

By Ronald Morin, President N.B. Oil Heating Association

Have you ever asked yourself the following question: Who is the man that is fixing my heating system? A simple question to answer by most people, but there is more to the answer than the name of some representative companies. Did you know that if somebody makes a slight mistake in your heating system, you are sleeping on a potential bomb? Needless to say, every year, this province loses innocent lives, properties, and individual belongings and, of course, money because of fires.

All the fires in this province are not started by the heating systems, but the fact is that some are. Where a fire occured and was caused by the heating system, most often, the owner had paid money to have his furnace serviced by what he thought was "a qualified serviceman". Of course, anyone can and does make a mistake in every occupational skills, but chances are that a qualified serviceman will be making less mistakes than somebody off the street "working in a trade without proper qualifications".

The consumers pay more insurance premiums year after year due to fires. The increasing cost of building materials has raised the insurance policy of every home owner in recent years and chances are they will continue to rise.

Then, there is the price of oil which has practically doubled since 1972. The companies are asking more money for development of resources, the government is raising the taxes on the gallons of fuel to help them out. The home owners have to pay and God knows when it will stop rising. There isn't much choice because all types of heating systems cost much the same to operate, and everybody has to heat himself.

This is when the efficiency of a heating system comes into the picture. Thousands of gallons of oil are wasted annually due to the heating system not being properly adjusted. The oil companies are in the business of selling oil, so, why would they wonder whether the system is well adjusted or not.

The government offers courses for oil burner serviceman to update and upgrade their knowledge, but since nobody is forced to take them, why should they bother. Meanwhile, the consumers pay and the cycle repeats itself. The rich get richer, and the poor become poorer.

The New Brunswick Oil Heating Association has the following suggestions to offer:

1- Make sure that you have your work done by a qualified serviceman. Don't be shy to ask him if he has his journeyman as required by the N.B. Department of Labour. This certificate proves that he has followed the necessary courses and has passed an exam qualifying him for a diploma.
If he hasn't, encourage him to take some action towards his qualification. This can be easily done by contacting his local Department of Labour office.

2- Encourage the authorities of your locality to organize a program whereby an inspector will inspect all new installation. This is being done in plumbing and electrical trades. The association feels that there is as much danger of fire in the service of a heating system as there is in the plumbing and electrical trade where they have inspectors. The association also feels that the government of this province should act on this matter at once.
The longer we wait, more loss will be incurred. Also, inspectors could inspect the old heating system at a small service charge paid by the home owners. This would have to be arranged by formal demand so that everyone would have his own turn within a short time I think that people would not mind paying $5 to $10 if they knew that their heating system is well taken care of.

3- Don't wait until your heating system fails before calling your oil burner serviceman. You could have a dangerous situation if not taken care of when you first notice a change in your heating system. Better pay a service call now and save money. If you wait until the heating system fails, chances are you will have to pay two or three times more money because of added parts and wasted oil. The association does not have all the answers, and it is aware that all fires are not caused by heating systems. On the other hand, we also know that some fires can be avoided, and we feel that it is worthwhile to do what we are doing. We are a body of qualified servicemen and businessmen who have experience in this trade and are willing to help you. We, the association, know that we can help you in many ways, and we urge you to contact your oil burner servicemen for further information.

Family Strife Can Be Helped

(By the Mormons)

When one mother spoke of discord in the home what did she say?

"Father is so domineering. He doesn't seem to think we have a brain in our heads. He bosses us all the time, and we resent it.

"And Father is so stingy with his money. I haven't had a new dress since last Christmas. I never get out of 'these four walls.' Why can't we go out and have some fun?

"Work, work, work. That's all we hear about and it is about all we do.

"If there was only some consideration for the rest of us. If there was only some appreciation for what we do! How can a man be so self-centered?"

And when her husband spoke, what did he say?

"A chaotic house! No organization! Everything in a mess when I come home. And meals! I work hard all day and come home to dry sandwiches. Never a cooked meal anymore.

"Women don't realize that it is their duty to have food in the house and on the table when the husband comes home."

There is a commandment which the Lord gave which would solve most marriage problems. It is the Golden Rule.

"All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do we even so to them..." And women too!

Seaplane Has Great Capacity

For anyone who recalls the stately transoceanic flying machines of the twenties, the thirties and the forties there's a twinge of nostalgia in a story carried in a recent issue of the Canada-Japan Trade Council newsletter.

With the ghost of Howard Hughes probably nodding approval, Japan's Shin Meiwa Industry Co. is now ready for commercial production of a seaplane designed for 1200passengers or 120 tons of cargo. One of the world's foremost flying-boat builders, the company feels there is a demand for such an aircraft because of increasing noise pollution and the unaviability of land for large airports. It already manufactures many types of aircraft for the Japanese Self-Defence Force and other agencies.

The giant plane will have a wing-span of 47.7 metres, a fuselage 50 metres long and will be able to land and take off within 1,860 metres. With a speed of Mach .85, it will be able to operate in waves up to three metres high. Named "Type GS", it will dwarf Lockheed's 800-seat C5A Galaxy.

Sounds like it might be one of those ideas whose time has come - again.

ALBERT LAVIGNE

Candidate Aims For Ward Improvements

Albert Lavigne, Principal of Superior School, has decided to seek one of the two city council seats in Hachey Ward where he has resided for the past 8 years.

Born in Bathurst, Mr. Lavigne received his early education in the schools of the City. He later received B.A. and B.Ed. degree from St. Thomas University in Chatham and Fredericton. He also holds a Master's degree in administration from the University of Maine. Currently, Mr. Lavigne is completing his thesis for a Doctor's degree in Psycho-pedagogy from the University of Ottawa.

Mr. Lavigne has been coaching school sports for 14 years. He belonged to several city teams and presently is a player in the floor hockey league. He is also interested in cultural events, having belonged to two popular area choirs.

Over the years, Mr. Lavigne has belonged to various organizations including the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Parish Council. He has also been chairman of numerous education committees. Presently, he is chairman of the District 4 School Administrators Association, and he was recently selected Chairman of the District 4 In-Service Committee for next year.

Mr. Lavigne is married to the former Claudette Doucet of East Bathurst and they reside with their daughter, Darlene, at 550 Payne Court.

The Candidate says his decision to run was based on a desire to improve conditions in East Bathurst. He describes playground and recreation facilities as virtually non-existent in his ward. He points out that the children at Mary Gosnell and Assumption Academy Schools do not see the inside of a gym for the first six years of school. In grades 7 - 9, the students either have to have gym classes outdoors on whatever dry ground can be found or else they have to be bused to schools outside the ward which are more fortunate to have gyms.

Albert Lavigne also refers to the unsafe condition of the East Bathurst bridge and said something would have to be done soon before a disaster occurs. He also commented on Rough Waters Drive which is heavily travelled by large trucks. The street is narrow, broken and without an adequate sidewalk for most of its length, yet over 800 children are dismissed onto that street every school day.

And speaking of danger, Mr. Lavigne said Hachey ward was large enough to warrant a fire truck being parked in East Bathurst at all times.

In commenting on water and sewage, Albert Lavigne said they should be installed in those areas that need and want them but it did not make much sense to install water and sewage in areas where the homes are widely scattered and along large tracts of farm land where residents had already gone to the expense of installing their own systems.

Mr. Lavigne noted that snow plowing in some sections of the ward was rather slow, causing workers who must leave for work early in the morning to be late. He said the solution to this problem was rather simple and would not increase the cost of snow removal. He said once elected he would seek to remedy this situation.

Natural Resources Appointments Made

The Department of Natural Resources has announced a series of management personnel appointments in line with the restructuring recommended in the forest resources study report.

Ralph A. Redmond takes over the forest management branch from his former position as coordinator of field operations. He is succeeded by Robert H. Young who has moved from Hampton where he was district forester for the past 13 years.

A native of Bathurst, Mr. Young is a son of Mrs. Robert M. Young of Youghal and the late Mr. Young. He joined DNR on graduation from UNB in 1960. For the past two terms he has been a member of District No. 19 School Board and has participated extensively in community affairs. Prior to his appointment as district forester in Hampton, Mr. Young held a similar post in Newcastle.

Paul E. Boucher is the new director of the forest protection branch following 14 years as district forester at Edmundston.

Senior field managers are now designated regional resources managers and will be responsible for renewable resource management in the northwest, northeast, central, southeast and southwest regions.

The first two regional managers are J. A. Yvon Moreault, Bathurst, for the northeast and Donald J. MacCrea, Kingsclear, for the southeast. Mr. Moreault has been district forester at Bathurst for the past four years while MacCrea has worked with the department's policy and planning secretariat.

Born in Edmundston, Mr. Moreault received his BA from College St. Louis-Maillet there prior to his BSc F from UNB, 1962. His experience has included forest management in the Northwest Region where he worked following graduation, administration at Kouchibouguac National Park, and, since 1973, district forester at Bathurst.

Gordon McLeod has been transferred to Newcastle as regional forester for the central region.

George R. Stevens, formerly district forester at Newcastle has replaced Mr. Young at Hampton.

J. Levesque, currently management forester, will be acting regional forester at Edmundston until a regional forester is appointed.

David MacFarlane, formerly section head of fire protection, has been transferred to the policy and planning secretariate as a policy analyst.

All of the appointees are graduates of the University of New Brunswick faculty of forestry and have had extensive experience in management of provincial resources.

CWL Delegate Is Appointed

The monthly gathering of Saint Simon and Saint Jude Council Catholic Women's League was held in the Pokeshaw-Black Rock convention hall on April 6 and nine members were present.

The meeting was chaired by President Joey Whelton who welcomed all members.

A tape by Msgr. Fulton Sheen was played in place of the regular Bible reading.

Monthly and annual reports were submitted by all conveners present. Prayer and a penny project were enacted.

Money was sent to the Peace and Development Fund.

After all seats were declared vacant, the nominations report was given by the president. It was revealed all officers will remain for another year with the exception of the office of cultural life held by Marlene Roy who will be moving away. This convenership will be taken over by Sister Carmen Belanger.

A mass will be held on April 26, in honor of Our Lady of Good Council and members made plans to have dinner together on this date.

It was decided that Martina Riordon will attend the annual Diocesan CWL convention to be held in Bathurst as council's accredited delegate.

It was also agreed that money will be sent again this year to help educate a seminarian in Equador.

Following adjournment, lunch was served by the hostesses Pat Coughlan and Irene Roy.

Desexer Book: A Touch Of Class

By STEWART MacLEOD
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

It frightens me to think how close I came to missing this marvellous government book on the elimination of sex from job titles. If a friend hadn't mentioned "the desexer book", I might never have been the wiser.

But thank heavens, I now have a copy of "Manual of sex-free occupational titles", and it's really great to know that our government, even in these times of national stress, still has time to ensure the equality of men and women. This latest work may be the greatest production since the government brought forth that book containing 6,700 occupational definitions back in 1971.

There now is absolutely no excuse for sex discrimination in any Canadian job titles. And we're not just talking about obvious titles, such as "chairperson" instead of "chairman". No sir, when our government decides to take the sex out of titles, it goes all the way.

For instance, there will be no more "oriental-rug repairmen". The new title, and a highly useful one at that, is "oriental-rug repairer".

I had often wondered how I would address a female oriental rug fixer.

And the next time you have to call your favorite "paradichlorobenzene man", don't worry if a woman turns up. The new title is "paradichlorobenzene-equipment tender".

MANY EXCEPTIONS

In general, the book, published by the manpower department, tends to replace the word "man" with "worker", but there are many exceptions. Take the sales field as an example.

A livestock salesman becomes a "sales agent", while a drug salesman becomes a "sales representative", and an encyclopedia salesman becomes a "sales person". Might take us a few months to sort everything out, but it will be worth it.

In some cases, the authors obviously had difficulty eliminating any reference to sex. "Fishermen" is an example. "Fisherperson", doesn't look right and neither does "fisher-worker" or "fish collector". So what do we do here is use the expression "fishermen-fisherwomen".

I sort of think the authors also had trouble with "scrap man". I am not sure our society is ready for "scrap woman" or even "scrap person". So the book comes up with the ingenious title of "scrap sorter and baler".

Gives the job a touch of class.

Another word the authors seem to like is "attendant". It is not only useful in replacing "steward" and "stewardess", but it is also used to replace "sea-farm shiftman". I had often wondered what female sea-farm attendants had called themselves prior to this.

SERVICE POPULAR

Another useful word in the desexing of job titles is "servicer".

The book tells us, on page 67, that the classification of "serviceman, portable toilets" now will become "servicer, portable toilets".

All of those interested in quality will be glad to know there is no more "vacuumbag man". It now is "vacuum-bag worker". Likewise a "stove-bottom man" becomes a "stove bottom worker". In the case of the "neon-sign bender-pumpman", the new title is "neon-sign-tube bender".

It's a darn shame this book wasn't ready in time for International Woman's Year.

There will be no more of the "gas-turn-on-and-off man", as he is being replaced by the "gas regulator".

And gone is the "flavor girl" who now becomes the "flavor equipment tender". Even the "envelope-flap-cutting-machine set-up man" gets the axe, in favor of the "envelope-flap-cutting - machine - setter".

I am not sure why the "chokerman" becomes the "choker hooker", but then I also have no idea why the "take-down man" -- whatever he is -- becomes the "take-down checker".

Rather than replacing some words, this book simply orders their deletion, probably because they are redundant. I don't know what most of them mean anyway, but here are some we won't be hearing again from government: wharfman, warehouseman, treaterman, utility man, powerman, tongsman, knock-up man and icicle man.

An "icicle person" would have had such a nice ring to it.

Don't Venture Near The Water

The National Research Council of Canada publication "Science Dimension" provides a thought-provoking overview of the energy situation in a recent issue, touching on four of the most promision of future energy sources, the wind, the waves, the sun and nuclear fusion.

As population growth is one factor in the growing demand for energy, one can't help but be a little worried by the following remarks on wind energy.

"Certainly there is enough wind energy to satisfy all our electrical energy requirements until 2000 A.D., but then, there is enough water in Lake Michigan to drown every inhabitant of North America."

Sounds a rather drastic way of reducing energy demands.

Students at the school will be displaying their work during day, and again in the evening for the benefit of parents and interested persons.

Volunteers were requested to assist for the arts and craft show and several members offered their services. Others wishing to volunteer assistance in any way, or time, are asked to phone Joyce Thibodeau, 546-4396, after 5 p.m.; or Alma Lagace, 548-8626.

Members are also needed to count Dominion Store Sales slips. They were also reminded that books for the school library are welcome. the library committee reported the response so far had been good and Mrs. K. A. Comish reported that more shelving was needed for the library.

The H and S association is also sponsoring a Parents Effectiveness Training course under the direction of Psychologist Cris Surrette and Social Worker Ginette Therriault. The first session was held April 19. The next sessions will take place April 26, May 3 and 10.

The meeting was chaired by the president, Hugh Campbell who brought up discussion on the school's French immersion course.

Albert Lavigne, principal said that students advancing from grade 3 to grade 4 would receive an enriched French program, and that, next year, geography will be taught in French to allow more teaching time in this language.

It was reported no decision had been received regarding the Canada Works grant.

The evening's guest speaker, Dental Hygienist Joanne Mitton was introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. Legace.

Miss Mitton who had been in the school at the current time talking with children noted that April is Dental Health Month.

The speaker's topic was prevention methods and major causes of dental problems.

Miss Mitton demonstrated proper brushing methods and how to "floss" the teeth. An interesting film emphasizing Miss Mitton's talk and demonstrations was shown. It was noted that pamphlets were available for members at the conclusion of the program.

Thanks were expressed to the speaker for her interesting presentation by Mrs. Lagace.

President Campbell spoke briefly on the past year of Superior Home and School Assn. He thanked his executive for their work and co-operation as well as the members, stating that many things were accomplished.

Mr. Campbell said, we must not rest on our laurels and must get on with the many things yet to do, especially as concerns the appalling conditions of the school grounds.

The meeting was held in the school library, opening with members reciting the Home and School Prayer. The minutes, treasurer's report and committee reports were read and approved and correspondence read and discussed.

Members Lose Cool In Debate

Tempers hit the boiling point in the Legislature moments before adjournment April 20 with a heated exchange erupting between treasury board chairman Jean-Maurice Simard and Gloucester Liberal backbencher Onil Doiron.

During the exchange, with Simard and Doiron both on their feet shouting across the chamber, Simard called Doiron "a small man" and "a punk", before making an obscene gesture directed at the Opposition benches.

Supply committee chairman Leland McGaw finally restored order, but not before rising to his feet, banging the gavel countless times and outshouting the two combatants.

Before adjournment, McGaw scolded members from both sides of the House for not respecting the chair. He said he was "tired of being ignored" by members who seemed more intent on arguing than conducting Legislature business.

The incident occurred during discussion of the transportation department's estimates after what had been a generally quiet day.

Doiron has asked Transportation Minister Wilfred Bishop when the government would be replacing a bridge on Route 135 between Paquetville and St. Isidore. Doiron is MLA for Caraquet.

Bishop said a new bridge could not be built until the government had sufficient funds for such a project, but added that the present bridge had been repaired to ensure safety.

Doiron wondered how much had been spent for repairs and went on to accuse the government of hiring "10 workers with shovels" just before the 1974 election to give the impression the bridge was being looked after.

"Following the election, they were gone," said Doiron.

Before Bishop could respond, Simard rose on a point of order objecting to Doiron's remarks and the shouting match followed.

Seminar Will Stress Eye Care

The final steps in the preparation of the Atlantic Region Seminar on Prevention of Blindness are now under way. The seminar, to be held in Halifax at the Sir Charles Tupper Medical Building on April 27 is one of seven co-sponsored by The Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the Canadian Ophthalmological Society.

"With over six people in Canada losing their sight every day and 50 per cent of the nation's blindness preventable, it is none too soon to be taking bold and imaginative steps to eliminate this needless loss of sight," said Mrs. M. Baxter, spokesman for the organizing Committee.

When the participants leave the conference the afternoon of the 27th, they will take back to their various jobs and organizations the knowledge of what must be done to stop this alarming rate of blindness in Canada.

Speaking for CNIB and COS, Mrs. Baxter pointed out that part of the problem is unawareness of good health practices. All children should be vaccinated against Rubella (German Measles), especially females. Rubella can result in blindness to newly born children if a mother has had German Measles during the first three months of her pregnancy. "Our aim is to build up a general immunity against the disease. For the older individual a blood test can tell if the antigens are present in the system and if they are not, a simple vaccination can provide the necessary protection," said Mrs. Baxter.

"Papers by leading eye doctors and specialists will cover a variety of subjects," Mrs. Baxter said. "With the theme 'Make Good Vision Your Decision' we will provide those attending with the basic knowledge of how to fight blindness using the tools available in the local community."

The purpose of the symposium is a dissemination of information throughout the community on the prevention of blindness using the tools available in the local community."

The purpose of the symposium is a dissemination of information throughout the community on the prevention of blindness and the knowledge among delegates and their organizations that each can in their own way fight blindness.
